15 Fingerprint Sets Checked

Scotland Yard Sifts New Clues In Train Robbery

LONDON (AP)—Scotland Yard experts, studying 15 sets of fingerprints found at the farm hideout used by the great train robbery gang 10 days ago, hoped today that the prints would identify more of the men who got away with $7.28 million.

The prints were found in buildings at isolated Leatherslade Farm at Oakley, the gang's hideout 18 miles from where the Glasglow-London mail train was held up. Police hoped they would match prints in the yard's criminal records.

Other possible clues included:

—A Monopoly set, a card game usually played with stage money but believed used by gang members playing with their banknote loot while they waited in their hideout to make their getaway.

—A house in a respectable district of London where, detectives were told, 12 men began holding night meetings behind darkened windows last March.

—Five men sought for questioning because they have been absent from their homes since the robbery.

—A trail of five-pound banknotes in St. Helier, Jersey, one of the Channel Islands.

—A suitcase and a briefcase found stuffed with $282,520 in a Surrey wood last Friday.

—A second-hand black Austin-Healey sports car, found in a parking lot where it had been left by a dapper man and a plump, pockmarked woman.

The couple bought the car for $2,338—all in five-pound notes—the day after the robbery.

Police found the car Friday night after giving nationwide publicity to its registration number and to a description of the couple.

Richard James, an employe of the firm that sold the auto to the couple, said the police knew the registration number and details of the sale when they came to check on the buyers. The implication was that they already knew a good deal about the activities of the couple.

Scotland Yard detectives also believe they have found a house in West London where the gang planned the raid in such minute detail.

Detectives were told that 12 men began holding night meetings at the house last March. The windows of the conference room were always blacked out. The drapes were carefully drawn. The meetings sometimes lasted all night.

Investigators are confident they now know the identity of a couple who dumped $282,520 in two zippered grips in a Surrey wood.

Police said $678,179 of the money has been recovered.

Treaty Gets Backing Of Joint Chiefs

Service Heads Air Security Opinions Before Senate Unit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heads of the Air Force, Army, Navy and Marines united today in support of the limited nuclear test ban treaty provided minimum security safeguards are guaranteed.

Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, chief of the Air Force, testified that the military disadvantages "can only be made acceptable" by safeguards previously outlined by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

He and the other chiefs made clear, under questioning by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairmen of the Senate Armed Services Committee, that they would not have approved the treaty banning tests in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space if they had not been assured safeguards would be provided.

LeMay, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, Army chief of staff, Adm. David L. McDonald, chief of naval operations, and Gen. David M. Shoup, commandant of the Marine Corps, speaking in turn, subscribed to this position.

Their support of the treaty, before a joint public hearing of the Senate Foreign Relations, Armed Services and Atomic Energy committees, is conditioned on comprehensive, aggressive and continuing underground weapons testing permitted under the treaty.

In addition, they said it is based on maintenance of modern nuclear laboratory facilities and programs, a state of readiness to resume atmospheric testing, and improved facilities for detecting any violation of the treaty and maintaining knowledge of Sino-Soviet nuclear activity, capabilities and achievements.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara testified earlier in the hearings that provision would be made for these and other safeguards.

As the hearings moved into their second week, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Mon-

Food Sent To Trapped Men In Pit

5-Day Ordeal Ends For Workers Given Up As Dead In Fall

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—Rescue workers lowered soup, medical supplies, head lamps and a requested cigar today to three coal miners trapped since Tuesday near the bottom of a 400-foot shaft.

"We're all okay," shouted David Fellin, 58, one of the trio, after a 6-inch drill cut into the gangway where the men fled after the main shaft walls collapsed.

Contact was made just before midnight Sunday after they virtually had been given up for dead.

The next step is to bore a 28-inch hole to bring the men out.

There were various estimates on how long it would take.

H. B. Charmbury, secretary of mines for the state of Pennsylvania, estimated it might take anywhere from a day to a week. Ralph Ditzler, district mine inspector, however, said it would take two to three days.

It took 22 hours to drill the six-inch shaft.

Ditzler said he wanted to start the rescue digging, but had to hold up because the trapped men were too tired to direct the operation.

All activity outside the mine stopped and most of the onlookers returned to their homes. Silence fell over the area as the three men, now aware that rescue was only a matter of time, slept peacefully some 400 feet below.

After the first contact, a microphone was lowered.

Fellin talked with his wife, Anna, and son, Joe.

"Dave, Dave," she shouted, "how are you?"

"Okay," he replied.

"Are you sure? Can you hear me? Are you sick or hurt?"

"I can hear you hollering all over. No I'm not sick or hurt."

Fellin reported he and Henry Throne, 28, were in one section and Louis Bova, 52, separated from them about 25 yards by debris. Bova was hurt slightly, Fellin said, but all three were in contact with each other.

The mine, of which Fellin is a co-owner, is at Sheppton, in adjoining Schuylkill County about nine miles from Hazleton and some 80 miles northeast of Philadelphia.

This is the heart-land of the anthracite coal mining area.

9 Injured In 6 Accidents On Area's Roads

Pittsburgh Man, Woman In Hospital After Rogers Crash

A Pittsburgh man and woman remained in City Hospital today with injuries suffered in a Rogers area mishap, one of six district traffic accidents Saturday in which nine persons were hurt the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon reported.

No accidents were investigated Sunday.

Cromer Patterson, 58, and Rosalee Crayton, 51, both of Pittsburgh, were in "fair" condition today with rib injuries received in the Route 7 accident about three - fourths of a mile south of Rogers.

They were passengers in a car driven by Willie Parker, 53, of Irondale, which skidded on wet pavement and struck an embankment.

Parker suffered a cut forehead and Laurene Buckner, 37, of Pittsburgh, another passenger, suffered cuts of the neck and shoulders.

Damage to the 1961 sedan was estimated at $450.

Donald Jordan, 33, of Youngstown was cited on two charges after a collision in New Waterford which injured four persons late Saturday night.

Jordan rounded a curve of Route 46 on the wrong side, officers said, and collided with an oncoming auto driven by Lloyd Lange, 51, of 55 Cyland Ave., East Palestine.

Treated at Salem City Hospital were Anna Lange, 55, of 55 Cyland Ave. and Sarah Justinson, 56, of 15 Cyland Ave., passengers in the Lange car, who received bruises of the forehead, and Jordan who suffered a cut chin and bruised forehead and William Snyder, 28, of Youngstown, pas-

18 Countians Get Gambling Stamp

Columbiana County has broken out with the "gambling rash," with 18 lodges, restaurants, veterans' posts, a service station—and a park — having obtained federal stamps sold to operators of coin - operated gambling devices.

A post took out two, making the county's total 19.

The Internal Revenue Service at Cleveland, which has jurisdiction over 44 Ohio counties, said 101 of the $250 stamps were sold since the start of the fiscal year July 1.

—:—

BELMONT COUNTY leads the Eastern Ohio area with 21 and Columbiana County is second with 19. Jefferson County lists only five.

No stamp was issued for Columbiana County last year and only one for the previous year. At one time, there were as many as a dozen listed for East Liverpool alone.

The IRS list shows Salem leading with six stamp - holders; East Liverpool and area next with five, followed by Wellsville, two, and the others in Columbiana, Leetonia, Hanoverton and Homeworth.

An IRS official said most of the stamps were bought by operators of pinball machines used for gambling.

The IRS office also said 92 federal $50 gambling stamps were issued to residents in 19 Northern Ohio counties, and Jefferson County topped this list with 20 of the so-called "wagering stamps," most of them going to Steubenville individuals and businesses.

Federal officials stress that gambling stamps sold by the federal government are not a license to operate wagering rackets. Numbers operations and all other kinds of gambling activities are subject to federal prosecution if they are carried on without the stamps.

The $250 stamps were issued to the following:

Lake Marwin Association, Radio Heights, East Liverpool.

Ernest J. Maenz, Maenz American Service, R.D. 3, Salem.

Salem Recreation, Inc., 525 E. State Street, Salem.

John Untch, prop. Colonial Billiards, 264 E. State St., Salem.

Rik Ackerman, Town Talk Restaurant, 280 Benton Rd., Salem.

Ronald Beight, Turkey Run Truck Stop, R.D. 1, Salem Unity Rd., Columbiana.

Gerald Beltempo Sr., prop. Leetonia Recreation, Leetonia.

Gladys Boyce, Boyce's Restaurant, Box 104, Hanoverton.

Charles Coen, Coen's Sohio Service, 2105 Clark Ave., Wellsville.

Jefferson County stamp-holders include Raymond Burke of the Jeddo Club on Route 7 near Toronto. The others were obtained by three businesses in Mingo Junction and another in Yorkville, according to the IRS.

Collection Starts Thursday

Hancock Tax Statements To Be Mailed Wednesday

Hancock County residents are due to receive their tax bills for fiscal 1963-64 about 10 days sooner than expected.

Sheriff Joseph H. Manypenny announced today that his office will mail 30,000 tax bills for personal property and real estate Wednesday, and collections will commence Thursday.

He had forecast earlier that the tax statements would not be figured and ready for mailing until Sept. 1.

Manypenny said the period for awarding a discount of 2½ per cent for prompt payment will be extended through Sept. 28.

"I urge all taxpayers to take advantage of this discount period, because it will not be in effect after Sept. 28, with interest to be added to the amount due after that date," the sheriff sadi.

The tax - collection office in the Courthouse in New Cumberland will be open starting Thursday from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. on weekdays and 9 a. m. to noon on Saturdays for county residents to make payments on first - half installments.

The discount period will extend through Sept. 28 under a ruling by Prosecutor Floyd R. Tarr, the sheriff pointed out.

Manypenny commended his staff for efforts to prepare the tax statements for mailing earlier than Sept. 1.

"The staff worked well into the night each day since Circuit Court sustained the new tax setup, and all the statements will be in the mail by Wednesday," he said.

Miss Eleanor Patterson is chief tax deputy, and Mrs. Irene Cullen and Miss Diane Huff are regular employes. Added to the staff to hurry along the figuring of tax statements were Mrs. Richard Mort, Mrs. Ronald Weekley, Mrs. Ralph Blake and Mrs. Thomas Bradley.

The sheriff is charged with collection of $3,743,405.30 in real estate and personal property taxes, compared to $3,326,848 last year.

Real estate taxes this year amount to $2,110,233.34, and personal property, $1,633,171.96.

Monks Stage New Protests In Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Buddhist monks continued a 48-hour hunger strike in Saigon today and university students boycotted classes in Hue as the Buddhists stepped up their campaign against the government.

Authorities sought to head off further outbreaks, but another young monk was reported determined to burn himself to death as a protest against the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem, a Roman Catholic.

Four monks and one nun have committed fiery suicide to press Buddhist demands for religious equality and government reforms. The government denies Buddhist charges that their religion is being persecuted.

Buddhist delegations shuttled back and forth between Saigon and Hue, 400 miles to the north, to coordinate the antigovernment movement in the two centers.

About 17,000 demonstrators, mostly young people, crowded around Saigon's main pagoda Sunday. They cheered antigovernment speeches by the fasting monks and waved banners accusing the government of barbarism.

Police stood watch but did not interfere with the 12-hour demonstration, the biggest the Buddhists have held.

The monks announced they had started a 48-hour hunger strike and asked the crowd to join them for one day. Youths in the gathering shouted assent.

Negroes Get Scolding In Detroit Rally

Evers Brother Hits Complacency In Northern Struggle

DETROIT (AP)—Two thousand Negroes marched two miles in a peaceful demonstration Sunday, only to be scolded by one of their heroes for being "so satisfied it's sickening."

Charles Evers, brother and successor of slain Mississippi integrationist leader Megar Evers, led the orderly march through two industrial Detroit suburbs and took the occasion to lambast the "Uncle Toms" and the complacent Northern Negro.

The march, billed as a "crusade of 10,000," was a failure numerically, but was followed by a spirited rally in a high school stadium where Evers compared the Northern and Southern brands of racial discrimination.

"You don't know where you're going," the Mississippian told the nearly all-Negro stadium audience. "In Mississippi, we know."

He said Negroes of the Deep South must struggle and sacrifice in their efforts to vote, and noted that Negroes in his audience were not prohibited from registering to vote.

"Stop blaming the white man" for racial inequality, the Negro said, "it's your fault now."

He made fun of Northerners who sent old clothes and canned fruit to Southern NAACP offices.

"You may not believe it, but we have enough food and clothes in Mississippi," he said. "You can help us not with canned peaches, but by registering and voting to get the civil rights bills through.

"Stop fighting among yourselves. Stop calling yourselves Republicans and Democrats. We are our only party. Get together behind one good man.

"Just because he's Negro doesn't mean he's a good man," Evers warned. "You're in worse shape with a no-good Negro than with any white man in office—you trust him more."

Evers said the blunt, aboveboard segregation of Mississippi was easier to fight than more subtle discrimination practices in the North.

Chester Man's Auto Demolished In Upset

A sedan driven by a Chester man was demolished when it upset on State Route 2 a mile north of New Cumberland Saturday at 10:35 p. m.

Hancock County sheriff's deputies said the 1956 two - door sedan operated by Roy Everett Delong, 43, of 513 Florida Ave., dropped off the berm, slipped into a ditch and upset.

The auto is owned by Alice E. Torrence, 1094 Hillcrest Road, Wellsville, the sheriff's office said. DeLong escaped unhurt.

Test Ban Vote Affects '64 Race

By JACK BELL
Associated Press Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater appears to be struggling with a decision on the limited nuclear test ban treaty that could affect his 1964 GOP presidential aspirations.

If the Arizona Republican votes against ratification of a treaty he has called "one small step toward peaceful coexistence" of a kind that could only give "tyranny a protected sanctuary from which it can erode or attack freedom," he will set himself apart from a majority of politicians in both parties.

By a negative vote he would sharpen — if, indeed, they need sharpening — his foreign policy differences with President Kennedy. Kennedy is certain to be his party's nominee for a second term.

That the Democrats intend to plug the treaty in next year's campaign as a significant step toward world peace was indicated in today's issue of the party organ, "Democrat."

A front page story is bannered "Test Ban Support Grows." In mentioning opposition to the treaty, it refers to Goldwater as a "frequent ally" of the "far right-John Birch element."

A "no" vote by Goldwater on the treaty would add to the already voluminous evidence that if he were the Republican nominee opposing Kennedy he would be no "me too" candidate.

Such a vote would put him at odds with a majority of his Senate GOP colleagues and probably the big majority of the party leaders.

He said in an interview that while he hasn't finally made up his mind he is inclined to vote against the treaty which would ban all but underground tests.

He said he has not been satisfied by pledges received from the administration that American efforts to develop new nuclear defenses won't be slowed down by the treaty.

But Goldwater has left the way open to vote for the treaty if the Senate preparedness subcommittee, of which he is a member, comes up with a satisfactory report on the military aspects of the pact.

First Negro Graduated

Meredith Given Diploma In Quiet 'Ole Miss' Rites

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — The white people stared stiffly ahead, without expression. The few Negroes in the audience watched somberly in small, self-conscious groups.

Except for a few glances, neither group seemed to look at the other. Together, under the tall oaks, they sat in awkward silence and watched what neither had ever seen before.

James Howard Meredith, a slight man of 30, became the first Negro to graduate from the University of Mississippi in its 115-year history. Without incident, he received what some are calling the $5 million diploma, that being the estimated cost of the soldiers and U.S. marshals it took to get and keep Meredith at Ole Miss.

The scene Sunday bore no resemblance to the night he entered, last Sept. 30, in an explosion of violence and death. Few people at the graduation were aware of the 16 marshals standing inconspiciously on the fringes of the crowd.

In a shaded glen, a short distance from the scene of last year's riot, about 2,500 whites and 40 of Meredith's family and friends looked on quietly.

Meredith shook hands with the university chancellor, John Davis Williams and walked down with his diploma.

Moses Meredith, a tall, solemn man whose father was a slave, said of his son's graduation, "I'm proud just to see a man get an education. That's all he ever asked for."

Meredith's mother, who wore a white dress and perky white hat, said only, "I got a special feeling."

Almost to the end, Meredith's graduation was resisted by Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, who led the original resistance and was cited for contempt for defiance of a federal court order. Barnett, a few days ago, was trying to have the Negro expelled from Ole Miss

The delegations will leave early the morning of Aug. 28 and return late the same day, spokesmen said.

5-Day Ordeal Ends For Workers Given Up As Dead In Fall

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—Rescue workers lowered soup, medical supplies, head lamps and a requested cigar today to three coal miners trapped since Tuesday near the bottom of a 400-foot shaft.

"We're all okay," shouted David Fellin, 58, one of the trio, after a 6-inch drill cut into the gangway where the men fled after the main shaft walls collapsed.

Contact was made just before midnight Sunday after they virtually had been given up for dead.

There were various estimates on how long it would take.

It took 22 hours to drill the six-inch shaft.

Ditzler said he wanted to start the rescue digging, but had to hold up because the trapped men were too tired to direct the operation.

All activity outside the mine stopped and most of the onlookers returned to their homes. Silence fell over the area as the three men, now aware that rescue was only a matter of time, slept peacefully some 400 feet below.

The Internal Revenue Service at Cleveland, which has jurisdiction over 44 Ohio counties, said 101 of the $250 stamps were sold since the start of the fiscal year July 1.

BELMONT COUNTY leads the Eastern Ohio area with 21 and Columbiana County is second with 19. Jefferson County lists only five.

No stamp was issued for Columbiana County last year and only one for the previous year. At one time, there were as many as a dozen listed for East Liverpool alone.

The IRS list shows Salem leading with six stamp - holders; East Liverpool and area next with five, followed by Wellsville, two, and the others in Columbiana, Leetonia, Hanoverton and Homeworth.

An IRS official said most of the stamps were bought by operators of pinball machines used for gambling.

The IRS office also said 92 federal $50 gambling stamps were issued to residents in 19 Northern Ohio counties, and Jefferson County topped this list with 20 of the so-called "wagering stamps," most of them going to Steubenville individuals and businesses.

Federal officials stress that gambling stamps sold by the federal government are not a license to operate wagering rackets. Numbers operations and all other kinds of gambling activities are subject to federal prosecution if they are carried on without the stamps.

The $250 stamps were issued to the following:

Lake Marwin Association, Radio Heights, East Liverpool.

Ernest J. Maenz, Maenz American Service, R.D. 3, Salem.

Salem Recreation, Inc., 525 E. State Street, Salem.

Collection Starts Thursday

Hancock Tax Statements To Be Mailed Wednesday

Hancock County residents are due to receive their tax bills for fiscal 1963-64 about 10 days sooner than expected.

Sheriff Joseph H. Manypenny announced today that his office will mail 30,000 tax bills for personal property and real estate Wednesday, and collections will commence Thursday.

He had forecast earlier that the tax statements would not be figured and ready for mailing until Sept. 1.

Manypenny said the period for awarding a discount of 2½ per cent for prompt payment will be extended through Sept. 28.

"I urge all taxpayers to take advantage of this discount period, because it will not be in effect after Sept. 28, with interest to be added to the amount due after that date," the sheriff said.

The tax - collection office in the Courthouse in New Cumberland will be open starting Thursday from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. on weekdays and 9 a. m. to noon on Saturdays for county residents to make payments on first - half installments.

The discount period will extend through Sept. 28 under a ruling by Prosecutor Floyd R. Tarr, the sheriff pointed out.

Manypenny commended his staff for efforts to prepare the tax statements for mailing earlier than Sept. 1.

"The staff worked well into the night each day since Circuit Court sustained the new tax setup, and all the statements will be in the mail by Wednesday," he said.

Miss Eleanor Patterson is chief tax deputy, and Mrs. Irene Cullen and Miss Diane Huff are regular employes. Added to the staff to hurry along the figuring of tax statements were Mrs. Richard Mort, Mrs. Ronald Weekley, Mrs. Ralph Blake and Mrs. Thomas Bradley.

The sheriff is charged with collection of $3,743,405.30 in real estate and personal property taxes, compared to $3,326,848 last year.

Real estate taxes this year amount to $2,110,233.34, and personal property, $1,633,171.96.

Monks Stage New Protests In Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Buddhist monks continued a 48-hour hunger strike in Saigon today and university students boycotted classes in Hue as the Buddhists stepped up their campaign against the government.

Authorities sought to head off further outbreaks, but another young monk was reported determined to burn himself to death as a protest against the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem, a Roman Catholic.

Four monks and one nun have committed fiery suicide to press Buddhist demands for religious equality and government reforms. The government denies Buddhist charges that their religion is being persecuted.

Buddhist delegations shuttled back and forth between Saigon and Hue, 400 miles to the north, to coordinate the antigovernment movement in the two centers.

About 17,000 demonstrators, mostly young people, crowded around Saigon's main pagoda Sunday. They cheered antigovernment speeches by the fasting monks and waved banners accusing the government of barbarism.

Police stood watch but did not interfere with the 12-hour demonstration, the biggest the Buddhists have held.

The monks announced they had started a 48-hour hunger strike and asked the crowd to join them for one day. Youths in the gathering shouted assent.

Negroes Get Scolding In Detroit Rally

Evers Brother Hits Complacency In Northern Struggle

DETROIT (AP)—Two thousand Negroes marched two miles in a peaceful demonstration Sunday, only to be scolded by one of their heroes for being "so satisfied it's sickening."

Charles Evers, brother and successor of slain Mississippi integrationist leader Megar Evers, led the orderly march through two industrial Detroit suburbs and took the occasion to lambast the "Uncle Toms" and the complacent Northern Negro.

The march, billed as a "crusade of 10,000," was a failure numerically, but was followed by a spirited rally in a high school stadium where Evers compared the Northern and Southern brands of racial discrimination.

"You don't know where you're going," the Mississippian told the nearly all-Negro stadium audience. "In Mississippi, we know."

He said Negroes of the Deep South must struggle and sacrifice in their efforts to vote, and noted that Negroes in his audience were not prohibited from registering to vote.

"Stop blaming the white man" for racial inequality, the Negro said, "it's your fault now."

He made fun of Northerners who sent old clothes and canned fruit to Southern NAACP offices.

"You may not believe it, but we have enough food and clothes in Mississippi," he said. "You can help us not with canned peaches, but by registering and voting to get the civil rights bills through.

"Stop fighting among yourselves. Stop calling yourselves Republicans and Democrats. We are our only party. Get together behind one good man.

"Just because he's Negro doesn't mean he's a good man," Evers warned. "You're in worse shape with a no-good Negro than with any white man in office—you trust him more."

Evers said the blunt, aboveboard segregation of Mississippi was easier to fight than more subtle discrimination practices in the North.

Chester Man's Auto Demolished In Upset

A sedan driven by a Chester man was demolished when it upset on State Route 2 a mile north of New Cumberland Saturday at 10:35 p. m.

Hancock County sheriff's deputies said the 1956 two - door sedan operated by Roy Everett Delong, 43, of 513 Florida Ave., dropped off the berm, slipped into a ditch and upset.

The auto is owned by Alice E. Torrence, 1094 Hillcrest Road, Wellsville, the sheriff's office said. DeLong escaped unhurt.

Test Ban Vote Affects '64 Race

By JACK BELL
Associated Press Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater appears to be struggling with a decision on the limited nuclear test ban treaty that could affect his 1964 GOP presidential aspirations.

If the Arizona Republican votes against ratification of a treaty he has called "one small step toward peaceful coexistence" of a kind that could only give "tyranny a protected sanctuary from which it can erode or attack freedom," he will set himself apart from a majority of politicians in both parties.

By a negative vote he would sharpen — if, indeed, they need sharpening — his foreign policy differences with President Kennedy. Kennedy is certain to be his party's nominee for a second term.

That the Democrats intend to plug the treaty in next year's campaign as a significant step toward world peace was indicated in today's issue of the party organ, "Democrat."

A front page story is bannered "Test Ban Support Grows." In mentioning opposition to the treaty, it refers to Goldwater as a "frequent ally" of the "far right-John Birch element."

A "no" vote by Goldwater on the treaty would add to the already voluminous evidence that if he were the Republican nominee opposing Kennedy he would be no "me too" candidate.

Such a vote would put him at odds with a majority of his Senate GOP colleagues and probably the big majority of the party leaders.

He said in an interview that while he hasn't finally made up his mind he is inclined to vote against the treaty which would ban all but underground tests.

He said he has not been satisfied by pledges received from the administration that American efforts to develop new nuclear defenses won't be slowed down by the treaty.

But Goldwater has left the way open to vote for the treaty if the Senate preparedness subcommittee, of which he is a member, comes up with a satisfactory report on the military aspects of the pact.

First Negro Graduated

Meredith Given Diploma In Quiet 'Ole Miss' Rites

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — The white people stared stiffly ahead, without expression. The few Negroes in the audience watched somberly in small, self-conscious groups.

Except for a few glances, neither group seemed to look at the other. Together, under the tall oaks, they sat in awkward silence and watched what neither had ever seen before.

James Howard Meredith, a slight man of 30, became the first Negro to graduate from the Univerity of Mississippi in its 115-year history. Without incident, he received what some are calling the $5 million diploma, that being the estimated cost of the soldiers and U.S. marshals it took to get and keep Meredith at Ole Miss.

The scene Sunday bore no resemblance to the night he entered, last Sept. 30, in an explosion of violence and death. Few people at the graduation were aware of the 16 marshals standing inconspiciously on the fringes of the crowd.

In a shaded glen, a short distance from the scene of last year's riot, about 2,500 whites and 40 of Meredith's family and friends looked on quietly.

Meredith shook hands with the university chancellor, John Davis Williams and walked down with his diploma.

Moses Meredith, a tall, solemn man whose father was a slave, said of his son's graduation, "I'm proud just to see a man get an education. That's all he ever asked for."

Meredith's mother, who wore a white dress and perky white hat, said only, "I got a special feeling."

Almost to the end, Meredith's graduation was resisted by Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, who led the original resistance and was cited for contempt for defiance of a federal court order. Barnett, a few days ago, was trying to have the Negro expelled from Ole Miss

NAACP Delegations To Appear In 'March'

Delegations from the Midland and East Liverpool branches of the NAACP will participate in the march to Washington Aug. 28.

Will T. Leavell, president of the Midland branch, said 12 of his unit will join the Pittsburgh branch, going by bus or train.

The local group, of which Alonzo Spencer is president, will travel with the Youngstown branch, Spencer said.

The delegations will leave early the morning of Aug. 28 and return late the same day, spokesmen said.

Police Persuade Man Not To Leap At Steubenville

STEUBENVILLE — "Don't come any closer or I'll jump," a young Weirton man threatened Saturday night from a precarious position on the Pennsylvania Railroad Bridge 200 feet above the Ohio River.

But persistent coaxing by Capt. Walter Durbin of the Steubenville police department lured John F. Nesselroad, 20, away from his suicide perch.

The officer spent almost an hour persuading Nesselroad to climb down from his loft perch on the highest girders of the bridge here.

Another officer played a spotlight on the pair from a cruiser parked on the shore.

Capt. Durbin said that Nesselroad "was a young boy, quite confused...upset because he and his girl had split up."

The officer said he did "quite a bit of fancy talking" to convince Nesselroad to come down from the bridge. The officer admitted that the bridge "was shaky" at times when freight trains roared by on the tracks below.

2 Wellsville Wrecks Listed

Wellsville police investigated two minor traffic crashes Saturday and today, and have cited a driver in connection with a mishap Friday in which two girls were hurt.

The collision today involved cars driven by George Grafton, 460 14th St., and Richard N. Bratt, 316 15th St. Police said Grafton was westbound on 18th St., turning on Commerce St., when his car struck the right rear fender of the Bratt auto.

The minor crash on Friday involved cars driven by David M. Miller, 432½ Main St. and Larry M. Bess of East Liverpool, on Main St. at Shingler Alley.

Police said Fred Congrove of Wellsville has been charged with leaving the scene of an accident in connection with a two-car crash Friday night at the junction of Route 7 and Route 45. A car driven by Patricia Johnston of Summitville was struck in the rear and police said the other driver fled on Route 45. Congrove is slated for a hearing Tuesday night at 7.

Meanwhile, Robert Vernon of Wellsville forfeited a $25 appearance bond Saturday before Mayor W. W. Daugherty on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Town Evacuated After Tank Car With Gas Derails

EUREKA, Mo. (AP) — More than 400 residents evacuated the business district of Eureka Sunday night when 20 cars of a Missouri Pacific freight train derailed in the town, including one leaking highly explosive liquefied gas.

Railroad crews worked through the night clearing the wreckage and closing the leak in the tank car.

The residents were allowed to return to their homes early today after the area was declared safe by authorities.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the 111-car frieght derailed when a grease box used to oil an axle overheated and melted, causing two wheels on one of the cars to jump the tracks.

The train tracks run parallel to the main business street through the town of 1,100, which is located about 25 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Some of the derailed cars knocked down utility poles, causing a temporary loss of power and telephone service.

Weekend highway deaths in Ohio have averaged 12.3 so far in 1963, and for the third straight weekend the state surpassed the average in the weekend just ended.

Associated Press tabulations show that not since the weekend of July 28 have fewer than 13 persons died on the highways. The toll for that period was 12.

Weekend highway deaths in Ohio this year now total at least 417. The bloodiest weekend was the long July 4 holiday period in which 29 victims were counted.

The latest AP survey showed that in the period from 6 p.m. last Friday until midnight Sunday, 16 lives were lost on the highways. In addition, 2 deaths were attributed to miscellaneous accidents and 1 person drowned for an overall toll of 19.

Police Persuade Man Not To Leap At Steubenville

STEUBENVILLE — "Don't come any closer or I'll jump," a young Weirton man threatened Saturday night from a precarious position on the Pennsylvania Railroad Bridge 200 feet above the Ohio River.

But persistent coaxing by Capt. Walter Durbin of the Steubenville police department lured John F. Nesselroad, 20, away from his suicide perch.

The officer spent almost an hour persuading Nesselroad to climb down from his loft perch on the highest girders of the bridge here.

Another officer played a spotlight on the pair from a cruiser parked on the shore.

Capt. Durbin said that Nesselroad "was a young boy, quite confused...upset because he and his girl had split up."

The officer said he did "quite a bit of fancy talking" to convince Nesselroad to come down from the bridge. The officer admitted that the bridge "was shaky" at times when freight trains roared by on the tracks below.

2 Wellsville Wrecks Listed

Wellsville police investigated two minor traffic crashes Saturday and today, and have cited a driver in connection with a mishap Friday in which two girls were hurt.

The collision today involved cars driven by George Grafton, 460 14th St., and Richard N. Bratt, 316 15th St. Police said Grafton was westbound on 18th St., turning on Commerce St., when his car struck the right rear fender of the Bratt auto.

The minor crash on Friday involved cars driven by David M. Miller, 432½ Main St. and Larry M. Bess of East Liverpool, on Main St. at Shingler Alley.

Police said Fred Congrove of Wellsville has been charged with leaving the scene of an accident in connection with a two-car crash Friday night at the junction of Route 7 and Route 45. A car driven by Patricia Johnston of Summitville was struck in the rear and police said the other driver fled on Route 45. Congrove is slated for a hearing Tuesday night at 7.

Meanwhile, Robert Vernon of Wellsville forfeited a $25 appearance bond Saturday before Mayor W. W. Daugherty on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Town Evacuated After Tank Car With Gas Derails

EUREKA, Mo. (AP) — More than 400 residents evacuated the business district of Eureka Sunday night when 20 cars of a Missouri Pacific freight train derailed in the town, including one leaking highly explosive liquefied gas.

Railroad crews worked through the night clearing the wreckage and closing the leak in the tank car.

The residents were allowed to return to their homes early today after the area was declared safe by authorities.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the 111-car frieght derailed when a grease box used to oil an axle overheated and melted, causing two wheels on one of the cars to jump the tracks.

The train tracks run parallel to the main business street through the town of 1,100, which is located about 25 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Some of the derailed cars knocked down utility poles, causing a temporary loss of power and telephone service.

The Race Is Getting Costly

When President Kennedy started talking about putting the U.S. space program in high gear early in his administration, he had just about everyone pulling for him. National pride, shaken by a Soviet first, was on his side.

Now, with memories of Sputnik I dimmed by intervening triumphs by both nations, many Americans are taking a long second look at the cost of planting the American flag on the moon.

The goal, according to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, could be achieved by 1970. The cost has been estimated at up to $40 billion, or close to $10,000 a mile for a single round trip.

But the cost is being measured in other ways, too.

SOME of the nation's leading civilian researchers are complaining that the moon race is creating a threat of economic stagnation. The problem, they say, lies in the frantic bidding by space and military contractors for scientists and engineers. It's creating a shortage of these key people in private industry. It has sent salaries rocketing upward and, as a result, has slowed new product development for the civilian economy

Company-supported research also is suffering from the ever increasing concentration of government - sponsored research projects aside from the moon race.

Samuel Lebner, a DuPont Co. vice president, summed it up this way for the Wall Street Journal: "Government research programs serve as a brake on research in the private sector." He added that even if corporations had unlimited funds to spend they could not find sufficient personnel to expand research indefinitely.

National Science Foundation figures show that company spending on research totaled $4.5 billion at last count in 1961, a 1 per cent increase over 1960. Salary costs rose 5 per cent during that time. Government-sponsored research, meanwhile, topped $6 billion in 1961.

COMPOUNDING the problem, according to Commerce Department reports, is that little more than half of the 60,000 research engineers needed will be graduated this year, and the space program may take most of them.

While there is little doubt that space research and other government projects will have a beneficial side effect in terms of new civilian products, there seems to be grounds for the fear that essential industrial research is being raided to death.

It will remain for Congress to decide in deliberating increased space race outlays how much of a talent drain civilian economy can stand.

No one wants to take a back seat to Russia, but the race may not be worth the candle if civilian enterprise is stifled along the way.

Pocketbook Pain

Taxpayers looking for a break from the federal government find little to cheer about in a report from two veteran members of the Senate Finance Committee.

Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois and Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tennessee, say they doubt seriously that Congress will get around to cutting taxes this year, despite pressure from President Kennedy.

As if their informed opinions weren't enough to start the pocketbook pains pulsing again, along comes a report from the Tax Foundation, Inc., that the federal tax load for each American will be about $583 next year.

If that doesn't jar you, remember that's a per capita figure — $583 for you, $583 for the wife and $583 for each of the kids.

That's about $12 higher than the per capipa tax bill for this year.

There was a time, long before Dirksen and Gore came along, when things were different.

Take 1840. The per capital tax bite was a mere nibble: 81 cents.

But no deductions.

Why The Technicality?

The most puzzling aspect of the attack by Cuban gunboats and the kidnaping of 19 Cuban refugees on the British island of Auguilla Cay was the failure of U.S. jets to intervene even though the captors were in their gun sights.

A state department press officer said the American aircraft were helpless to intervene because the action was on British territory.

The fact is that the planes were in the immediate vicinity of the Castro raid because they were making a routine Coast Guard check of the island under provisions of a contract with the British government.

If the U.S. had an arrangement with Britain to check the island, we can see no reason why it should not also have undertaken the emergency responsibility of protecting it.

And if it needed protection against encroachments of raiders from Red Cuba, there is all the more reason to provide it in view of our stated policy not to permit Cuban military action outside Cuba.

We can't help but wonder why the U.S. despite its pledge to intervene against any attempt of Castro to export his revolution to other Latin American countries, would stand on a technicality and refuse to thwart any such aggression.

TV Melting Pot

By Stuart Griffin

East is East and West is West, but the twain meet here with great regularity via such TV vehicles as "Wagon Train."

Television offerings from the United States so dominate Japanese TV screens that a third of the prime evening viewing hours have made-in-America labels.

How do the Japanese critics feel about it? They view the airborne American invasion as "Victory by Default." The United States' grip on the domestic TV screen, in the words of a local critic, is that of a "giant manhandling a pygmy."

Local television bumbles along, but the American programs—and they run the well-known gamut from old Hollywood films through situation comedies and Westerns to science-fiction series—cast an evergrowing shadow on the family TV set.

The local critics concede ruefully that there is an obvious reason for the situation. They score made-in-Japan productions in such terms as "ludicrously amateurish" and "woefully inadequate to the public needs."

A TYPICAL U.S. show—take "The Untouchables," for instance—is introduced with a fanfare of publicity as to its popularity in the typical American home. And if there is anything the average Japanese wants, it is to live in a typical American home.

Premieres of key American programs here are attended by top-flight local talent and mobbed by the common folk. The cost of such shows, by Japanese standards, is high. The average half-hour program from the United States goes to a local station for $1,000 and hour-long productions draw upward of $4,000.

But the Japanese stations make money on even the most expensive imports. "Ben Casey" cost $4,500, but the advertisers are happy to not only foot the bill but pay enough extra to leave the stations tidy profits.

The Japanese people are merciless critics of their home-made shows, but an American production can do no wrong. It was made in the U.S.; therefore, it must be good. Japanese producers spend a lot of money but, somehow or other, they can't seem to win the public. Big city, sophisticated Japanese productions are scored in the hinterlands. Conversely, urban audiences hoot derisively at shows originating in the smaller towns.

Additionally, Japanese producers are plagued by a shortage of talent, technical skill and financial backing.

The handful of top-drawer Japanese artists frequently stagger with fatigue at the demands made upon them: they are prone to complain even as they watch their bank accounts fatten.

Studios are limited in numbers and in facilities. Props, sound effects, costumes and the like are but pallid imitations of those used in even the most unpretentious importations from the United States.

AN IMPORTANT factor in the U.S. television invasion is its impact on Japanese life. American styles, habits and notions of living—as reflected by American TV—are spread widely and rapidly among Japanese screen viewers.

The dialogue, of course, is dubbed in Japanese. To an American, watching Broderick Crawford speak in what seems to be colloquial Japanese is a strange experience. But the Japanese accept it without batting an eye.

The answer, perhaps, lies in the fact that the relatively isolated Japanese know their own life too well. They crave foreign experience; curious folk; a glimpse of what lies beyond their shores.

So, from their paper-windowed, straw-matted living rooms, they gaze into a TV tube and journey into that strange, awesome, exotic land, the United States of America.

This 'n That

Charles E. Duryea, who with his brother Frank built the first successful gasoline - driven automobile in 1892, has been called the "Father of the Automobile". Duryea's second model of the 1892-1893 automobile is preserved in the Smithsonian Institution as the first American-made car. Some historians dispute this, and believe the car built by Elwood Haynes in 1893-94 should receive this honor.

The original Joe Miller, whose name now means any old and well-worn joke, was a popular comedian in the early 1700's at the Drury Lane Theater in London. About a year after his death in 1738, a book was published with a collection of witticisms which were given Joe Miller's name.

Handball is sometimes called the "granddaddy of all ball games". It originated in Ireland during the 10th century and finally found its way to the U. S. in the late 19th century.

About 34 per cent of American high school students go on to college, as compared with about nine per cent of British students, eight per cent of French, and six per cent of German.

The small, goat-like animal known as the chamois (from which we obtain the familiar leather cloth), and which inhabits the mountains of Asia and Europe, is so agile that it can easily clear at a bound crevices 18 feet in width.

The Hand That Rocks The Cradle

A Look At A Forgotten Tax Source

By Raymond Moley

In one of his debates with Richard Nixon in 1960, John F. Kennedy said that the property tax was practically exhausted as a source of revenue. On this assumption he advocated vast new federal expenditures for local facilities such as public schools.

It is a pity that Nixon did not remind his opponent that it was the federal income tax, not the property tax, which had reached the point of diminishing returns. Mr. Kennedy has admitted that in asking for tax rate reductions this year.

The soundest of all principles of taxation, expounded ever since Adam Smith, is that a tax should bear as lightly as possible on the sources of production.

From this, the inference can be drawn that the best and most equitable tax is one which bears heavily upon unearned wealth.

Let us bring this principle home to our great urban centers which are demanding so many federal handouts for local improvements.

THOSE CITIES and their suburbs have not grown efficiently and attractively. They have sprawled over great areas, with much of the land therein either vacant or occupied only by obsolete buildings.

A major reason for this is inequity in taxation. Property taxes almost universally are levied upon both buildings and the land under the buildings. Generally the land is under-assessed and new improvements are overassessed for tax purposes.

This enables holders of unused land and slum property to reap profits as the communities grow around them. Show me a vacant piece of land or a slum and I will show you that the owner is speculating on getting a large profit when he sells — an unearned profit.

Most of the great American fortunes in the past and to a degree in the present have been made by holders of land. They have not improved the community. They have profited by the growth of large populations in their areas.

To cure this inequity and to raise more money for local services such as schools, hospitals and streets and also to stimulate private housing, two factors should be considered. The state and local laws should differentiate between the tax on land and the tax on improvements.

Also, in the assessing of property, a heavier burden should rest upon land and lighter burdens should be placed upon improvements.

SINCE THE MORE immediate method of reform is in assessments, a very comprehensive study is about to be issued on the subject by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

This commission was created by an act of Congress and is composed of governors, members of congress, and mayors.

It has a very large and competent research staff. Its chief concerns are those areas of government in which local communities, states, and the federal government all have interests at the present time.

Its aim is to see how far the states and local governments can carry the responsibilities which properly belong to them.

The new study is on the reform of the property tax. The commission's report points out that the amount raised now from the property tax is more than $20 billion.

The assessed value of property subject to the tax, determined by assessors throughout the country, is more than $350 billion. But this represents a market value of three times that amount, or more than a trillion dollars.

WITH THIS vast wealth now under - assessed and inequitably taxed, the commission regards reform in assessments as a major step toward shifting responsibility back to the states and local communities.

At the present time the business of assessments is probably the most unsatisfactory of all government operations.

Assessors are in large part elective. Assessments are ridden with favoritism, special considerations which are not relevant to raising revenue and the lack of training and the incompetence of assessors.

A major need is to establish assessment machinery by state law so that assessors will be trained, professional people removed as far as possible from local political or economic interests.

It's hoped that by such reforms it may be possible to check the growth of federal control of local affairs. Essentially, the money for all revenues — federal, state, and local — is in the local communities.

A first call upon revenues there is to care for local needs. For there is no point in complaining about the centralization of power in Washington as long as there is a lack of disposition or ability on the part of states and cities to shoulder their own burdens.

U.S. Ponders Relationship With Soviet

WASHINGTON

The United States is walking softly and a little self-consciously, like a soldier in gym shoes.

It doesn't know whether it is entering a new era with the Soviet Union.

For 18 years it talked of wanting some atom controls. Now the Soviets have agreed to a nuclear test ban forbidding all tests except those underground.

Last week the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to cooperate in space projects involving weather and communications satellites.

They have agreed on a "hot line" link between Washington an Moscow.

That agreement provides for direct communication between the two capitals as one means of preventing an outbreak of war by accident.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk indicated last Friday a next step might be agreement with the Soviets on safeguards against surprise attack.

All this could mean the two countries finally have learned to be a little more sensible with each other and will try to be even more so.

But there can be no treaty without Senate approval.

Questions raised by senators not only show they doubt Moscow intends to keep the treaty but have misgivings about Soviet intentions to agree to it at all.

Kennedy administration officials, one after the other, assured the Senate they weren't taking anything for granted, either.

They explained they wouldn't be caught napping if the Soviets tried any nuclear tricks.

Yet, this country is in an extremely self-conscious position on the treaty and the Senate is expected to approve overwhelmingly.

The United States, besides long urging some such agreement, for three years, starting in 1958, refrained voluntarily from atmospheric tsets without agreement.

This made the Soviets self-conscious and they also refrained for three years. Then they suddenly began again.

The United States did, too.

Both now promise to give each other at least three months' notice if they want to scrap the treaty by new testing.

The Kennedy administration is in the same fix as everyone else: It doesn't know whether this is the opening to a whole new relationship with the Soviets.

More than that: It seems equally puzzled why Moscow has become so agreeable. Rusk was asked why at this news conference Friday.

He said he thought it a 'little dangerous" to be a mind reader.

But he said he thought it wise to try to explore other possible fields of agreement, such as safeguards against surprise attack.

If there has been no real improvement in relations with the Soviet Union since the end of the war, at least the mood seems better.

George F. Kennan who resigned recently as ambassador to Yugoslavia after 29 years with the State Department, proposed a historic plan in 1947.

It was adopted and became the basis of American foreign policy in dealing with the Soviets, the 'policy of containment."

It called for ringing Communism with military alliances and bases. This was done. One of the alliances was NATO in Western Europe.

Moscow tried to match the NATO front in Europe by creating an alliance of its European satellites in the Warsaw Pact.

The alliances have faced each other since. Last June Premier Khrushchev proposed that the two sides sign a nonaggression agreement.

Sunday, Kennan suggested such an agreement might be to the advantage of the United States if it led to other agreements with Moscow — and if it did not hamper solution of the problem of the two Germanies.

He said a nonaggression pact in itself would not mean much but said he considers a divided Germany the most potentially dangerous question in Europe.

Rear-Guard Action

By Myron Kandel

BONN — West German defense planners are preparing to develop a 50,000-man militia to provide rear-guard protection for the Bundeswehr.

The territorial force — which is expected to win quick Parliamentary approval this fall — was proposed this week by defense minister Kai-Uwe von Hassell. Although the Bundeswehr has been forged in less than 10 years into one of Europe's most powerful fighting forces, defense officials contend it lacks necessary back-up protection.

The militia will be West Germany's first military force not under the direct control of NATO. Such internal protection forces are permitted under the NATO structure.

The force, which has been planned for several years, will be composed largely of small infantry, communications and engineering units. Its job will be to guard communication and supply lines, utilities and key civil defense centers.

THE FIRST units, composed of volunteers who have served in the Bundeswehr or in the German Army of World War II, will probably be set up at the start of 1964. The plan is to enlist 10,000 men by the end of the year and 50,000 by 1966.

The new force will be similar in many respects to the U.S. National Guard and Army Reserve. West German now has no active reserve.

The territorials will serve three-year terms and will be obligated to put in 30 days a year, a 13-day stretch and four-weekends of active duty and nine evening sessions. The men will be paid at Bundeswehr rates.

They will be armed with light weapons, which probably will be stored away when not in use, although some thought has been given to permitting the men to take their hand weapons home, in the manner of the Swiss Territorial Forces.

The men will keep their uniforms and other equipment at home, to enable them to mobilize in three hours.

More than half of the 146 units planned will have about 10 men and only 15 per cent will have more than 100.

West Germany's combat forces now number about 410,000 men, which is short of the NATO goal of 520,000 but proportionally closer than most of the other member nations. With U.S. urging, the West Germans have given precedence to their front-line troops.

This has been done, though, at the expense of back-up troops. It is this situation that the territorial force was designed to correct.

ONLY MEN with prior military service will be accepted into the new force, primarily because the West German army is short of both training personnel and areas.

The defense ministry hopes that the manpower goals will be filled by volunteers. If it isn't, men who have completed their 18 months of military service and still have reserve obligations may be assigned to fill quotas.

There are about 400,000 men with reserve obligations on the Bundeswehr rolls, and this figure is expected to rise to 600,000 by 1966.

Chocolate Soda

On a summer afternoon, with the mercury pushing past 90 and asphalt pavement turning to mush, one way out is to stop for a frosty chocolate soda.

This cooling, energizing drink seems as all - American as the Gay Nineties and apple pie, but it made a transatlantic trip to the United States from Mexico via Spain.

Though the cocoa tree originated somewhere in tropical America, the exact time and place of its domestication remain a mystery. The lima - sized beans have been sown so long in Central and South American lowlands that probably no wild trees still exist. Africa is now the world's largest producer of cocoa.

Chocolate, the bean's chief product, has been eaten as a delicacy for at least 400 years. Aztecs used the beans for currency; 100 purchased a first-rate slave.

A chocolate soda of soris was the royal drink at Montezuma's court in Mexico, though the flavor certainly differed from today's concoction. The Aztec confectioners laced their chocolate with spices, including chili, and whipped it to a froth called chocolatl (foam water).

The Spanish conquistador Cortes may have conqueted the Aztecs, but they conquered his palate with chocolatl served in a golden goblet. Cortes took the bean back home. Soon, Spaniards were quaffing a drink made of chocolate, vanilla extract and sugar.

The Race Is Getting Costly

When President Kennedy started talking about putting the U.S. space program in high gear early in his administration, he had just about everyone pulling for him. National pride, shaken by a Soviet first, was on his side.

Now, with memories of Sputnik I dimmed by intervening triumphs by both nations, many Americans are taking a long second look at the cost of planting the American flag on the moon.

The goal, according to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, could be achieved by 1970. The cost has been estimated at up to $40 billion, or close to $10,000 a mile for a single round trip.

But the cost is being measured in other ways, too.

SOME of the nation's leading civilian researchers are complaining that the moon race is creating a threat of economic stagnation. The problem, they say, lies in the frantic bidding by space and military contractors for scientists and engineers. It's creating a shortage of these key people in private industry. It has sent salaries rocketing upward and, as a result, has slowed new product development for the civilian economy

Company-supported research also is suffering from the ever increasing concentration of government - sponsored research projects aside from the moon race.

Samuel Lebner, a DuPont Co. vice president, summed it up this way for the Wall Street Journal: "Government research programs serve as a brake on research in the private sector." He added that even if corporations had unlimited funds to spend they could not find sufficient personnel to expand research indefinitely.

National Science Foundation figures show that company spending on research totaled $4.5 billion at last count in 1961, a 1 per cent increase over 1960. Salary costs rose 5 per cent during that time. Government-sponsored research, meanwhile, topped $6 billion in 1961.

COMPOUNDING the problem, according to Commerce Department reports, is that little more than half of the 50,000 research engineers needed will be graduated this year, and the space program may take most of them.

While there is little doubt that space research and other government projects will have a beneficial side effect in terms of new civilian products, there seems to be grounds for the fear that essential industrial research is being raided to death.

It will remain for Congress to decide in deliberating increased space race outlays how much of a talent drain civilian economy can stand.

No one wants to take a back seat to Russia, but the race may not be worth the candle if civilian enterprise is stifled along the way.

Pocketbook Pain

Taxpayers looking for a break from the federal government find little to cheer about in a report from two veteran members of the Senate Finance Committee.

Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois and Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tennessee, say they doubt seriously that Congress will get around to cutting taxes this year, despite pressure from President Kennedy.

As if their informed opinions weren't enough to start the pocketbook pains pulsing again, along comes a report from the Tax Foundation, Inc., that the federal tax load for each American will be about $583 next year.

If that doesn't jar you, remember that's a per capita figure — $583 for you, $583 for the wife and $583 for each of the kids.

That's about $12 higher than the per capipa tax bill for this year.

There was a time, long before Dirksen and Gore came along, when things were different.

Take 1840. The per capital tax bite was a mere nibble: 81 cents.

But no deductions.

Why The Technicality?

The most puzzling aspect of the attack by Cuban gunboats and the kidnaping of 19 Cuban refugees on the British island of Auguilla Cay was the failure of U.S. jets to intervene even though the captors were in their gun sights.

A state department press officer said the American aircraft were helpless to intervene because the action was on British territory.

The fact is that the planes were in the immediate vicinity of the Castro raid because they were making a routine Coast Guard check of the island under provisions of a contract with the British government.

If the U.S. had an arrangement with Britain to check the island, we can see no reason why it should not also have undertaken the emergency responsibility of protecting it.

And if it needed protection against encroachments of raiders from Red Cuba, there is all the more reason to provide it in view of our stated policy not to permit Cuban military action outside Cuba.

We can't help but wonder why the U.S. despite its pledge to intervene against any attempt of Castro to export his revolution to other Latin American countries, would stand on a technicality and refuse to thwart any such aggression.

TV Melting Pot

By Stuart Griffin

East is East and West is West, but the twain meet here with great regularity via such TV vehicles as "Wagon Train."

Television offerings from the United States so dominate Japanese TV screens that a third of the prime evening viewing hours have made-in-America labels.

How do the Japanese critics feel about it? They view the airborne American invasion as "Victory by Default." The United States' grip on the domestic TV screen, in the words of a local critic, is that of a "giant manhandling a pygmy."

Local television bumbles along, but the American programs—and they run the well-known gamut from old Hollywood films through situation comedies and Westerns to science-fiction series—cast an evergrowing shadow on the family TV set.

The local critics concede ruefully that there is an obvious reason for the situation. They score made-in-Japan productions in such terms as "ludicrously amateurish" and "woefully inadequate to the public needs."

A TYPICAL U.S. show—take "The Untouchables," for instance—is introduced with a fanfare of publicity as to its popularity in the typical American home. And if there is anything the average Japanese wants, it is to live in a typical American home.

Premieres of key American programs here are attended by top-flight local talent and mobbed by the common folk. The cost of such shows, by Japanese standards, is high. The average half-hour program from the United States goes to a local station for $1,000 and hour-long productions draw upward of $4,000.

But the Japanese stations make money on even the most expensive imports. "Ben Casey" cost $4,500, but the advertisers are happy to not only foot the bill but pay enough extra to leave the stations tidy profits.

The Japanese people are merciless critics of their home-made shows, but an American production can do no wrong. It was made in the U.S.; therefore, it must be good. Japanese producers spend a lot of money but, somehow or other, they can't seem to win the public. Big city, sophisticated Japanese productions are scored in the hinterlands. Conversely, urban audiences hoot derisively at shows originating in the smaller towns.

Additionally, Japanese producers are plagued by a shortage of talent, technical skill and financial backing.

The handful of top-drawer Japanese artists frequently stagger with fatigue at the demands made upon them: they are prone to complain even as they watch their bank accounts fatten.

Studios are limited in numbers and in facilities. Props, sound effects, costumes and the like are but pallid imitations of those used in even the most unpretentious importations from the United States.

AN IMPORTANT factor in the U.S. television invasion is its impact on Japanese life. American styles, habits and notions of living—as reflected by American TV—are spread widely and rapidly among Japanese screen viewers.

The dialogue, of course, is dubbed in Japanese. To an American, watching Broderick Crawford speak in what seems to be colloquial Japanese is a strange experience. But the Japanese accept it without batting an eye.

The answer, perhaps, lies in the fact that the relatively isolated Japanese know their own life too well. They crave foreign experience; curious folk; a glimpse of what lies beyond their shores.

So, from their paper-windowed, straw-matted living rooms, they gaze into a TV tube and journey into that strange, awesome, exotic land, the United States of America.

Charles E. Duryea, who with his brother Frank built the first successful gasoline - driven automobile in 1892, has been called the "Father of the Automobile". Duryea's second model of the 1892-1893 automobile is preserved in the Smithsonian Institution as the first American-made car. Some historians dispute this, and believe the car built by Elwood Haynes in 1893-94 should receive this honor.

The original Joe Miller, whose name now means any old and well-worn joke, was a popular comedian in the early 1700's at the Drury Lane Theater in London. About a year after his death in 1738, a book was published with a collection of witticisms which were given Joe Miller's name.

The Hand That Rocks The Cradle

A Look At A Forgotten Tax Source

By Raymond Moley

In one of his debates with Richard Nixon in 1960, John F. Kennedy said that the property tax was practically exhausted as a source of revenue. On this assumption he advocated vast new federal expenditures for local facilities such as public schools.

It is a pity that Nixon did not remind his opponent that it was the federal income tax, not the property tax, which had reached the point of diminishing returns. Mr. Kennedy has admitted that in asking for tax rate reductions this year.

The soundest of all principles of taxation, expounded ever since Adam Smith, is that a tax should bear as lightly as possible on the sources of production.

From this, the inference can be drawn that the best and most equitable tax is one which bears heavily upon unearned wealth.

Let us bring this principle home to our great urban centers which are demanding so many federal handouts for local improvements.

THOSE CITIES and their suburbs have not grown efficiently and attractively. They have sprawled over great areas, with much of the land therein either vacant or occupied only by obsolete buildings.

A major reason for this is inequity in taxation. Property taxes almost universally are levied upon both buildings and the land under the buildings. Generally the land is under-assessed and new improvements are overassessed for tax purposes.

This enables holders of unused land and slum property to reap profits as the communities grow around them. Show me a vacant piece of land or a slum and I will show you that the owner is speculating on getting a large profit when he sells — an unearned profit.

Most of the great American fortunes in the past and to a degree in the present have been made by holders of land. They have not improved the community. They have profited by the growth of large populations in their areas.

To cure this inequity and to raise more money for local services such as schools, hospitals and streets and also to stimulate private housing, two factors should be considered. The state and local laws should differentiate between the tax on land and the tax on improvements.

Also, in the assessing of property, a heavier burden should rest upon land and lighter burdens should be placed upon improvements.

On a summer afternoon, with the mercury pushing past 90 and asphalt pavement turning to mush, one way out is to stop for a frosty chocolate soda.

This cooling, energizing drink seems as all - American as the Gay Nineties and apple pie, but it made a transatlantic trip to the United States from Mexico via Spain.

Though the cocoa tree originated somewhere in tropical America, the exact time and place of its domestication remain a mystery. The lima - sized beans have been sown so long in Central and South American lowlands that probably no wild trees still exist. Africa is now the world's largest producer of cocoa.

Chocolate, the bean's chief product, has been eaten as a delicacy for at least 400 years. Aztecs used the beans for currency; 100 purchased a first-rate slave.

A chocolate soda of sorts was the royal drink at Montezuma's court in Mexico, though the flavor certainly differed from today's concoction. The Aztec confectioners laced their chocolate with spices, including chili, and whipped it to a froth called chocolatl (foam water).

The Spanish conquistador Cortes may have conqueted the Aztecs, but they conquered his palate with chocolatl served in a golden goblet. Cortes took the bean back home. Soon, Spaniards were quaffing a drink made of chocolate, vanilla extract and sugar.

Talks Slated At Capital On Rail Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — Further railroad negotiating sessions are expected today in an effort to reach agreement on a plan to settle a four-year-old labor dispute and avert a nationwide strike next week.

A union spokesman said Sunday settlement efforts were "on pretty solid ground" after Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz expressed confidence in the good faith of both sides in working out a combined arbitration-negotiation formula for seeking agreement on the work rules dispute.

The spokesman said union negotiators asked to meet with railroad attorneys today to discuss the mechanics of Wirtz' proposal for binding arbitration of the two main issues and negotiation of the rest.

The two major issues which Wirtz proposed be submitted to a six-man arbitration board involve firemen's jobs and train-crew makeup.

The threat of a strike arose over the railroads' plan to put new work rules into effect Aug. 29 that would eliminate the jobs of approximately 32,000 firemen. The five on-train unions say they would strike immediately if the new rules are imposed.

The railroads call the firemen's jobs unnecessary now that diesel engines are widely used. The unions contend the firemen are essential for safe operation of the trains.

Firemens' Vote Ruled As Valid

Lawrenceville firemen at a special meeting Saturday afternoon to discuss the voting procedures at the June elections, found the election was valid and that results will stand, according to the bylaws. In question was the validity of absentee ballots.

It was voted to revise the bylaws, and Jack Stover, president, said they should be ready for a reading at next meeting.

About 50 attended the family picnic held jointly by the firemen and the auxiliary Sunday afternoon at Tomlinson Run State Park.

Gifts were presented Mrs. A. V. Stravinsky, oldest person; Mrs. Laura Barmer, oldest member of the auxiliary, and Clem Barmer, oldest fireman.

Stover and Mrs. Lantha Shenton were committee chairmen for the event.

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—John Holter, 13, was sitting on a window sill in his parents' 10th floor hotel room watching television when suddenly he leaned back and toppled out.

He landed unhurt on a ledge about five feet below — the only ledge between the 10th floor and the ground. A policeman, called by another guest, pulled him back inside.

Storm Halts Try At Swim Under Water

A storm forced an ex-Wellsville man to give up his attempted underwater swim of approximately 75 miles after he had covered about one-third of the distance Sunday along the Florida coast.

Fred (Buddy) Baldasare, 39, was seeking his 11th world record for aquatic feats in an attempted underwater swim from Miami Beach to Riviera Beach, using skin-diver's gear and SCUBA breathing equipment.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Baldasare of Cocoa Beach, Fla., and a cousin of Wellsville Safety-Service Director Fred Baldasare.

He had covered about 25 miles of the journey when a storm broke and forced him to give up on the attempt. Baldasare was accompanied by a 46-foot boat and 15 divers who replenished his oxygen supply along the way.

Forced to give up 50 miles from his destination, Baldasare commented that he had no plans to make another attempt immediately.

He had been training for the feat near his home in Cocoa Beach. Baldasare gained wide publicity last year for an underwater swim of the English Channel, and crossings of the Straits of Messina and the Bosphorus.

The only major U. S. railroad that still has steam locomotives in regular use is the Denver & Rio Grande Western, which has 22 engines on its narrow-gauge division in southern Colorado and northern New Mexico, although not all these are in service.

Beaver Gets Hospital Aid

BEAVER — The U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has allocated $387,373 for a second addition to the Beaver County Hospital, Commissioners, James E. Ross and Eli Corak were advised this morning by Rep. Frank M. Clark.

The allocation is being made under the Public Works Acceleration Program.

The initial grant made last October for the first 100-bed addition was $346,184 and was increased by approximately $17,000 because of contract changes.

Today's grant also includes some provision for additional laundry equipment.

Total federal participation will amount to about $750,000 with the county's share at $1 million. The total construction cost for the two additions will be about $850,000 with another $150,000 needed for equipment.

Controller James F. Tress said the county now has approximately $1 million in its capital improvements fund and that the structure can be completed without any indebtedness to the county.

Completion is scheduled next summer, increasing the total capacity to 420 beds.

Fire Loss Set At $50

LISBON — Fire caused an estimated $50 damage to a floor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Rumer of the Old Steubenville Road, about two miles south, Sunday at 3:15 p. m. Village Fire Chief Thirl Flugan said the flames had been extinguished when firemen arrived. A fire last week burned the stairway in the dining-room.

Haiti Pushes Rebel Troops

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Reinforced government troops were reported pressing a drive today to push exile invaders out of the northeast mountain area around Mont Organise, near the Haiti-Dominican border.

Fresh troops were airlifted out of the capital's commercial airport Saturday and Sunday. The main highway north was jammed with trucks filled with militia units.

A rebel spokesman in Santo Domingo claimed fresh triumphs for Gen. Leon Cantaves' invading force.

The rebels claimed that before pulling out of Mont Organise, they wiped out a government force and shot down one of the government's two operational Mustang fighter planes.

Unconfirmed reports in Port au Prince said a government plane had not returned from a reconnaissance flight over Mont Organise Saturday.

Cantave led a band of exiles into Haiti two weeks ago with the aim of bringing down the dictatorship of President Francois Cuvalier. He failed to rally enough popular support for attacks on major cities and his force took to the mountains to begin a guerrilla campaign. The rebels captured Mont Organise Thursday.

Official sources acknowledged that Duvalier's forces are having trouble handling the situation in the northeast.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I prevent my iron kitchen pots and kettles from rusting?

A. After washing, wipe these vessels thoroughly dry, then apply a little lard or other grease or shortening.

Q. How can I make a good job of cleaning a mop?

A. Try boiling it in an old pail half-full of water, in which a tablespoon of lye has been dissolved. Then rinse thoroughly, and your mop should be as good as new.

Q. How can I tighten my loosened and sagging cane seats on chairs?

A. Go over these cane seats with a rag soaked in hot water, then set the chair out in the sun to dry. This treatment should tighten it up.

Q. How can I prevent brass articles from tarnishing?

A. By covering them with a thin coat of clear varnish. This varnish forms a lacquer that will not wear off unless the article is handled quite frequently.

Q. How can I prevent ribbon ends from fraying?

A. By applying colorless fingernail polish to the ribbon ends.

Q. Is there a good "homemade" method by which I can remedy a persistent drainpipe leak?

A. You can try the "plumber's poultice." Wrap some layers of cloth and wet plaster around the leaky part of the pipe, using strong cord to tie this "bandage" in place, then let dry hard before using the drain.

4 Hurt As Nude Youth's Car Hits North Ohio Home

CLEVELAND (AP) — A nude North Royalton youth whose speeding car crashed into a home in suburban Strongsville was in jail today. Four children asleep in the house were injured, one critically.

Police said the driver, Fred Farkas Jr., 20, was wearing only a pair of cowboy boots.

The accident early Sunday followed a high-speed chase in which pursuing patrolmen said Farkas' car reached 95 miles an hour.

The injured children were sleeping in the living room of the $20,000 home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fondale. Fondale, an excavating contractor, said the house, which was heavily damaged, was not insured.

The most seriously injured was Angelo Milano, 14, who was spending the night at the home. He was reported in critical condition in Southwest Community Hospital with internal injuries.

Treated at the hospital and released were these Fondale children—Carol, 7, David, 16, and Dale, 5.

Fondale, his wife, and four other children escaped injury.

North Royalton police reported they began chasing Farkas' car when it sped through an intersection at 65 miles an hour. The chase continued towards Strongsville, where Farkas' car went out of control on a sharp turn, plowed across 200 feet of lawn and slammed into the Fondale home.

Germany Signs Test Ban Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — West Germany signed the limited nuclear test ban treaty today.

It was the 61st nation to sign in Washington. The German Embassy said West German ambassadors were also signing the document in London and Moscow.

West Germany had been reluctant to sign the treaty fearing that a signature on the document by Communist East Germany would imply Western recognition of that Red regime. After repeated assurances from the United States and Britain, the West German Cabinet decided in Bonn Friday to sign the document.

In a later ceremony, Somalia became the 62nd nation to sign here.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I prevent my iron kitchen pots and kettles from rusting?

A. After washing, wipe these vessels thoroughly dry, then apply a little lard or other grease or shortening.

Q. How can I make a good job of cleaning a mop?

A. Try boiling it in an old pail half-full of water, in which a tablespoon of lye has been dissolved. Then rinse thoroughly, and your mop should be as good as new.

Q. How can I tighten my loosened and sagging cane seats on chairs?

A. Go over these cane seats with a rag soaked in hot water, then set the chair out in the sun to dry. This treatment should tighten it up.

Q. How can I prevent brass articles from tarnishing?

A. By covering them with a thin coat of clear varnish. This varnish forms a lacquer that will not wear off unless the article is handled quite frequently.

Q. How can I prevent ribbon ends from fraying?

A. By applying colorless fingernail polish to the ribbon ends.

Q. Is there a good "homemade" method by which I can remedy a persistent drainpipe leak?

A. You can try the "plumber's poultice." Wrap some layers of cloth and wet plaster around the leaky part of the pipe, using strong cord to tie this "bandage" in place, then let dry hard before using the drain.

4 Hurt As Nude Youth's Car Hits North Ohio Home

CLEVELAND (AP) — A nude North Royalton youth whose speeding car crashed into a home in suburban Strongsville was in jail today. Four children asleep in the house were injured, one critically.

Police said the driver, Fred Farkas Jr., 20, was wearing only a pair of cowboy boots.

The accident early Sunday followed a high-speed chase in which pursuing patrolmen said Farkas' car reached 95 miles an hour.

The injured children were sleeping in the living room of the $20,000 home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fondale. Fondale, an excavating contractor, said the house, which was heavily damaged, was not insured.

The most seriously injured was Angelo Milano, 14, who was spending the night at the home. He was reported in critical condition in Southwest Community Hospital with internal injuries.

Treated at the hospital and released were these Fondale children—Carol, 7, David, 16, and Dale, 5.

Fondale, his wife, and four other children escaped injury.

North Royalton police reported they began chasing Farkas' car when it sped through an intersection at 65 miles an hour. The chase continued towards Strongsville, where Farkas' car went out of control on a sharp turn, plowed across 200 feet of lawn and slammed into the Fondale home.

Farkas was charged with driving left of center, driving while intoxicated, speeding, violating a stop sign, driving without a license and resisting arrest. He was jailed pending investigation.

tana said he expects the Senate to ratify the treaty "with a few extra votes."

Ratification requires a favorable vote of at least two-thirds — 66 if the 99 senators are present. There is one vacancy since the death of Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn.

Leaders have predicted about a week of Senate debate after the hearings end. A vote is expected soon after Labor Day.

The treaty got strong backing Sunday from George F. Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to Moscow. Kennan, who resigned recently as ambassador to Yugoslavia after 29 years of diplomatic service, gave his views on NBC's Meet The Press.

Soviet Gives Aid To Quake-Struck Yugoslavian City

MOSCOW (AP)—On the eve of Premier Khrushchev's visit to Yugoslav President Tito, the Soviet Union today announced the gift of a factory to manufacture prefabricated housing sections for the quake-ravaged city of Skopje.

Observers saw it as a bid to rival the popularity of U.S. aid to the city before Khrushchev tours Skopje later this week.

There already is a Soviet army demolition unit working in Skopje wrecking damaged buildings. The Soviet aid, however, has been overshadowed by the arrival of a U.S. Air Force field hospital immediately after the Skopje earthquake and the later U.S. gift of $50 million for relief.

At the time, Yugoslavs were saying, "The United States sent us a hospital: the Soviet Union a telegram." This was a reference to a cable from Khrushchev expressing condolences.

Khrushchev's plans for traveling to Yugoslavia were secret.

Today, our young ladies take it somewhat for granted that they will receive a sparkling diamond solitaire as an engagement symbol. But how many know this has been the practice only in recent times? Prior to the last century, engagement or bethrothal rings assumed many different forms according to geographical location and local custom.

In Iceland and Syria, the early rings were huge carved circles of ivory, bone or chalcedony, and often large enough to be slipped over the palm of the hand, bracelet fashion. Roman women preferred the iron band, which was chased or engraved for ornamentation.

Many of the early betrothal rings were irregularly shaped or intricately carved and detailed. The Jewish rings were elaborate replicas of temples, standing high up off the finger. French rings were often six or eight sided, and bore meaningful inscriptions for decoration. Twisted gold wire rings were the choice of the Celts in Ireland, and if the couple were too poor to purchase a ring, it could be rented from a local shopkeeper for use during the wedding ceremony.

The first written mention of a diamond in an engagement ring took place in 1477, the gift of Emperor Maximilian to Mary of Burgundy. In the time of Queen Victoria, diamond cluster rings were in vogue, followed by the classic diamond "princess" ring of four or five diamonds set in a row across the finger. After the first World War, the regal single diamond, most often in a Tiffany type setting, became the popular choice. At the present time, there are many lovely and imaginative settings available for the traditional diamond . . . styles to suit every type of hand and fashion taste. Stop in soon to see our selection for ideas if you are one of the lucky ones soon to be engaged.

The treaty got strong backing Sunday from George F. Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to Moscow. Kennan, who resigned recently as ambassador to Yugoslavia after 29 years of diplomatic service, gave his views on NBC's Meet The Press.

Soviet Gives Aid To Quake-Struck Yugoslavian City

MOSCOW (AP)—On the eve of Premier Khrushchev's visit to Yugoslav President Tito, the Soviet Union today announced the gift of a factory to manufacture prefabricated housing sections for the quake-ravaged city of Skopje.

Observers saw it as a bid to rival the popularity of U.S. aid to the city before Khrushchev tours Skopje later this week.

There already is a Soviet army demolition unit working in Skopje wrecking damaged buildings. The Soviet aid, however, has been overshadowed by the arrival of a U.S. Air Force field hospital immediately after the Skopje earthquake and the later U.S. gift of $50 million for relief.

At the time, Yugoslavs were saying, "The United States sent us a hospital: the Soviet Union a telegram." This was a reference to a cable from Khrushchev expressing condolences.

Khrushchev's plans for traveling to Yugoslavia were secret.

Jewelry fashions, facts, fictions

Today, our young ladies take it somewhat for granted that they will receive a sparkling diamond solitaire as an engagement symbol. But how many know this has been the practice only in recent times? Prior to the last century, engagement or bethrothal rings assumed many different forms according to geographical location and local custom.

In Iceland and Syria, the early rings were huge carved circles of ivory, bone or chalcedony, and often large enough to be slipped over the palm of the hand, bracelet fashion. Roman women preferred the iron band, which was chased or engraved for ornamentation.

Many of the early betrothal rings were irregularly shaped or intricately carved and detailed. The Jewish rings were elaborate replicas of temples, standing high up off the finger. French rings were often six or eight sided, and bore meaningful inscriptions for decoration. Twisted gold wire rings were the choice of the Celts in Ireland, and if the couple were too poor to purchase a ring, it could be rented from a local shopkeeper for use during the wedding ceremony.

The first written mention of a diamond in an engagement ring took place in 1477, the gift of Emperor Maximilian to Mary of Burgundy. In the time of Queen Victoria, diamond cluster rings were in vogue, followed by the classic diamond "princess" ring of four or five diamonds set in a row across the finger. After the first World War, the regal single diamond, most often in a Tiffany type setting, became the popular choice. At the present time, there are many lovely and imaginative settings available for the traditional diamond . . . styles to suit every type of hand and fashion taste. Stop in soon to see our selection for ideas if you are one of the lucky ones soon to be engaged.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Should a married man with two children be allowed to date? When I say "date" I mean purely social—drinks, dinner and nothing more.

My husband insists that this is acceptable behavior in our society and that everyone except hyprocrites, prudes and squares does it openly. He also insists that those who don't do it openly are probably doing it secretly.

My husband says he believes in being completely honest with me and he hopes I won't force him to turn into a sneak. He also says a man appreciates his own wife more after he has been out with other women.

This all sounds reasonable to me when he is saying it but when I am alone and start thinking about it it doesn't seem to add up.

I should tell you that I was born in Europe where the ideas of home and family are quite different than in this country. Please advise me.—MRS. B.

-:-

Dear Mrs. B: You sound as if you've just had your brain washed and can't do a thing with it. If you want to go along with this "Design for Living" it's nobody's business but your own. But please don't buy the idea that everybody does it and it's perfectly all right.

The married man who can't give up dating it like the 55-year-old matron who still wears her sorority pin.

Exhausted Granny

Dear Ann: Am I an unnatural grandmother? If you say yes, then there are a lot of us because many of our friends feel the same way.

My married children think it is my responsibility to sit with their youngsters whenever they have something they'd rather do. I have no objection to helping out in a pinch but it seems as if I am getting pinched four and five times a week.

We have two daughters and a son. I am worn to a frazzle running among their homes to care for their children. All the girls play golf, bridge, do club work and brag that their families don't tie them down. Of course they don't. But they tie ME down plenty.

Is there a way to say no without giving the impression I am letting the girls down? My nerves aren't what they used to be and I just can't take raising another set of youngsters.—EXHAUSTED.

-:-

Dear Ex; The Lord knew what He was doing when He gave the young to the young. Some grandmothers love to sit—and for them I say fine. But too many older folks are run ragged and imposed upon by inconsiderate children who dump their responsibilities on tired grandmothers, because they know they can get away with it. Since you obviously feel imposed upon, why don't you just say so?

Slick Chick

Dear Ann: Am I being made a fool? This chick has gone out with me five times. She is a lot of fun and I like her company. But whenever we get to the front door she gives me the bum's rush and before I know it I'm standing on the porch with a silly grin on my face and there is a closed door between us.

This girl is 16 years old and I know darned well she has been kissed. So why am I getting the ice? The guys in our crowd have been giving me the horse laugh and I'm sick of it.

How much longer do you think I ought to go along with the brother-sister act?—NO HITS, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

-:-

Dear No: And how do the guys in the crowd know? Have you been giving them a progress report? Maybe the girl figures her company is sufficient payment for the evening. I think you ought to date her just as long as you're lucky enough to get her to go out with you. She sounds plenty A-okay.

Confidentially

TO ALL TORN UP: Get off your knees, Girl. It's bad for your nylons and worse for your self-respect. This is no way to get a boy friend back.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped,

NEA Invites Teachers To Aid Negroes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Education Association (NEA) invited its 860,000 members today to contribute funds for the education of 1,700 Negro children in Prince Edward County, Va., who have been without public schools for four years.

More than 90 per cent of the NEA members are classroom teachers.

The county padlocked its public schools in 1959 rather than submit to court-ordered integration. The county's 1,500 white children have been attending private segregated schools.

Last week Gov. Albertis S. Harrison announced the formation of the Prince Edward County Free School Association, to operate free schools open to pupils of both races.

NEA officials said there will be "no quotas, and no high pressure" in its appeals for funds.

It has been estimated that roughly $1 million will be needed to operate three of the presently closed public school buildings under a lease arrangement.

Stocks Show General Rise

NEW YORK (AP)—Rails, airlines and selected issues improved as the stock market moved higher in moderately active trading early this afternoon.

The market seemed embarked on its seventh straight daily rise.

The arbitration agreement in the rail arbitration dispute encouraged further buying of rail shares but enough labor-management issues remained so that a possible railway strike Aug. 29 still threatened.

Some of the office equipment, photographic and electric stocks were boosted by speculative activity.

There were plenty of soft spots in the market, however. Steels were sluggish. Chemicals and drugs were mixed. Nonferrous metals showed some softness.

The market was slightly higher from the start and maintained its upside edge with little change on balance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .6 at 277.0 with industrials up 1.0, rails up .6 and utilities up .3.

North American Aviation continued in demand, holding a gain of just below a point.

Chrysler, up about a point, was the best gainer among motors. Ford and General Motors eased from slight early advances.

Polaroid and Corning Glass gained more than 2 while Xerox added close to 3. Eversharp was up about 2, National Airlines more than a point, Control Data a point.

Gains exceeding a point were made also by Illinois Central, Sears Roebuck and IBM.

In speculative demand, Korvette gained a point and Mattel, newly-admitted to Big Board trading, rose more than a point.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .99 at 720.31m

Prices were irregularly higher on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds were fairly steady.

K Again Woos Reluctant Yugoslav

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The often-chilled Soviet-Yugoslav romance basks again this week. Premier Khrushchev is headed for Belgrade, and his visit seems to betoken a significant victory at home for his policies.

Whatever Khrushchev's trouble may be with divisions in the Communist world, his meeting Tuesday with President Tito indicates that in his own bailiwick, Khrushchev is at the pinnacle of his personal political power.

Soviet-Yugoslav relations get a periodic defrosting. The defroster, switched on again about a year ago, is going full blast.

Once again, the recurring Belgrade-Moscow ritual of mutual admiration will arouse questions in the United States, which, since Stalin cast Tito from the Communist fold in 1948, has invested more than a billion dollars in one or another form of assistance to Yugoslavia.

Khrushchev, in Stalin's time, joined with other Soviet leaders in calling Tito a traitor for rejecting total Moscow domination.

Since Stalin's death, Yugoslav-Soviet relations have served as a fair barometer of Khrushchev's authority. When relations with Belgrade were good, he seemed to do well. When relations sagged, Khrushchev appeared to be having difficulties at home.

The Soviet leader ostensibly is on vacation but to the Red Chinese who call Tito the arch-enemy of world communism, Khrushchev hardly could have delivered a more calculated slap in the face.

For almost 10 years Khrushchev has tried to have the Belgrade-Moscow feud swept under the rug. He was just emerging as top man among equals in the post-Stalin "collective leadership" early in 1954 when there was a report of gestures from Tito seeking a reconciliation and a common effort toward world Communist victory.

By November of that year there were clear signs of thaw. Khrushchev and other Kremlin leaders showed up at a Yugoslav reception in Moscow.

The reconciliation faded quickly. Relaxations in the Red bloc after Khrushchev's denunciation of Stalin at the 20th Soviet party congress generated trouble: unrest in Poland and finally revolution in Hungary, which the Soviets stamped out.

The West will eye this week's Khrushchev visit with mixed feelings, remembering that through all the ups and downs of Belgrade-Moscow relations, Tito never deviated from the general line of Kremlin foreign policy.

The meeting could mean the final stage of reconciliation bringing Yugoslavia back to full bloc membership, but could deepen the world Communist rift. It is not difficult to predict the Red Chinese reaction to the Khrushchev visit.

Cuba Claims Plane Attack

HAVANA (AP) — The newspaper Revolucion charged today a plane, probably based in Nicaragua, attacked an oil refinery west of Havana Sunday morning.

It said rockets from the plane set fire to a tank car holding only 8.12 gallons of crude oil and others hit near a dump holding 2 million gallons. The blasts opened a small hole in the big dump, but militia men and workers repaired the damage.

The paper did not report any further damage to the large installation.

The refinery is located at Casilda in the Las Villas Province.

Michigan Wants Champ In Lane, Armistead Bout

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP)—Michigan boxing officials have vowed to stick to their guns and proclaim the winner of tonight's Paul Armstead - Kenny Lane fight "lightweight champion of the world" despite a World Boxing Association ruling.

The WBA decided Sunday to restore the lightweight championship to Carlos Ortiz on the condition that he sign for a match with the winner of the Lane-Armstead bout by the end of the year.

Armstead and Lane, ranked No. 1 and No. 2 respectively by the WBA, went through light limbering up exercises Sunday and had their ears cocked for a word from the WBA convention in Miami Beach.

When the "word" finally came, it was greeted by angry blasts from Lane's manager, Pete Petroskey, and State Boxing Commissioner David Gudelsky.

"I'm sticking to my guns," said Gudelsky. "We're going to declare a lightweight champion Monday night."

Petroskey said he and Lane would consider Ortiz as nothing more than a challenger. If Ortiz wants a fight with Lane, he will have to meet several other contenders first, they added.

Armstead said that if he won, he would be willing to sign immediately for a fight with the Puerto Rican-born lightweight king.

The controversy started about 18 months ago when Ortiz hemmed and hawed his way out of signing for a match with Lane, then ranked the No. 1 contendre.

Crewman's Win Re-Shuffles Top Three-Year-Olds

Throw the names of Chateaugay, Candy Spots, Never Bend, and Crewman and Outing Class into a hat. Shuffle them and pick one.

That is as good a way as any to determine this year's champion 3-year-old thoroughbred in the wake of Crewman's astounding victory in the $81,400 Travers Stakes at Saratoga.

The 94th running of the Travers Saturday was supposed to settle the 3-year-old championship between the so-called Big Three, Chateaugay, Candy Spots and Never Bend.

Crewman, owned by Goerge D. Widener and ridden by Eric Guerin, romped home by 1½ lengths and paid a whopping $41.90 for $2. Adding insult to injury, Hot Dust, another long shot, took the place in the 1¼ mile classic before a record Saratoga crowd of 29,335.

Chateaugay, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Belmont stakes, staggered home third, one length back of Ho tDust. The favored Candy Spots, winner of Preakness, Santa Anite Derby, Florida Derby and Jersey Derby, was fourth, another 2½ lengths back and out of the money for the first time in his career. Choker was fifth and Never Bend, the early leader, faded to last in the race run in 2:02 2-5.

The most sparsely - populated state in the U.S. is Alaska, which has only about one person for every four square miles.

Canada is officially a "two-language" nation—employing both the English and French languages.

Crewman's Win Re-Shuffles Top Three-Year-Olds

Throw the names of Chateaugay, Candy Spots, Never Bend, and Crewman and Outing Class into a hat. Shuffle them and pick one.

That is as good a way as any to determine this year's champion 3-year-old thoroughbred in the wake of Crewman's astounding victory in the $81,400 Travers Stakes at Saratoga.

The 94th running of the Travers Saturday was supposed to settle the 3-year-old championship between the so-called Big Three, Chateaugay, Candy Spots and Never Bend.

Crewman, owned by Goerge D. Widener and ridden by Eric Guerin, romped home by 1½ lengths and paid a whopping $41.90 for $2. Adding insult to injury, Hot Dust, another long shot, took the place in the 1¼ mile classic before a record Saratoga crowd of 29,335.

Chateaugay, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Belmont stakes, staggered home third, one length back of Ho tDust. The favored Candy Spots, winner of Preakness, Santa Anite Derby, Florida Derby and Jersey Derby, was fourth, another 2½ lengths back and out of the money for the first time in his career. Choker was fifth and Never Bend, the early leader, faded to last in the race run in 2:02 2-5.

The most sparsely - populated state in the U.S. is Alaska, which has only about one person for every four square miles.

Canada is officially a "two-language" nation—employing both the English and French languages.

DEAR HELOISE: A customer brought silk drapes into the cleaners where I was working. Rain had watermarked them badly.

I asked a friend (many years in the business) what to do. I was advised nothing would remove water marks.

The lady bought rubbing alcohol and used it to rub the circles and discoloration. All discoloration was completely removed. She then put her drapes in the self-service dry cleaning tubs. Her drapes looked beautiful. She told me she first tested the alcohol on the hem of the drape on the wrong side.

MARIETTA DODSON.

DEAR LADIES: Before using rubbing alcohol on anything be sure to spot test it first on a hidden spot to see if it is safe for your particular material. Some kinds of material do not like alcohol!

DEAR HELOISE: When sewing on fancy net (whether making evening dresses or pretty curtains) I have found that instead of using pins, it is far easier to use small invisible - type hair pins! No basting is necessary at all when using this method and they will not slip out the way a straight pin will. This also works on lace.

MRS. E. COLOR.

DEAR HELOISE: Here is an idea for those who still use the old-time roller shades—whether it be in the kitchen, bedroom or living room.

Every two years when we paper our walls, we cut some of the design from the extra pieces of wallpaper and paste them on the shades!

Example: If we have dainty flowers in the bedroom paper we cut out about five of the little flowers and put them on the inside of the shade and they match the walls.

This idea is adorable in our kitchen. This year our kitchen paper had little pots and pans all over it. We cut out one of each and put them across the bottom of the shade. If you just want to try out the idea, use a piece of scotch tape to hold the designs on for a few days.

MRS. ROSSETTI.

DEAR HELOISE: When bottles that have become cloudy inside from hard water, I have found that I can get them clean and clear again if I pour some full strength ammonia in the bottle and then cap them and let stand awhile. I shake the ammonia in my capped bottle, pour it out and rinse with cold water.

MRS. WILLIAM EICHENLAUB.

DEAR HELOISE: I wonder if your readers know that many fruit pies will not boil over if some cornstarch is added to the fruit and used as a thickening before pouring it into the pie crust?

When making fruit and berry pies I always cut the lower portion of the pie crust larger than the top crust. After putting the fruit in the bottom shell and covering the top of the pie with the other piece of crust, I fold the larger crust back over the top pie shell and pinch it with my fingers.

PEGGY HIGH.

DEAR HELOISE: Here is a tip that I think is quite useful:

When getting into the bathtub throw your bath towel over the curtain rod above the tub. It will steady you getting in and out of the tub!

AVID.

LADIES AND GENTLEMAN OF THE CLAN: One other safety hint: When using water softeners, etc. in your bath . . . be VERY careful not to add too much. Especially if you do not have a mat in the bottom of your tub. When you stand up in the tub before all the water drains out—the tub might be so slippery that you are just liable to fall and injure yourself.

Boy, Girl Slated For Puppies Of White House Dog

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—A Missouri boy and an Illinois girl will get two direct-line descendants of the Soviet space dog Strelka from the White House kennel.

Mark Bruce, 9, of Columbia, Mo., and Karen House, 10, of Westchester, Ill., a Chicago suzurb, expressed amazement Sunday when they learned that Mrs. John F. Kennedy had chosen them from among 5,000 applicants for puppies.

"I can hardly believe it," said Mark, a minister's son, who accidentally killed his dog with a swinging baseball bat this summer.

Karen said she originally got one of the standard White House letters rejecting requests for the pups because of the number of applications. But then came Sunday's telephone call from Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln, President Kennedy's personal secretary, and Karen said, "I'm all mixed up. I'm so happy."

Even her parents couldn't quite believe it—they called the White House to make sure it wasn't a prank.

Of the brown puppies born to Pushinka, daughter of the Soviet dog that orbited the earth, Karen will get Butterfly, a female. Mark will receive Streaker, a male.

Butterfly and Streaker, along with Blackie and White Tips, were born June 14 to Pushinka, a gift to the Kennedys from Soviet Premier Khrushchev. The pups were sired by Charlie, Caroline Kennedy's terrier. Caroline named all four pups.

Mrs. Kennedy in a hospital recovering from the birth of a premature baby who lived less than two days, asked to see some of the letters requesting pups.

Ten were selected for her. From these the First Lady chose Karen and Mark to receive the puppies.

Rights Unit Sets Columbus Rally

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Congress of Racial Equality will stage a "statewide" demonstration at the Governor's Mansion in quest of the governor's support for a fair housing bill, a local Core leader says

The Rev. Arthur Zebbs of Columbus announced plans for the protest Sunday after about 30 members of the Dayton CORE chapter joined some 15 local members in a 2½ hour march outside the mansion.

They carried signs protesting failure of the legislature to enact fair housing legislation and charging that Gov. James M. Rhodes reneged on a promise to support such legislation.

No date has been set for the statewide gathering, but Zebbs said it would be in the near future.

Crash Victim Dies

CLAYHOLE, Ky. (AP) — An Ohio woman is dead as a result of an auto crash Saturday on Ky. 15 a mile and a half south of here. Officers said Lizzie Appostoa of Dayton, Ohio, died about seven hours after the accident in Breathitt County.

Fruitless Hunt Ends For Missing Airplane

CINCINNATI (AP)—The search for the light plane which disappeared Aug. 9 carrying the family of Dr. George McCoy of Muncie, Ind., was officially discontinued Sunday night by Ohio and Indiana Civil Air Patrol wings.

Col. Robert Herweh, head of the Ohio wing, said here the search—longest such air search in the last 10 years—would not be revived unless some concrete leads are developed on the fate of the plane.

Dr. McCoy, his wife and three sons, were flying home from Gallipolis, Ohio, when they disappeared

Apollo Project Pushed

3-Man Moon Shot Adds Up To Costliest Venture

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The launching of the three-man Apollo spaceship toward the moon late in this decade will climax the most expensive peacetime venture ever undertaken by man.

Estimates of the total cost range from $20 billion to $40 billion.

The fat price tag was underscored last week when the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced signing of the largest contract it has ever negotiated. North American Aviation Inc. received the $934.4 million plum for initial development and production of the Apollo craft's two major sections, the command and service modules.

The command module will house the three astronauts en route to the moon and during the return trip. The service module will contain propulsion, power and other supporting equipment.

Earlier, NASA signed a $387.9 million contract with Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp. to develop the third section of the Apolloship, the lunar excursion modulein which two of the pilots will ride to the lunar surface while the main body of the ship orbits the moon.

Both contracts cover work until mid-1965.

The Apollo effort is so widespread that it cannot be handled by a handful of companies. The space agency estimates that more than 20,000 firms and 300,000 people eventually will be involved in the project. That's about $2 billion a year in salaries alone.

North American estimates that about half its contract dollars will go to subcontractors and suppliers.

While North American, Grumman and their subcontractors work on the lunar ferry, hundreds more firms are busy developing the hundreds of thousands of parts, large and small, for the gigantic Saturn V rocket which in two minutes will consume 2-100 tons of fuel to start the astronauts on their way. More than $1.3 billion has been earmarked for Saturn development in this fiscal year. Estimated cost for each launching of the 360-foot vehicles, including booster price, is $100 million.

Before the hardware can be flown, it must be thoroughly groundtested, and launch pads must be built. For fiscal 1964, NASA has requested $800 million to construct test facilities in Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Cape Canaveral and other centers.

The biggest construction expenditure in the next few years will be at Cape Canaveral where nearly one billion dollars will go into launching complexes and support facilities. Already, 5,000 construction workers are on the job. Next year there will be 4,000 more.

Why the high price for the great moon adventure?

Walter C. Williams, associate director of the Manned Spaceflight Center, recently gave this explanation:

"Increases in technology since the days of Ferdinand Magellan and wooden sailing ships have not come easily, nor have they been cheap.

"To be able to fly higher and faster, researchers found that they not only needed a vehicle that would give high engine performance, but one that could protect its pilots from heat and cold and provide an environment in which a pilot or crew could survive."

4 In Ohio Family Die In Minneapolis Crash

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Four members of a vacationing Ohio family were among six persons killed when a car and a pickup truck collided near Minneapolis Saturday.

Killed were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ely of Bedford, Ohio, their young son and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. McKenney of Savage, Minn. The two women were sisters. They had planned a reunion with other members of the family Sunday.

Only survivor of the accident was Miss Jeanette Johnson, 44, of Stillwater, Minn., driver of the truck. She was in critical condition.

Fire Kills Airman

HAMPTON, Va. (AP)—Airman 3.C. Bernard G. Strum of Cleveland, Ohio died early Sunday in a fire in an apartment where he was visiting friends. Authorities said Sturm was on a weekend pass from Langley Air Force Base, Va., where he was temporarily attached to the Air Defense Command.

Pictures Taken Of President's Grandmother, 97

BOSTON (AP) — A little old lady in a blue and white print dress sat for a photograph Sunday with ten lively great-grandchildren.

The lady has sharp twinkling brown eyes and she will be 98 years old on Halloween.

She has 38 great-grandchildren and 27 grandchildren, one of whom is the President of the United States.

"Say, what's going on here?" Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald exclaimed as mothers and children trooped to her upstairs room where she sat in an easy chair in the sunlight.

"We just want to get a picture of you with the children, Grandma," one of the four mothers explained.

Since the children ranged down to three months the mothers held a dress rehearsal downstairs first. Older children were told where to sit in advance.

The children's grandparents, M and Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, are President Kennedy's "Uncle Tom and Aunt Bunny" as signed on a photograph of the chief executive in the dining room of the large, comfortable home in the Dorchester section of Boston.

President Kennedy last visited his grandmother in November 1962.

In Boston over a half century ago, a schoolboy named Joe Kennedy was awarded a prize by Mayor "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald for his baseball batting skill. Joe reached for the prize but his eyes were on the mayor's pretty daughter, Rose. He married her in 1914.

BOSTON (AP) — A little old lady in a blue and white print dress sat for a photograph Sunday with ten lively great-grandchildren.

The lady has sharp twinkling brown eyes and she will be 98 years old on Halloween.

She has 38 great-grandchildren and 27 grandchildren, one of whom is the President of the United States.

"Say, what's going on here?" Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald exclaimed as mothers and children trooped to her upstairs room where she sat in an easy chair in the sunlight.

"We just want to get a picture of you with the children, Grandma," one of the four mothers explained.

Since the children ranged down to three months the mothers held a dress rehearsal downstairs first. Older children were told where to sit in advance.

The children's grandparents, M and Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, are President Kennedy's "Uncle Tom and Aunt Bunny" as signed on a photograph of the chief executive in the dining room of the large, comfortable home in the Dorchester section of Boston.

President Kennedy last visited his grandmother in November 1962.

In Boston over a half century ago, a schoolboy named Joe Kennedy was awarded a prize by Mayor "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald for his baseball batting skill. Joe reached for the prize but his eyes were on the mayor's pretty daughter, Rose. He married her in 1914.

Rights Unit Sets Columbus Rally

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Congress of Racial Equality will stage a "statewide" demonstration at the Governor's Mansion in quest of the governor's support for a fair housing bill, a local Core leader says

The Rev. Arthur Zebbs of Columbus announced plans for the protest Sunday after about 30 members of the Dayton CORE chapter joined some 15 local members in a 2½ hour march outside the mansion.

They carried signs protesting failure of the legislature to enact fair housing legislation and charging that Gov. James M. Rhodes reneged on a promise to support such legislation.

No date has been set for the statewide gathering, but Zebbs said it would be in the near future.

CINCINNATI (AP)—The search for the light plane which disappeared Aug. 9 carrying the family of Dr. George McCoy of Muncie, Ind., was officially discontinued Sunday night by Ohio and Indiana Civil Air Patrol wings.

Officer Slain In Alabama

LITTLEVILLE, Ala. (AP)—An intensive manhunt is under way today for a 40-year-old bootleg suspect officers said shot and killed a sheriff and police chief in a gun battle.

Dead are Colbert County Sheriff Herman Cook and Police Chief Neal Pace of Littleville, a town of about 700.

Pace was the town's only policeman.

In critical condition with a bullet wound in his stomach was Deputy Sheriff Donald Files.

Police said the shooting started when a group of officers approached the shack home of Troy Thornton Sunday in search of bootleg whisky.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Murray said Thornton ran into the thick woods surrounding his shack home and escaped.

Thornton's wife drove voluntarily to Tuscumbia and was held at jail there for the night. No charge was placed against her.

Mrs. Thornton told police she had gone to see Littleville Mayor Frank Bullington and was not present when the shooting occurred.

an injury to the right wrist, and abrasions of the right knee.

Hyman was charged with reckless driving. He forfeited a $32.50 bond today in Municipal Court.

He told Patrolman Paul A. Burson Jr. that he was headed west about 30 miles an hour when he fell asleep and the auto smashed into the utility pole.

A spokesman for the Ohio Power Co. said the crash ripped the middle out of the pole and forced crews to set a new pole rather than make emergency repairs.

A 4,000-volt feeder line was knocked down and the crash also burned out conductors at two other locations besides the one on the pole which was struck, the spokesman said.

Service to the Louthan plant and approximately 25 homes was interrupted from 1 to 4:15 a. m., he added.

City firemen were called to stand by because of the fallen lines.

A drifting auto was blamed for a minor collision on the Thorofare parking lot on Pennsylvania Ave. at 5:24 p. m. Saturday.

A 1957 sedan owned by Richard Stewart, 511 Palissey St., drifted from its parking place and struck the parked 1963 four-door of Robert Neville, 1513 Wyoming Ave., damaging the front end. The right tail-light of the Stewart auto also was damaged, police said.

The problem in sinking the 28-inch bore, said Charmbury, is two-fold: Make certain it is accurate and make certain no new slide is started.

"If we put the 28-inch rotary drill in the same spot as the six inch hole will we reach you okay?" Gordon Smith, assistant state secretary of mines who is directing the digging operation, asked Fellin.

"It will be close enough," said Fellin.

After the six-inch hole broke through, John Biros, a friend of Fellin, shouted into the hole. It was drilled to a depth of 331 feet.

"Who are you?" came the reply from the mine. "We're all okay."

Biros leaped back from the hole and exclaimed: "They are alive! I hear them! They're alive."

The dramatic contact with the men brought relief to a vigil which had lasted 134 hours and 25 minutes.

Wallace Sets Protest Move

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — A civil rights group planned to demonstrate at the Southern Governors Conference today against possible adoption of pro-segregation resolutions.

Nothing touching on civil rights is on the conference program. But Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama has announced plans to introduce resolutions on several racial issues.

They include protests of the planned Aug. 28 civil rights march on Washington and the Defense Department order under which cities with segregated facilities can be declared off limits to military personnel.

Resolutions are considered first by the resolutions committee, which makes its report Wednesday, final day of the meeting. A three-fourths vote is needed for adoption by the conference.

Wallace and Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi also will try to win support for their independent presidential elector plan.

But the conference chairman, Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas, said Sunday he doubted the plan would succeed in his state.

Faubus, a Democrat, told a news conference he might vote Republican in next year's presidential election.

"If I felt the Republican nominee offered the greater hope for the country than the Democratic nominee, then I would support the Republican," said Faubus.

Marcia Dickey, 19, of Columbiana escaped injury when her car also skidded off a curve and overturned, hitting a mailbox on Route 416 just south of Leetonia. She was cited for speeding.

Pasquale Montesanto, 27, of Cleveland was arrested for failure to yield the right-of-way after his car rammed a station wagon operated by Charles Bibbee, 47, of R. D. 1 at Glenmoor.

Montesanto was headed west on the Y. & O. Rd. and failed to halt for a stop sign at the intersection with Route 267, the patrol said. He was charged with a stop sign violation. About $200 damage resulted to each vehicle.

Montesanto was fined $10 and costs today by Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff after pleading guilty to a charge filed by the patrol.

Kenneth Krutilla, 22, of Weirton escaped injury Saturday morning when he pulled to the right because of a passing car then skidded into a ditch and tree along Township Rd. 1000 about a quarter mile west of Route 30. Damage to his sports car was set at $200.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Encourage Your Creative Child

The youngster of two, three or four may be creating while drawing or scribbling on the wallpaper, scratching a picture on polished furniture or setting fire to some paper with a match or lighter.

Dr. Garry Meyers

At six, eight or twelve, he may be creating if he cuts a picture from a beautiful book or makes a bib or apron for a doll from the curtains or removes a choice picture from the wall, takes it out of its frame, and puts in it another picture he has found, drawn or painted. But in such instances he is also destroying, and his destruction may be costly.

—:—

OBVIOUSLY, certain limitations must be placed on the child, for his own safety and for the rights and possessions of others. The wise parent skillfully teaches him desirable limitations without hampering his creativity.

Knowing without doubt what the few things are he must not do, he must feel free to do the many other things which give him pleasure.

He needs to be provided with proper materials with which he can safely create. He needs to get great satisfaction from his creation. This satisfaction may be enhanced by your expressions of pleasure over what he has created.

In order to create with words or things, he must have curiosity and be eager to explore, to gain new experiences, to seek new information, whether he is 2, 12 or 20.

The child benefits not only from his exploring and experimenting with things but also from questions he asks you and others, and later from his seeking answers to his questions from the printed page.

How freely and richly he grows in creativity depends largely on how comfortable and companionable he feels toward you and other persons dealing with him. Foremost is his relationship to you, how secure he feels as he explores, experiments, expresses his emotions and ideas or asks questions in your presence.

EVEN IN the nursery school or kindergarten, the child rarely has as much urge and opportunity to create as he has in an ideal home. And, as he advances to higher grades, he may feel less and less opportunity and less to urge to create.

Although hampered by the necessity to conform to what other children are doing at school and with his readiness there to imitate what others are doing, an occasional child at school is stimulated to think, talk, write and act creatively (different from the other children), thanks to a great teacher.

She does encourage some conformity in the learning of basic skills as in reading, spelling and number work. But she also finds many ways, as when writing or making things with the hands, to encourage diversity. For instance, she does not try to have her children all draw the same picture or make the same jack-o-lantern.

When her children have a homework assignment which requires searching for materials, organizing and presenting them in a report, she encourages each child to invent his own ways, within certain limitations, in pursuing such a project. Here the parent also can help the child in creative growth.

Debris Of Lost Plane Discovered

TOKYO (AP) — Search planes criss-crosing waters near Hachijo Island, 100 miles south of Tokyo, Sunday reported finding debris believed to be from the Fujita Airlines plane missing with 19 persons aboard.

Maritime safety board officials said search planes had found three seats of the type used on the missing De Haviland "Heron" and an oil slick.

Army Silent On Reported Valachi Move

FARMINGDALE, N.J. (AP) — By closing the Monmouth Airport to civilian airplanes for 15 minutes Sunday, the Army opened speculation concerning the whereabouts of underworld informer Joseph Valachi.

Valachi has been telling federal authorities what he knows of the operations of a national crime syndicate.

The 60-year-old convict was doing his talking at Ft. Monmouth, where he was under close guard at the Army's Signal Corps center.

During the 15 minutes that Army authorities curtailed civilian use of Monmouth Airport here, two military planes took off from the field.

The airport is nine miles southwest of Ft. Monmouth.

A spokesman at Ft. Monmouth declined to answer questions on Valachi's whereabouts or the possibility that he had been moved. The spokesman referred questioners to the Justice Department in Washington.

In the capital, neither the Justice Department nor the Pentagon would comment.

It was learned last week that Valachi had been brought to Ft. Monmouth from the federal penitentiary in Atlanta, where he was serving a life sentence for killing a fellow inmate.

The underworld reportedly has placed a $100,000 price tag on the informer's head.

2 Balloonists Escape Death

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—Accidents sent two balloonists tumbling earthward in their attempts at setting records during the week end's air show here.

A parachute floated South Dakotan Don Piccard, 37, safely to earth when the aluminum gondola broke loose from his helium-filled balloon at 200 feet. The parachute device was automatic.

Minnesotan Ralph Burgard, 36, suffered a broken ankle and toe when he plunged 60 feet after a seam on his home-made balloon ripped Saturday.

Lucas Reported With Cincinnati

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Warren Johnson, sports director of radio station WPFB, broadcast today that Jerry Lucas has signed to play basketball with the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association.

Johnson said his information came from a source close to the former Ohio State All-America player.

Johnson's broadcast came only a short time after Thomas Grace, executive vice president of the Royals had announced there would be a news conference at 12:30 p.m., EST.

It also was reported that the deal for sale of the Royals to Warren Hensel now has been completed. That transaction has been hanging fire for weeks and Hensel had expressed belief he would be able to sign Lucas.

The Royals have owned draft right to Lucas since before his graduation from college. After graduation, however, he elected to sign with the Cleveland Pipers of the defunct American League but never played a game because that league folded.

He played no pro basketball during last season.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Dr. Garry Meyers

The youngster of two, three or four may be creating while drawing or scribbling on the wallpaper, scratching a picture on polished furniture or setting fire to some paper with a match or lighter.

At six, eight or twelve, he may be creating if he cuts a picture from a beautiful book or makes a bib or apron for a doll from the curtains or removes a choice picture from the wall, takes it out of its frame, and puts in it another picture he has found, drawn or painted. But in such instances he is also destroying, and his destruction may be costly.

OBVIOUSLY, certain limitations must be placed on the child, for his own safety and for the rights and possessions of others. The wise parent skillfully teaches him desirable limitations without hampering his creativity.

Knowing without doubt what the few things are he must not do, he must feel free to do the many other things which give him pleasure.

He needs to be provided with proper materials with which he can safely create. He needs to get great satisfaction from his creation. This satisfaction may be enhanced by your expressions of pleasure over what he has created.

In order to create with words or things, he must have curiosity and be eager to explore, to gain new experiences, to seek new information, whether he is 2, 12 or 20.

The child benefits not only from his exploring and experimenting with things but also from questions he asks you and others, and later from his seeking answers to his questions from the printed page.

How freely and richly he grows in creativity depends largely on how comfortable and companionable he feels toward you and other persons dealing with him. Foremost is his relationship to you, how secure he feels as he explores, experiments, expresses his emotions and ideas or asks questions in your presence.

EVEN IN the nursery school or kindergarten, the child rarely has as much urge and opportunity to create as he has in an ideal home. And, as he advances to higher grades, he may feel less and less opportunity and less to urge to create.

Although hampered by the necessity to conform to what other children are doing at school and with his readiness there to imitate what others are doing, an occasional child at school is stimulated to think, talk, write and act creatively (different from the other children), thanks to a great teacher.

She does encourage some conformity in the learning of basic skills as in reading, spelling and number work. But she also finds many ways, as when writing or making things with the hands, to encourage diversity. For instance, she does not try to have her children all draw the same picture or make the same jack-o-lantern.

When her children have a homework assignment which requires searching for materials, organizing and presenting them in a report, she encourages each child to invent his own ways, within certain limitations, in pursuing such a project. Here the parent also can help the child in creative growth.

Debris Of Lost Plane Discovered

TOKYO (AP) — Search planes criss-crosing waters near Hachijo Island, 100 miles south of Tokyo, Sunday reported finding debris believed to be from the Fujita Airlines plane missing with 19 persons aboard.

Maritime safety board officials said search planes had found three seats of the type used on the missing De Haviland "Heron" and an oil slick.

Army Silent On Reported Valachi Move

FARMINGDALE, N.J. (AP) — By closing the Monmouth Airport to civilian airplanes for 15 minutes Sunday, the Army opened speculation concerning the whereabouts of underworld informer Joseph Valachi.

Valachi has been telling federal authorities what he knows of the operations of a national crime syndicate.

The 60-year-old convict was doing his talking at Ft. Monmouth, where he was under close guard at the Army's Signal Corps center.

During the 15 minutes that Army authorities curtailed civilian use of Monmouth Airport here, two military planes took off from the field.

The airport is nine miles southwest of Ft. Monmouth.

A spokesman at Ft. Monmouth declined to answer questions on Valachi's whereabouts or the possibility that he had been moved. The spokesman referred questioners to the Justice Department in Washington.

In the capital, neither the Justice Department nor the Pentagon would comment.

It was learned last week that Valachi had been brought to Ft. Monmouth from the federal penitentiary in Atlanta, where he was serving a life sentence for killing a fellow inmate.

The underworld reportedly has placed a $100,000 price tag on the informer's head.

2 Balloonists Escape Death

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—Accidents sent two balloonists tumbling earthward in their attempts at setting records during the week end's air show here.

A parachute floated South Dakotan Don Piccard, 37, safely to earth when the aluminum gondola broke loose from his helium-filled balloon at 200 feet. The parachute device was automatic.

Minnesotan Ralph Burgard, 36, suffered a broken ankle and toe when he plunged 60 feet after a seam on his home-made balloon ripped Saturday.

Lucas Reported With Cincinnati

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Warren Johnson, sports director of radio station WPFB, broadcast today that Jerry Lucas has signed to play basketball with the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association.

Johnson said his information came from a source close to the former Ohio State All-America player.

Johnson's broadcast came only a short time after Thomas Grace, executive vice president of the Royals had announced there would be a news conference at 12:30 p.m., EST.

It also was reported that the deal for sale of the Royals to Warren Hensel now has been completed. That transaction has been hanging fire for weeks and Hensel had expressed belief he would be able to sign Lucas.

The Royals have owned draft right to Lucas since before his graduation from college. After graduation, however, he elected to sign with the Cleveland Pipers of the defunct American League but never played a game because that league folded.

He played no pro basketball during last season.

Dodgers Sweep Pair From Mets To Take 6 Game Lead

Yanks 'Wash' White Sox Twice To Go In Front By 10½

Cardinals, G-Men Tied After Rain

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hardly a Dodger is left who remembers Bobby Thomson's home run at the Polo Grounds.

The current crop, safely settled in Los Angeles, has nothing but fond memories of the battered old ball yard on the Harlem River where the hapless New York Mets play friendly host.

Dodger hearts grew fonder of the place Sunday as the National League leaders played their last two games ever at the Polo Grounds, won them both, stretched their lead to six full games and salvaged a road trip that had started in a fashion shaky enough to recall 1951, where Thomson homered them out of the flag.

The scores were 7-0 and 3-2, to complete the four-game sweep in the park which will be torn down for a housing project at the end of this season. That made it eight straight for the Dodgers in New York, and gave them a 10-6 record for the road trip.

The San Francisco Giants and the St. Louis Cards, locked in second place, were rained out. They will try to get the game in today, before the Cards invade Los Angeles for a crucial set.

In other National League games the Chicago Cubs dealt the pennant hopes of the Cincinnati Reds a crushing blow with a double victory, 2-1 and 4-0. The Philadelphia Phils won their seventh straight, 3-1 over Pittsburgh, and the Milwaukee Braves took their sixth in seven games, 3-2 over Houston.

Don Drysdale threw a three-hitter for the Dodgers in the opener with the Mets for his 16th victory. The hits were all singles, he did not walk a man and no Met got past first base. Doug Camilli's two-run homer in the sec off loser Al Jackson was all the margin Drysdale needed.

Rookie Dick Calmus, a 19-year-old right-hander, pitched five innings of one-hit relief to win the nightcap. Pete Richert, who started, was lifted for a pinch hitter in the fifth.

Warren Spahn won his 342nd career victory against the Colts, as he scattered seven hits and ran his season mark to 15-5.

Casper Fights Injury, Wins At Hartford

By LOU BLACK

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—For three months, Billy Casper, a round man from Bonita, Calif., suffered pain and anxiety from a hand injury.

In the final round of the Tournament of Champions on May 5, he put his 210 pounds into a drive. Something gave. He found himself with an inflamed tendon sheath in his left hand.

For many weeks since the accident, Casper wasn't able to grip a golf club.

The 32-year-old Californian, a former U.S. Open champion, wondered whether his golf career had ended.

But one day the hand began to respond to medical treatment and after a few practice sessions, he accepted a challenge to play Jack Nicklaus in an exhibition. The hand hurt a little, but he shot a 68.

Deciding to test the hand in PGA tournament play again, he entered the $40,000 Insurance City Open and won top money, $6,400. The tourney ended Sunday.

Casper, with a 13-under par 271, downed big George Bayer, the third round leader, by a stroke. Wes Ellis, who set the pace in the first and second rounds, was third with 275, and Doug Ford was fourth with 277.

The victory brought Billy's career earnings to $272,229. Bayer collected $3,600, Ellis $2,500 and Ford $2,200.

Jack Nicklaus, the PGA and Masters champ, picked up $1,675 for his 278 and National Open king Julius Boros got $960 for his 281 over the par 72, 6,515-yard Wethersfield Country Club course.

Fight Results

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — Luis Rodriquez, 151½, Cuba, won a technical knockout over Denny Moyer, 157½, Portland, Ore., 9.

TOKYO — Takeshi Nakamura, 113, Japan, outpointed Puntip Keosurya, 112½, Thailand, 10.

SANREMO, Italy — Salvatore Burrini, 117, Italy, stopped Jacques Jacob, 117, France, 9.

Pony League Faces Bridgeport, Conn.

Bridgeport, Conn. will be East Liverpool's opponent in the first round of the Division Pony League playoffs Tuesday night at 8:30 at Washington, Pa.

Bridgeport captured the Northern Regional title Sunday at Quebec, Canada. It was reported earlier that East Liverpool would meet Quebec but the local nine faces the winner of that Region which is Bridgeport.

The Connecticut nine brings an 8-1 record into the Division tournament.

Bridgeport defeated Stafford, Conn. 5-1, Norwalk, Conn., 4-1 and Long Meadows, Mass., 2-0.

The only loss came at the hands of Abington, Mass., an 8-4 margin, but the Bridgeport team came back to win two games by 6-5 and 4-3 scores.

In the Region tournament at Quebec, Bridgeport defeated St. Laurant Quebec, 15-1, Buffalo 5-2 and Rome N. Y., 7-4.

Manager Dean Densmore announced today that either Jack Myler or Jeff Hall, a couple of righthanders, would start on the mound tomorrow night.

Hall pitched a no-hitter in his first start at New Castle but was knocked out of the box after four innings in his last appearance last Tuesday against the same New Castle team. Myler came in for a two inning relief stint in the same game which East Liverpool lost 10-1.

While East Liverpool plays the 8:30 game Tuesday, Hagerstown, Md. will meet Columbia, N. C. the survivor from the Charlotte, N. C. Regional in the first game at 6 p. m.

Bombers Show Biggest League Lead Since 1958 Season

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It had all the makings of a real tough one. Fourteen games in 13 days, bouncing back and forth from one coast to the other on a hectic road trip covering 7,000 miles.

But for the New York Yankees, it was a pleasure jaunt that turned the American League race into even more of a runaway.

They capped the journey Sunday with a doubleheader sweep at Chicago, giving them a neat 10-4 mark for the trip that carried them to Washington, to Los Angeles and back to Boston before the four-game windup at Comiskey Park.

By whipping the White Sox 8-2 and 8-4, the Yanks built their league lead to 10½ games—the biggest margin they've had at this stage of the season since 1958. The double loss dropped Chicago into a tie for second with the Minnesota Twins, who were trimmed by Washington 7-3.

Detroit shaded the Los Angeles Angels 3-2 behind Don Mossi's nifty relief pitching. Home runs by Jose Azcue and Willie Kirkland helped Cleveland over Boston 7-4 and Kansas City held off Baltimore 5-4.

The Yankees, 27-25 on the road before the latest trip, jumped ahead early in both games before the capacity crowd of 44,659 at Comiskey Park and never let the White Sox get too close.

Bobby Richardson had three Yankee hits in the opener and drove in three runs in the second game, which was highlighted by Elston Howard's 4-for-4 performance—a homer, a double, two singles a sacrifice fly.

Ralph Terry won his 14th and Jim Bouton his 16th, but both right-handers needed relief help. Ray Herbert and Joel Horlen were the losers.

The Tigers climbed into seventh place ahead of the Angels. Detroit starter Al Koch delivered two hits and drove in the deciding run in the fourth, but gave way to Mossi in the bottom of the inning and the veteran lefty blanked the Angels the rest of the way. Tiger rookie Gates Brown went 4-for-4 with a triple and three singles.

Palmer Meets Rodgers, Cupit In Playoff Set

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer, who plays at his best over the tough Firestone Country Club course, meets Jacky Cupit and Phil Rodgers in a playoff Tuesday for the fourth and final spot in next month's World Series of Golf.

Palmer, the leading money winner this season with $96,955 in official PGA prize earnings, has won six tournaments, but not the major ones that would earn him a spot in the World Series.

The other three places in the Sept. 7-8 World Series, which also will be played at Firestone's 7,165-yard par 70 layout, will be filled by U.S. Open champion, Julius Boros, British Open winner Bruce Charles and Jack Nicklaus, who captured the PGA and Masters Titles.

Nicklaus' double victory left only one spot open in the fancy foursome. To fill the final berth, an 18-hole match was set up among the players who lost the playoff with Boros for the U.S. Open—Palmer and Cupit—and the loser in the British Open playoff, Rodgers.

East Liverpool Post 374's 14-game winning streak came to an end Sunday when Salem behind the three-hit pitching of Kendrick blanked the locals, 7-0, at Salem.

Kendrick allowed only three singles as Salem came up with 11 hits. The Salem hurler also led his team at the plate with three hits in four trips.

Jim Hissom was the starting and losing hurler.

Yanks 'Wash' White Sox Twice To Go In Front By 10½

Cardinals, G-Men Tied After Rain

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hardly a Dodger is left who remembers Bobby Thomson's home run at the Polo Grounds.

The current crop, safely settled in Los Angeles, has nothing but fond memories of the battered old ball yard on the Harlem River where the hapless New York Mets play friendly host.

Dodger hearts grew fonder of the place Sunday as the National League leaders played their last two games ever at the Polo Grounds, won them both, stretched their lead to six full games and salvaged a road trip that had started in a fashion shaky enough to recall 1951, where Thomson homered them out of the flag.

The scores were 7-0 and 3-2, to complete the four-game sweep in the park which will be torn down for a housing project at the end of this season. That made it eight straight for the Dodgers in New York, and gave them a 10-6 record for the road trip.

The San Francisco Giants and the St. Louis Cards, locked in second place, were rained out. They will try to get the game in today, before the Cards invade Los Angeles for a crucial set.

In other National League games the Chicago Cubs dealt the pennant hopes of the Cincinnati Reds a crushing blow with a double victory, 2-1 and 4-0. The Philadelphia Phils won their seventh straight, 3-1 over Pittsburgh, and the Milwaukee Braves took their sixth in seven games, 3-2 over Houston.

Don Drysdale threw a three-hitter for the Dodgers in the opener with the Mets for his 16th victory. The hits were all singles, he did not walk a man and no Met got past first base. Doug Camilli's two-run homer in the sec off loser Al Jackson was all the margin Drysdale needed.

Rookie Dick Calmus, a 19-year-old right-hander, pitched five innings of one-hit relief to win the nightcap. Pete Richert, who started, was lifted for a pinch hitter in the fifth.

Warren Spahn won his 342nd career victory against the Colts, as he scattered seven hits and ran his season mark to 15-5.

Casper Fights Injury, Wins At Hartford

By LOU BLACK

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—For three months, Billy Casper, a round man from Bonita, Calif., suffered pain and anxiety from a hand injury.

In the final round of the Tournament of Champions on May 5, he put his 210 pounds into a drive. Something gave. He found himself with an inflamed tendon sheath in his left hand.

For many weeks since the accident, Casper wasn't able to grip a golf club.

The 32-year-old Californian, a former U.S. Open champion, wondered whether his golf career had ended.

But one day the hand began to respond to medical treatment and after a few practice sessions, he accepted a challenge to play Jack Nicklaus in an exhibition. The hand hurt a little, but he shot a 68.

Deciding to test the hand in PGA tournament play again, he entered the $40,000 Insurance City Open and won top money, $6,400. The tourney ended Sunday.

Casper, with a 13-under par 271, downed big George Bayer, the third round leader, by a stroke. Wes Ellis, who set the pace in the first and second rounds, was third with 275, and Doug Ford was fourth with 277.

The victory brought Billy's career earnings to $272,229. Bayer collected $3,600, Ellis $2,500 and Ford $2,200.

Jack Nicklaus, the PGA and Masters champ, picked up $1,675 for his 278 and National Open king Julius Boros got $960 for his 281 over the par 72, 6,515-yard Wethersfield Country Club course.

Friendly Bowling In Tourney Split

Friendly Bowling - Merchants, East Liverpool's entry in the Northeastern Ohio District ABC tourney at Warren, split in two games over the weekend of the double elimination play.

East Liverpool staked him to a 4-0 lead by scoring three times in the first inning and once in the third. The big blow for the locals was by Frasier who belted a home run and had a single for a two-for-three day. Ensinger who came up with two hits in East Liverpool's seven-hit attack.

Cumberland VFW Wins Chester League Playoff

New Cumberland, which finished second in the regular season standings, didn't have to play second fiddle to anyone in the playoff series.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. What is a quick and easy way to fill in small nail holes and cracks in white plastered walls?

A. Just by patting in some ordinary dampened baking soda. It's a good idea to fill up these holes and cracks in this manner before painting the wall.

Q. What is the proper way to iron double thicknesses, such as collars, cuffs, pockets, hems, and the like?

A. Iron first on the wrong side, then on the right side.

Q. Is there any way I can renovate some old, hardened glue?

A. Try placing a few drops of vinegar in the glue container.

Q. How can I avoid any unpleasant odors in my kitchen drain?

A. If you'll put a handful of baking soda into the sink overnight, it will purify and clean that unfragrant drain.

Q. Please give suggestions on the cleaning of a stone or brick fireplace?

A. Hot water and soap, applied with a stiff brush, are often adequate. If not mix up a paste of powdered pumice and concentrated ammonia, and cover the smoked areas with this. Let stay for an hour or two before scrubbing off with hot water and soap.

Q. Is there any way I can renovate dented table tennis balls?

A. These dented balls often can be restored to their original roundness by pouring boiling water over them. The heat of the water expands the air inside the balls, and the dents pop out.

Q. How can I prevent cream from curdling when poured over acid berries or fruits?

A. By mixing a pinch of baking soda with the cream before pouring.

Jury To Get Butts' Case

ATLANTA (AP) — Whether a magazine publishing firm will have to pay Wally Butts $10 million for an article charging he helped rig a football game was a decision facing 12 federal court jurors today.

All that remained before the jury began deliberation in Butts' libel suit was completion of arguments by attorneys and a charge to the jurors by District Judge Lewis R. Morgan.

The jury has heard testimony by 27 witnesses during the past two weeks in Butts' suit against Curtis Publishing Co., owner of the Saturday Evening Post which charged the former University of Georgia athletic director conspired with Alabama Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant to rig the 1962 football game between their schools.

Butts and Bryant denied the charges on the stand.

Butts' attorneys pictured him Friday as the victim of a Post gimmick yielding "untold millions of dollars in publicity."

Attorneys for Curtis attacked Butts' character.

Both sides were allowed one hour each today to complete their arguments.

Akron Man Arrested In Race Track Case

NEW CUMBERLAND — Thomas E. Sexton of Akron is due for a hearing next Monday at 11 a. m. on a charge of being drunk and disorderly at Waterford Park race track Saturday.

Track detectives cited Sexton in connection with the fall of a flower pot from a catwalk near the clubhouse after the sixth race.

The container fell 14 feet and narrowly missed jockey Floyd Green returning to his quarters on foot in a narrow passageway beneath the catwalk officials said.

William C. Graham of Chester, track detective, filed the charge and Sexton was taken into custody by Hancock County sheriff's deputies. He posted $250 bond for a hearing before Squire John D. Herron.

Firm Hit In Series Of Thefts, Vandalism

A series of thefts and vandalism have occurred at Patterson-Wetzel Dry Cleaners at E. 3rd and Walnut St. over the last two weeks, William D. Wetzel, one of the owners, reported to police late Saturday morning.

Wetzel told officers an electric clock valued at $25, a new plastic chair, a plastic clothes basket, three wash pans and an ash tray have been stolen.

Fake money has been put into a dollar changing machine, signs removed and a water hose and restroom door damaged, Wetzel said.

Ralston Emerges As New Star On U.S. Net Front

By JAMES BACON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States Davis Cup team, 4-1 winners over a strong Mexico team in the American Zone semi-finals of the international competition, is considered Australia-bound.

The experts had prdeicted that the winner of the matches at the Los Angeles tennis club would eventually make the challenge round with the perennial Australian champions.

With the emergence of Dennis Ralston as a new giant of U.S. tennis, the experts are more convinced than ever.

Ralston, once the terrible-tempered question mark of the Davis Cuppers and last year's goat in the U.S. loss to Mexico, was the hero of the 1963 victory.

After Rafael Osuna, the Mexican ace, upset top-rated Chuck McKinley in Friday's opening singles match, Ralston conquered Antonio Palafox to give the United States a 1-1 split.

Then the steady, solid play of Ralston earned the U.S. team the key doubles win over the favored Mexican team of Osuna and Palafox, the Wimbledon champions.

And on Sunday, Ralston gave fans the finest exhibition of amateur tennis seen here in years as he beat Osuna 6-1, 6-3, 7-5. The win, which gave the Americans a 3-1 edge, clinched the competition.

McKinley beat Palafox 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 in the finale.

Osuna, forced to carry the load for Mexico, played brilliantly in beating McKinley. But he couldn't do it all in the doubles, and was pressured off balance by the relentless Ralston on Sunday.

Osuna and Ralston room together at the University of Southern California. They led USC to the NCAA doubles title and in 1960 won the Wimbledon doubles title.

Friendly Bowling In Tourney Split

Friendly Bowling - Merchants, East Liverpool's entry in the Northeastern Ohio District ABC tourney at Warren, split in two games over the weekend of the double elimination play.

Manager John Andrason's squad upened Warren, 4-1 ,Saturday but ran into a strong Cherol Motors nine of Youngstown and dropped a 9-4 decision Sunday.

Keister, who hurled for East Palestine during the County-City League season, fanned 11 batters and spaced six hits in winning Saturday's battle.

East Liverpool staked him to a 4-0 lead by scoring three times in the first inning and once in the third. The big blow for the locals was by Frasier who belted a home run and had a single for a two-for-three day. Ensinger who came up with two hits in East Liverpool's seven-hit attack.

Youngstown jumped out to a 9-0 lead before Friendly Bowling scored in Sunday's game. Three runs came across in the first inning, one in the second, four in the sixth and one in the top of the seventh.

East Liverpool scored all its runs in the seventh inning when hard hitting Gary Berhar blasted a grand slam home run.

Five errors led to East Liverpool's downfall because the locals outhit Youngstown, 11-7. Prentice collected three safeties while Murawski had two.

The Warren tournament resumes next week.

Cumberland VFW Wins Chester League Playoff

New Cumberland, which finished second in the regular season standings, didn't have to play second fiddle to anyone in the playoff series.

The New Cumberland nine captured the playoff championship in the Chester City Softball League with a 4-0 victory over Gallagher's Saturday.

The combined pitching of Hendershot and Paytors featured the New Cumberland victory.

Berkhimer homered and Jack Thayer and P. Glover smacked doubles for the winners.

Townley and Jackson had two hits each for Gallagher's and Thompson was the losing pitcher.

New Cumberland climbed into the finals by downing Chester Merchants, 3-2, and Local 647, 1-0. Thayer's home run in the last of the seventh inning won the 1-0 game. Evans was the winning pitcher in that one.

Gallagher's made it to the finals with a 5-3 victory over Amvits then blasted league champ East End, 10-0. McGaffic and Thompson gained the pitching victories for Gallagher's on their way to the finals.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. What is a quick and easy way to fill in small nail holes and cracks in white plastered walls?

A. Just by patting in some ordinary dampened baking soda. It's a good idea to fill up these holes and cracks in this manner before painting the wall.

Q. What is the proper way to iron double thicknesses, such as collars, cuffs, pockets, hems, and the like?

A. Iron first on the wrong side, then on the right side.

Q. Is there any way I can renovate some old, hardened glue?

A. Try placing a few drops of vinegar in the glue container.

Q. How can I avoid any unpleasant odors in my kitchen drain?

A. If you'll put a handful of baking soda into the sink overnight, it will purify and clean that unfragrant drain.

Q. Please give suggestions on the cleaning of a stone or brick fireplace?

A. Hot water and soap, applied with a stiff brush, are often adequate. If not mix up a paste of powdered pumice and concentrated ammonia, and cover the smoked areas with this. Let stay for an hour or two before scrubbing off with hot water and soap.

Q. Is there any way I can renovate dented table tennis balls?

A. These dented balls often can be restored to their original roundness by pouring boiling water over them. The heat of the water expands the air inside the balls, and the dents pop out.

Q. How can I prevent cream from curdling when poured over acid berries or fruits?

A. By mixing a pinch of baking soda with the cream before pouring.

Slammin' Bob Putt, rounding into razor sharp form for a tournament this weekend, set the 18-hole record at Copeland Hills golf course Saturday at Columbiana when he fired a one-under-par 36-35-71.

Putt will be among the entries in the Amateur tournament which gets underway Saturday at Copeland Hills, and must be installed as an early favorite.

The old course mark was 33-39-72 set by Alex Kostyshak of Struthers in 1962. He still holds the nine-hole mark of 33.

Putt fired an eagle two on the eighth hole on his way to the record.

He was playing in a group of four other East Liverpool golfers including Harold Putt Jr., Ron Kinsey, Bob Kelly and Dave Bowersock.

Jury To Get Butts' Case

ATLANTA (AP) — Whether a magazine publishing firm will have to pay Wally Butts $10 million for an article charging he helped rig a football game was a decision facing 12 federal court jurors today.

All that remained before the jury began deliberation in Butts' libel suit was completion of arguments by attorneys and a charge to the jurors by District Judge Lewis R. Morgan.

The jury has heard testimony by 27 witnesses during the past two weeks in Butts' suit against Curtis Publishing Co., owner of the Saturday Evening Post which charged the former University of Georgia athletic director conspired with Alabama Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant to rig the 1962 football game between their schools.

Butts and Bryant denied the charges on the stand.

Butts' attorneys pictured him Friday as the victim of a Post gimmick yielding "untold millions of dollars in publicity."

Attorneys for Curtis attacked Butts' character.

Both sides were allowed one hour each today to complete their arguments.

House Slates Debate On Foreign Aid, Debt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House opens its annual debate Tuesday on the foreign aid bill.

Issues involving Indonesia and a projected steel mill for India are expected to generate considerable steam.

In the Senate, another spat of pro-and-con wordage is in prospect when a national debt limit bill reaches the floor Tuesday. As passed by the House, it would extend the present temporary debt limit of $309 billion to Nov. 30.

Akron Man Arrested In Race Track Case

NEW CUMBERLAND — Thomas E. Sexton of Akron is due for a hearing next Monday at 11 a. m. on a charge of being drunk and disorderly at Waterford Park race track Saturday.

Track detectives cited Sexton in connection with the fall of a flower pot from a catwalk near the clubhouse after the sixth race.

The container fell 14 feet and narrowly missed jockey Floyd Green returning to his quarters on foot in a narrow passageway beneath the catwalk officials said.

William C. Graham of Chester, track detective, filed the charge and Sexton was taken into custody by Hancock County sheriff's deputies. He posted $250 bond for a hearing before Squire John D. Herron.

Firm Hit In Series Of Thefts, Vandalism

A series of thefts and vandalism have occurred at Patterson-Wetzel Dry Cleaners at E. 3rd and Walnut St. over the last two weeks, William D. Wetzel, one of the owners, reported to police late Saturday morning.

Wetzel told officers an electric clock valued at $25, a new plastic chair, a plastic clothes basket, three wash pans and an ash tray have been stolen.

Fake money has been put into a dollar changing machine, signs removed and a water hose and restroom door damaged, Wetzel said.

Ralston Emerges As New Star On U.S. Net Front

By JAMES BACON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States Davis Cup team, 4-1 winners over a strong Mexico team in the American Zone semi-finals of the international competition, is considered Australia-bound.

The experts had prdeicted that the winner of the matches at the Los Angeles tennis club would eventually make the challenge round with the perennial Australian champions.

With the emergence of Dennis Ralston as a new giant of U.S. tennis, the experts are more convinced than ever.

Ralston, once the terrible-tempered question mark of the Davis Cuppers and last year's goat in the U.S. loss to Mexico, was the hero of the 1963 victory.

After Rafael Osuna, the Mexican ace, upset top-rated Chuck McKinley in Friday's opening singles match, Ralston conquered Antonio Palafox to give the United States a 1-1 split.

Then the steady, solid play of Ralston earned the U.S. team the key doubles win over the favored Mexican team of Osuna and Palafox, the Wimbledon champions.

And on Sunday, Ralston gave fans the finest exhibition of amateur tennis seen here in years as he beat Osuna 6-1, 6-3, 7-5. The win, which gave the Americans a 3-1 edge, clinched the competition.

McKinley beat Palafox 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 in the finale.

Osuna, forced to carry the load for Mexico, played brilliantly in beating McKinley. But he couldn't do it all in the doubles, and was pressured off balance by the relentless Ralston on Sunday.

Osuna and Ralston room together at the University of Southern California. They led USC to the NCAA doubles title and in 1960 won the Wimbledon doubles title.

The COLOSSUS of COLOSSI

General Stonewall Jackson, General Robert E. Lee and President Jefferson Davis are featured in a Confederate War Memorial de Weldon is working on at his studio.

The artist uses calipers to check the size of a hand on the Malaya War Memorial he is now working on. The 24-foot-high statue is due to be erected in Kuala Lumpur in 1964.

Felix de Weldon is barely five feet seven inches tall but he's the biggest man in his field.

De Weldon is the creator of colossal statuary. His best known work is the Iwo Jima Marine Memorial now standing in Arlington, Va., across the Potomac River from Washington, D.C.

This statue, based on AP photographer Joe Rosenthal's famous photograph of the Iwo Jima flag raising, is 78 feet high.

At his Washington, D.C. studio, de Weldon has just finished another giant statue, this one of former President Harry S. Truman for a Truman Memorial in Athens, Greece.

The studio is hardly empty, though. The small artist is still surrounded by mammoth-pieces of plaster. He's now working on a Malayan War Memorial to be erected in Kuala Lumpur, a statue of General Pershing for Paris, France, a National Guard Memorial for Washington, a Revolutionary War Memorial for Philadelphia and a Confederate War Memorial.

De Weldon works primarily in bronze, marble and limestone. His bronze pieces are so large that he must work with plaster rather than clay. He builds the plaster up and then carves this. When the piece is finished he cuts it apart for shipment to a foundry in Italy for casting.

His list of past projects include almost fifty major works scattered around the world from England to South America to Japan.

Sculptor de Weldon is dwarfed by his massive Iwo Jima Marine Memorial. The statue is based on AP photographer Joe Rosenthal's famous World War II flag raising photograph.

A gigantic colonialist figure gazes unperturbedly out of the skylight window in de Weldon's studio as its creator measures the width of its still unfinished gun stock.

De Weldon collects art and plays a violin for relaxation. He was born in Vienna and came to the U.S. in his teens. He studied in Paris and London and served in the U.S. Navy during World War II.

Hanging Art Is An Art

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

All the emphasis on art in the home has made picture hanging an art in itself, points out an expert in the business, Ray Austrian.

You don't slap pictures up on a wall to fill up space. They must be artistically arranged so that the collection of mass flatters the space, and in itself becomes an artistic pattern.

"Most people do not understand art, much less the arrangement of it, unless they've studied art," he explains. "Everyone seems to be looking for advice in this art renaissance."

—:—

AUSTRIAN hangs pictures that people own, but also he does entire rooms to order, supplying all the wall art.

He does building lobbies and offices, but has refused to hang pictures where they don't belong. He won't sell a picture unless it is right for the place it is to hang and won't sell picture groupings unless he hangs them.

"When we select pictures for a home we take into consideration personal background, places in the world the people have visited and wish to recapture, art tendencies that have been liked and seen and a particular love of an activity."

He has framed tattered Confederate flags, and a flag that was at Waterloo, pictures of famous men, belt buckles, autographs, pipes, precious jewels, old letters.

He has just placed a quail wishbone on black velvet for one romantic couple.

"They didn't want to break it when they made a wish on it years ago, and now decided to frame it."

AUSTRIAN will hang mixed media — oil paintings, etchings, engravings, dimensional things — "but we don't believe in reproductions of any kind, such as the so-called masterpiece reproduced on paper," he says.

It's a waste of time and money to pick up art willy-nilly to fill up wall space, says Austrian, whose New York shop, The Picture Decorator, is jammed with some 25,000 prints, 100 oil paintings, 400 moldings and innumerable fabrics used for mats.

"It's not uncommon to spend a few dollars on a print and very much more to frame it," he says.

Pictures should move and flow in a room, he advises, stressing that art need not cost a lot of money.

He has put pictures in the living room of a young couple for $100 and has done elegant apartments for $5,000. He travels to many countries for art and frames.

Pictures provide built - in charm for walls, he says, not by the size of pictures but by the shape and number of them. The big painting over a couch or in back of the piano is passe. Ditto pictures arranged in step designs.

The art on walls in any room should look as if it has been collected, and you can frame anything from old family portraits to Civil War documents to achieve that look, he points out.

Ford Offered Mediation Aid

CHICAGO HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP)—The government offered assistance today to officials of Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers Union as they met to seek settlement of a strike which threatens to idle 10,000 workers in three states.

Commissioner Douglas Brown of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service told both sides that his services were available.

Two pickets reported they were assaulted with beer bottles Sunday at the Chicago Heights stamping plant where 3,750 members of the UAW's Local 588 have been on strike since midnight Thursday in protest against delay in solving a backlog of grievances filed by plant workers.

Ford officials said work had to be curtailed today in plants at Dearborn, Livonia, Ypsilanti and Rawsonville, Mich.; Sandusky and Sharonville, Ohio, and Indianapolis, Ind.

Tips Offered When Nailing

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The most biting comment that can be made about the unhandyman ability of someone is: "He can't even drive a nail straight."

While generally used as an exaggeration, the statement sometimes is true. Not everyone can drive a nail straight.

Occasionally it is due to the penetrating resistance of the particular kind of wood or the type of nail being used.

But more often than not it is because the nail was struck improperly — at an angle, instead of with the axis of the hammer head in line with the nail.

There's a lot more to the use of nails than the matter of straight nailing. The following tips may help you to do a better job:

When doing rough work, where extra holding strength is necessary, clinching is often used. This consists of driving a long nail through two boards and then bending the excess of the nail into the wood. When a nail is clinched in the direction of the grain, it is easier and neater. However, when it is clinched against the grain, which requires heavier hammer blows, it will be stronger.

You will get better results when driving a nail by using a number of moderate hammer blows rather than a few strong blows.

Wood can be prevented from splitting by drilling a guide hole for the nail. In the absence of a drill, use a small nail first, driving it in part way. Carefully extract it and drive the larger nail into the same hole.

If it is vital that nails used in soft wood have extra holding power, use cut nails rather than wire nails. Where maximum holding power is desired, threaded nails do the best job. They often are selected for the ability to give good service even when driven into green or partially seasoned lumber.

Where hammer dents may spoil a project, use finishing nails, driving them to within a fraction of an inch of the surface and then using a nailset to push them below the surface. Wood putty or plastic wood can be used to fill the indentation.

If space is at a premium, a nail can be started by striking it with the flat of the hammer head rather than the face.

A nail driven into hardwood is often difficult to extract. If you can get the nail started on its way out, place a block of wood between the hammer and the board and then renew the effort with a claw hammer. The added leverage will do the job that sheer strength could not.

When you have to do a considerable amount of repetitious nailing, use one of the nail aprons that can be purchased cheaply or obtained without cost from some lumber dealers and hardware stores.

Economy Fools Experts

Summer Slump Skipped

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Half way through the traditionally dull third quarter of the year the course of business and industry again is fooling the experts. The latest figures show that the economy continues to zig when by the rules it should have zagged.

In July steel and auto output both dropped. By the text books this should have dragged the Federal Reserve Board's industrial production index down. It didn't. The index rose to a record high. Other kinds of industrial activity were just too strong for the old-time bellwethers to lead to the downward path.

Employment, especially in manufacturing, was unusually good this summer, when a large seasonal decline was expected. Better than ordinary gains for the time of year were reported in services, trades and construction. The rise matched the increase in the labor force.

So the output of goods (other than basic steel and autos) was too good and prospects for sales too bright for the decline in the economy that had been feared with the advent of hot weather and mass vacations.

Steel making fell off because customers were still using up outsize inventories stacked high when a new labor contract was being hammered out.

Auto activity started its seasonal slowdown while production lines were being set up for new models.

Auto production should climb again shortly. Steel activity is expected to quicken in another month or so.

Meantime, the rest of the economy is strong enough to shine without them. Output of most consumer goods, other than autos, has increased. So has production of business equipment.

The goods continue to move into the hands of consumers.

In the last four weeks department store sales have increased in every one of the 12 federal reserve districts (ranging from a gain of 1 per cent in the Richmond district to 12 per cent in New York). Retail sales in general are ahead of last year in all classifications except apparel. Back-to-school promotions, now starting, should perk up clothing sales.

Personal income has held to a fairly steady upward trend. While individual savings totals have swelled, so have consumer expenditures. Outstanding installment debt is at a record high, indicating both consumer confidence in future incomes and business confidence in consumer ability to keep up with the payments. Many corporations have reported record earnings.

Home building continues at a high rate. Commercial construction has slackened but industrial building shows signs of quickening. Outlays for public projects run ahead of a year ago.

All of this has led the nation's official crystal gazers to upgrade earlier predictions.

They are now foreseeing a record national output of goods and services this year of $580 billion or better. The annual rate of this gross national product in the first three months was $572 billion. This rose to $579 billion in the April-May-June period. Some think the pace may hit $590 billion in the final three months of the year.

Already the better-than-expected performance of the economy has paid off for the U.S. Treasury. Tax collections have been higher than first hoped. The estimate of the treasury deficit has been trimmed.

The economy isn't as strong as many would like. But it's a lot healthier than some viewers-with-alarm were predicting.

Slight Upturn In Shipments May Be Near

CLEVELAND (AP)—With steel demand bottomed out, producers think there is a chance for a modest upturn in shipments next month, Steel magazine reported today.

The metalworking weekly said any improvement would be welcome because August shipments will be the lowest of any month so far this year—15 to 20 per cent less than in July.

"We can't predict a pickup in September on the basis of what we've booked so far, but that doesn't eliminate the possibility," the magazine quoted a major producer. "We've rebuilt our in-process stocks so that we can handle a lot of last-minute business and that's what we're hoping to get. Lead times have practically vanished."

Steel consumption is on the uptrend with plant vacations tapering off and automakers starting to turn out new models and shipments are bound to rise, but they'll be retarded somewhat until users liquidate strike - hedge inventories, the magazine said.

Automakers will take 15 to 20 per cent more steel tonnage in September than they'll take in August, but their September buying will be only two - thirds of normal volume, Steel said, explaining that the rest of their requirements will be met from strike-hedge inventories.

The metalworking weekly said the decline in steel production, which started in early June, appears to have ended. It reported last week's output was up one per cent with an estimated 1,765,000 tons produced and added that this week's output will be about the same.

Steelmaking scrap demand continued slow and dealers are holding back material in anticipation of higher prices, Steel said. Its price composite on No. 1 heavy melting grade of scrap was unchanged last week at $26.67 a gross ton.

8 Prisoners Flee In West Virginia

CHARLESTON (AP) — Eight prisoners escaped Sunday night and early today from two separate state facilities, the Public Institutions Department reported here.

Five young men, all serving 1-to-10-year terms for breaking and entering, fled from the prison barracks at Weston State Hospital between 2:30 and 4:15 a. m. after breaking a window chain.

"Warden Frank King of the Medium Security Prison at Huttonsville, from which the five were assigned to Weston work details, identified the fugitives as David Lee Thomas, 24, sentenced from Ohio County; Joseph Allen Fellers, Jefferson County; William Henry Starr, Logan County; Jerry Lee Hlstein, 23, Kanawha, and John Paris, 22, Monongalia.

Three men escaped about 11 p. m. yesterday from Camp Fairchance, the State Penitentiary's honor facility at Moundsville. They were listed by penitentiary officials as:

Garland Seabolt, 33, received from Kanawha County in September, 1959, for a 1-to-10-year term for entering; Bobby Ray, 31, received February, 1959, from Kanawha for forgery and serving a 2-to-10-year sentence, and Glenn White, 25, serving a 1-to-10-year term for burglary from Calhoun County. White was received at the penitentiary in October last year.

Slight Upturn In Shipments May Be Near

CLEVELAND (AP)—With steel demand bottomed out, producers think there is a chance for a modest upturn in shipments next month, Steel magazine reported today.

The metalworking weekly said any improvement would be welcome because August shipments will be the lowest of any month so far this year—15 to 20 per cent less than in July.

"We can't predict a pickup in September on the basis of what we've booked so far, but that doesn't eliminate the possibility," the magazine quoted a major producer. "We've rebuilt our in-process stocks so that we can handle a lot of last-minute business and that's what we're hoping to get. Lead times have practically vanished."

Steel consumption is on the uptrend with plant vacations tapering off and automakers starting to turn out new models and shipments are bound to rise, but they'll be retarded somewhat until users liquidate strike - hedge inventories, the magazine said.

Automakers will take 15 to 20 per cent more steel tonnage in September than they'll take in August, but their September buying will be only two - thirds of normal volume, Steel said, explaining that the rest of their requirements will be met from strike-hedge inventories.

The metalworking weekly said the decline in steel production, which started in early June, appears to have ended. It reported last week's output was up one per cent with an estimated 1,765,000 tons produced and added that this week's output will be about the same.

Steelmaking scrap demand continued slow and dealers are holding back material in anticipation of higher prices, Steel said. Its price composite on No. 1 heavy melting grade of scrap was unchanged last week at $26.67 a gross ton.

8 Prisoners Flee In West Virginia

CHARLESTON (AP) — Eight prisoners escaped Sunday night and early today from two separate state facilities, the Public Institutions Department reported here.

Five young men, all serving 1-to-10-year terms for breaking and entering, fled from the prison barracks at Weston State Hospital between 2:30 and 4:15 a. m. after breaking a window chain.

"Warden Frank King of the Medium Security Prison at Huttonsville, from which the five were assigned to Weston work details, identified the fugitives as David Lee Thomas, 24, sentenced from Ohio County; Joseph Allen Fellers, Jefferson County; William Henry Starr, Logan County; Jerry Lee Hlstein, 23, Kanawha, and John Paris, 22, Monongalia.

Three men escaped about 11 p. m. yesterday from Camp Fairchance, the State Penitentiary's honor facility at Moundsville. They were listed by penitentiary officials as:

Garland Seabolt, 33, received from Kanawha County in September, 1959, for a 1-to-10-year term for entering; Bobby Ray, 31, received February, 1959, from Kanawha for forgery and serving a 2-to-10-year sentence, and Glenn White, 25, serving a 1-to-10-year term for burglary from Calhoun County. White was received at the penitentiary in October last year.

Oil-Coated Screen Helps To Keep Out Tiny Insects

Many home owners in the suburbs and in the actual country regions are plagued with swarms of insects so small that they can penetrate the mesh of the average screen with extreme ease.

These minute creatures follow the warm current of air from an open window or door and, if cooking is going on in the house, they follow along the trail with still greater speed and in greater numbers. These swarms are fortunately very short-lived, but while they are still active can be a great nuisance.

The screening used in most houses is a standard mesh size, made with due consideration for the fact that a closer or finer mesh would prevent the free circulation of air, and it is helpless against the type of insect in question.

However, a method has been devised to reduce the size of the mesh temporarily during the small insect season. This consists of wiping the mesh freely with a heavy oil, such as castor oil or linseed oil. This reduces the openings of the screening far more than might be imagined. In addition to that, an insect need only touch the tip of a wing to the oily wires to become stuck fast there and then.

The oil should not be applied so heavily as to drip from the screen. It will not harm the wire or the paint of the screen frame. And when it is no longer required it can be removed with a cloth dampened in turpentine.

The procedure outlined here has been tried for many years and found extremely effective as well as economical. It is a sound answer to a small but aggravating problem.

Viet Reds Hit Restrictions On Buddhists

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—The Viet Cong movement, trying to push South Viet Nam into the Communist camp, apparently was caught off guard by the Buddhist campaign against restrictions by the Saigon government.

But now that the Buddhists have brought a full-blown campaign to this country, the Communists are making up for lost time.

By leaflets, radio, broadcasts and secretive "agiprop" propaganda teams that move among Viet Nam peasants, the Communists are getting mileage out of the crisis.

American sources say the tenor of the propaganda is that the Buddhist matter is yet another attempt by the Saigon authorities to crush the population.

In the Mekong Delta, leaflets issued by the Communist "National Liberation Front" state that "President Diem is not even caring to conceal his vicious attempts to destroy religion, and outwardly is suppressing and terrorizing people."

American sources believe that traveling Communist cadres are the main propagandists for the Viet Cong movement, with radio broadcasts running second and leaflets third.

The United States inevitably has been tied in with the Diem government in the Buddhist issue.

The Communists contend that U.S. advisers are showing Vietnamese soldiers how to beat civilians and snatch bodies.

Installation Tips On Vinyl Tile

Question: I have installed several kinds of resilient tiling in the past, but would like to try the woodgrain plank - style flooring made of vinyl. The installation will be in our dining room.

Is it more difficult to lay this kind of tiling and is there anything special that will help me do a good job?

Answer: Your experience should make this a fairly easy job. The fundamentals of installation are the same as those for regular, square tiles. Be sure, however, not to place the planks in the same direction as the floor boards. They must be installed across the floor boards.

Should you wish the planks to run in the same direction, for reasons of decor, nail plywood or hardboard underlayment to the wood floor.

Nail the underlayment every six inches throughout the sheet and every three inches along the seams. The planks should be rolled after each eight or nine rows have been installed.

You can rent a floor roller or use an ordinary rolling pin. The planks can be cut to fit along the walls or where there are obstructions by using tin snips or heavy houseold shears.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I insure tenderness in meat after boiling it?

A. Adding a teaspoon of lemon juice to the water in which the meat is boiled usually helps.

Q. How can I remove some slight scratches from plate glass?

A. First rub with a pad of cotton wool. Then cover the pad with a layer of cotton velvet well charged with fine rouge, and this when rubbed over the surface of the glass will not only remove the scratches, but will add a luster.

Q. How can I clean gold braid?

A. Brush the braid first with a stiff brush, then rub powdered alum well into the braid. Let the alum remain, and the braid will take on a brighter look after an hour or so.

Q. How can I clean parchment lampshades?

A. By rubbing with a fresh piece of white bread or an artgum eraser, or with a cloth dipped into milk.

Q. How can I make a good job of cleaning my linoleum?

A. When scrubbing it, try adding a little paraffin to the water. This will take out all the dirt and grease, and give the lineoleum a high gloss. If you rub the paraffin well into the linoleum, it will retain the color and wear twice as long.

Little Things Mean A Lot In Planning Your Plumbing

When drawing up plans for a new home, cleanout plugs and shutoff valves for the plumbing system should be high on your list of 'little things that mean a lot'.

Cleanout plugs should be installed wherever there is a sharp turn in direction of waste or drainage piping, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau of Chicago. This is where stoppage is most likely to occur.

Having the plumbing contractor install an adequate number of cleanout plugs involves only a nominal cost when the house is being built. Failure to provide for them, however, can result in unnecessary expense and inconvenience should stoppages occur.

With a cleanout plug in the line, it's a simple matter for the home owner to clear a clogged pipe. Without a cleanout, however, needless inconvenience and expense can be incurred.

In the same way, an adequate number of shutoff valves can prove to be a real convenience. There should be shutoffs for each water supply circuit to the various plumbing fixtures.

When repairs become necessary anywhere in the house, it is not necessary to shut off the water supply for the whole house at the meter or master control valve, if there are adequate shutoffs.

Is it more difficult to lay this kind of tiling and is there anything special that will help me do a good job?

Answer: Your experience should make this a fairly easy job. The fundamentals of installation are the same as those for regular, square tiles. Be sure, however, not to place the planks in the same direction as the floor boards. They must be installed across the floor boards.

Should you wish the planks to run in the same direction, for reasons of decor, nail plywood or hardboard underlayment to the wood floor.

Nail the underlayment every six inches throughout the sheet and every three inches along the seams. The planks should be rolled after each eight or nine rows have been installed.

You can rent a floor roller or use an ordinary rolling pin. The planks can be cut to fit along the walls or where there are obstructions by using tin snips or heavy houseold shears.

Food And Drug Agency Eyes Antibiotic 'Cold Cure' Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the news from Washington:

COLD CURE: The Food and Drug Administration is proposing a ban on prescription cold cure remedies containing antibiotics.

It says a special medical panel has concluded there is no evidence that antibiotics have any value in treating the common cold or its side effects.

The proposed ban could become effective in mid-September, after expiration of a 30-day period the FDA announced Saturday for receiving comments on the proposal.

KHRUSHCHEV: Officials believe Soviet Premier Khrushchev plans a visit to Cuba within the next two or three months to bolster his position that peaceful coexistence will get the Communists further than the militant policy of Red China.

KENNAN: Veteran diplomat George F. Kennan says the United States should be ready to explore the possibility of removing its troops from Europe if the Russians remove theirs from their side of the Iron Curtain.

Kennan, former ambassador to Moscow and recently retired as envoy to Yugoslavia, was interviewed Sunday on a radio-television program.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I insure tenderness in meat after boiling it?

A. Adding a teaspoon of lemon juice to the water in which the meat is boiled usually helps.

Q. How can I remove some slight scratches from plate glass?

A. First rub with a pad of cotton wool. Then cover the pad with a layer of cotton velvet well charged with fine rouge, and this when rubbed over the surface of the glass will not only remove the scratches, but will add a luster.

Q. How can I clean gold braid?

A. Brush the braid first with a stiff brush, then rub powdered alum well into the braid. Let the alum remain, and the braid will take on a brighter look after an hour or so.

Q. How can I clean parchment lampshades?

A. By rubbing with a fresh piece of white bread or an art-gum eraser, or with a cloth dipped into milk.

Q. How can I make a good job of cleaning my linoleum?

A. When scrubbing it, try adding a little paraffin to the water. This will take out all the dirt and grease, and give the lineoleum a high gloss. If you rub the paraffin well into the linoleum, it will retain the color and wear twice as long.

Little Things Mean A Lot In Planning Your Plumbing

When drawing up plans for a new home, cleanout plugs and shutoff valves for the plumbing system should be high on your list of 'little things that mean a lot'.

Cleanout plugs should be installed wherever there is a sharp turn in direction of waste or drainage piping, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau of Chicago. This is where stoppage is most likely to occur.

Having the plumbing contractor install an adequate number of cleanout plugs involves only a nominal cost when the house is being built. Failure to provide for them, however, can result in unnecessary expense and inconvenience should stoppages occur.

With a cleanout plug in the line, it's a simple matter for the home owner to clear a clogged pipe. Without a cleanout, however, needless inconvenience and expense can be incurred.

In the same way, an adequate number of shutoff valves can prove to be a real convenience. There should be shutoffs for each water supply circuit to the various plumbing fixtures.

When repairs become necessary anywhere in the house, it is not necessary to shut off the water supply for the whole house at the meter or master control valve, if there are adequate shutoffs.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

Kefauver Gave TV A Big Lift

Everyone writing about Sen. Estes Kefauver the past week mentions what TV did for the senator and his public crime hearings in early 1951.

Hal Humphrey

But it is the TV industry which should bow its head in a moment of thanks to the late senator. He did as much, if not more, for TV than it did for him.

Just remember that in February 1951 TV hadn't yet stretched its tentacles coast to coast. "Uncle Miltie" Berle was in his fourth season with the same funny costumes and corny jokes, and TV set sales were off from the same period of 1950.

ON FEB. 27, 1951, Sen. Kefauver set up shop for a week in Los Angeles. His cast of characters included such underworld elite as Joe Sica, Allen Smiley and Moe Dalitz.

The star of the Los Angeles hearing was William G. Bonelli, member of the State Board of Equalization, who for three hours of televised interrogation kept insisting he was a misunderstood public official with nothing left but a couple of ranches, a rodeo stadium, two fat bank accounts and some worthless oil interests.

Calmly, and in an even-toned, resonant voice, Sen. Kefauver kept boring in. When he tired of his quarry, he would turn the "show" over to the snapping chief counsel, Rudolph Halley.

It was Frank Latourette, ABC's Channel 7 special events director, who came up with the idea of televising Sen. Kefauver and his crime chasers. After Channel 7's 16-hour Kefauver airing, the managers of Los Angeles six other TV chanels could have cut their throats.

Following the first day's hearings, more than 3000 viewers phoned Channel 7 to congratulate it and ask for more. TV set sales suddenly boomed in Los Angeles. TV had been discovered for something besides old movies, Faye Emerson and cooking shows.

On March 19, 1951, Kefauver moved to New York City where TV was able to beam his real-life crime show to the 21 cities tied together on the TV cable.

FRANK COSTELLO and his attorney cried that his (Costello's) privacy was being invaded by the TV cameras at the hearing, so the cameras focused on his nervous hands, while an estimated 30 million viewers stood in store doorways or sat in bars or at home to watch, fascinated.

Even more electrifying to the TV audience was the appearance of Virginia Hill who calmly told Sen. Kefauver how crime did pay—at least for her. And as she sat in the hearing room resplendent in a picture hat and mink stole, hardly a TV viewer doubted her.

By this time the merchants, theater owners and other business entrepreneurs in the East were screaming for Sen. Kefauver to take his show and get lost. Their daily grosses were off 25 to 40 per cent.

-:-

EVEN President Harry Truman let it be known unofficially that he had some doubts about the sagacity of televising congressional investigations.

He feared, it was said, that viewers might get the impression that a committee hearing was a judicial process.

President Truman recalled that a major factor in weakening the old Greek governments was the mass jury trials.

But the men running TV saw the Kefauver hearings from the viewpoint of the impact they had on viewers. Suddenly, if belatedly, they realized that TV was a tremendous communications medium, as well as one for entertainment.

-:-

LATER THAT YEAR they poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into televising (coast to coast over the new microwave relays) the Japanese Peace Treaty Conference from San Francisco. And, before that, the homecomng of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, following his release from duty in Korea by President Truman.

TV networks very likely would have passed up such expensive (to them) "live telecasts" if Sen. Kefauver hadn't proved the impact of the simultaneous televising of real people in real situations.

Officer Aids Shy Dayton Mother, Looks Other Way

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Delivering babies is nothing new to Dayton traffic officer R. O. Baker, but the method he used Sunday is probably a first for police and possibly for the medical profession.

The father of five children who has delivered two other babies in his police career was called to a South Riverdale home about 8 a.m. to stand by for a maternity removal.

When he arrived, a crowd of people had gathered on the porch of the home and the grandmother to-be almost was in hysterics. Baker went immediately to the woman who said the child was being born. He prepared to assist.

"Don't look," instructed the young mother.

Baker turned his head, hastily recalled the two prior deliveries, and successfully assisted the infant into the world while looking out the door.

"I did sneak a peek at the hospital report and both mother and baby boy were fine," he said after things returned to normal on his beat.

Citizens Unit To Meet On 'Project 70' Plans

HARRISBURG (AP) — The first meeting of a non-partisan citizen's committee for project 70 will be held Wednesday in Harrisburg, it has been announced.

Gov. Scranton's office said that 100 civic - minded citizens have been designed to map plans for the beginning of a drive for passage of the project 70 referendum in November.

Project 70, which will appear on the November ballot in the form of a constitutional amendment, is a $70-million land conservation sand recreation program.

Mahoning Sees Boost In School Enrollment

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Combined enrollment in Mahoning County public and parochial schools this year will total 1,600 more than last year, school officials estimate. Officials said Sunday combined enrollment will be 72,000.

Youngstown public schools will have more than 28,000, an increase of 200. The county system will have 26,000, a 1,000 increase, and parochial school enrollment of about 18,500 will be 400 more than last year.

Anniversary Set For U.S.-Latin Alliance Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Alliance for Progress, President Kennedy's master plan for helping Latin American nations, has cost U.S. taxpayers $2.5 billion. There are mixed views on how well it is doing.

The 10-year program marking its second birthday is a U.S.-aimed at replacing poverty and stagnation with economic and social progress.

A long weekend of second anniversary observance will be climaxed here Tuesday. Kennedy will meet with Alliance for Progress visitors and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson will address the Organization of American States.

Kennedy said in a weekend statement that he was "heartened by the advances that have been made in a short space of time," but cautioned that much more needs to be done.

The record on self-help and reform by the Latin American countries — termed the "cornerstone of the alliance" — is spotty.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

Kefauver Gave TV A Big Lift

Everyone writing about Sen. Estes Kefauver the past week mentions what TV did for the senator and his public crime hearings in early 1951.

Hal Humphrey

But it is the TV industry which should bow its head in a moment of thanks to the late senator. He did as much, if not more, for TV than it did for him.

Just remember that in February 1951 TV hadn't yet stretched its tentacles coast to coast. "Uncle Miltie" Berle was in his fourth season with the same funny costumes and corny jokes, and TV set sales were off from the same period of 1950.

ON FEB. 27, 1951, Sen. Kefauver set up shop for a week in Los Angeles. His cast of characters included such underworld elite as Joe Sica, Allen Smiley and Moe Dalitz.

The star of the Los Angeles hearing was William G. Bonelli, member of the State Board of Equalization, who for three hours of televised interrogation kept insisting he was a misunderstood public official with nothing left but a couple of ranches, a rodeo stadium, two fat bank accounts and some worthless oil interests.

Calmly, and in an even-toned, resonant voice, Sen. Kefauver kept boring in. When he tired of his quarry, he would turn the "show" over to the snapping chief counsel, Rudolph Halley.

It was Frank Latourette, ABC's Channel 7 special events director, who came up with the idea of televising Sen. Kefauver and his crime chasers. After Channel 7's 16-hour Kefauver airing, the managers of Los Angeles six other TV chanels could have cut their throats.

Following the first day's hearings, more than 3000 viewers phoned Channel 7 to congratulate it and ask for more. TV set sales suddenly boomed in Los Angeles. TV had been discovered for something besides old movies, Faye Emerson and cooking shows.

On March 19, 1951, Kefauver moved to New York City where TV was able to beam his real-life crime show to the 21 cities tied together on the TV cable.

FRANK COSTELLO and his attorney cried that his (Costello's) privacy was being invaded by the TV cameras at the hearing, so the cameras focused on his nervous hands, while an estimated 30 million viewers stood in store doorways or sat in bars or at home to watch, fascinated.

Even more electrifying to the TV audience was the appearance of Virginia Hill who calmly told Sen. Kefauver how crime did pay—at least for her. And as she sat in the hearing room resplendent in a picture hat and mink stole, hardly a TV viewer doubted her.

By this time the merchants, theater owners and other business entrepreneurs in the East were screaming for Sen. Kefauver to take his show and get lost. Their daily grosses were off 25 to 40 per cent.

-:-

EVEN President Harry Truman let it be known unofficially that he had some doubts about the sagacity of televising congressional investigations.

He feared, it was said, that viewers might get the impression that a committee hearing was a judicial process.

President Truman recalled that a major factor in weakening the old Greek governments was the mass jury trials.

But the men running TV saw the Kefauver hearings from the viewpoint of the impact they had on viewers. Suddenly, if belatedly, they realized that TV was a tremendous communications medium, as well as one for entertainment.

-:-

LATER THAT YEAR they poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into televising (coast to coast over the new microwave relays) the Japanese Peace Treaty Conference from San Francisco. And, before that, the homecoming of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, following his release from duty in Korea by President Truman.

TV networks very likely would have passed up such expensive (to them) "live telecasts" if Sen. Kefauver hadn't proved the impact of the simultaneous televising of real people in real situations.

Officer Aids Shy Dayton Mother, Looks Other Way

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Delivering babies is nothing new to Dayton traffic officer R. O. Baker, but the method he used Sunday is probably a first for police and possibly for the medical profession.

The father of five children who has delivered two other babies in his police career was called to a South Riverdale home about 8 a.m. to stand by for a maternity removal.

When he arrived, a crowd of people had gathered on the porch of the home and the grandmother to-be almost was in hysterics. Baker went immediately to the woman who said the child was being born. He prepared to assist.

"Don't look," instructed the young mother.

Baker turned his head, hastily recalled the two prior deliveries, and successfully assisted the infant into the world while looking out the door.

"I did sneak a peek at the hospital report and both mother and baby boy were fine," he said after things returned to normal on his beat.

Citizens Unit To Meet On 'Project 70' Plans

HARRISBURG (AP) — The first meeting of a non-partisan citizen's committee for project 70 will be held Wednesday in Harrisburg, it has been announced.

Gov. Scranton's office said that 100 civic - minded citizens have been designed to map plans for the beginning of a drive for passage of the project 70 referendum in November.

Project 70, which will appear on the November ballot in the form of a constitutional amendment, is a $70-million land conservation sand recreation program.

Mahoning Sees Boost In School Enrollment

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Combined enrollment in Mahoning County public and parochial schools this year will total 1,600 more than last year, school officials estimate. Officials said Sunday combined enrollment will be 72,000.

Youngstown public schools will have more than 28,000, an increase of 200. The county system will have 26,000, a 1,000 increase, and parochial school enrollment of about 18,500 will be 400 more than last year.

In 1861, the U.S. passport system was established.

In 1939, the Soviet Union and Germany signed a trade agreement.

In 1945, medical paratroopers rescued U.S. Gen Jonathan Wainwright from a Japanese prison camp in Manchuria following the end of World War II.

Anniversary Set For U.S.-Latin Alliance Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Alliance for Progress, President Kennedy's master plan for helping Latin American nations, has cost U.S. taxpayers $2.5 billion. There are mixed views on how well it is doing.

The 10-year program marking its second birthday is a U.S.-aimed at replacing poverty and stagnation with economic and social progress.

A long weekend of second anniversary observance will be climaxed here Tuesday. Kennedy will meet with Alliance for Progress visitors and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson will address the Organization of American States.

Kennedy said in a weekend statement that he was "heartened by the advances that have been made in a short space of time," but cautioned that much more needs to be done.

The record on self-help and reform by the Latin American countries — termed the "cornerstone of the alliance" — is spotty.

'Non-Graded' Schools Gain Favor

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

Youngsters are like fingerprints—no two are alike.

Teachers have known this for years, and it has been their despair and frustration to have to keep children marching along together in lockstep from first grade through high school graduation.

More and more schools are turning to a system known, for lack of a better name, as "non-graded."

The name has nothing to do with student grades, or report cards.

It means simply that formal grade barriers have been eliminated. The youngsters are grouped according to ability and work at their own best pace.

In the non-graded primary, for instance, a child may be ready for fourth grade after only two years in school. Others don't complete normal third grade work for four years, or even four and a half.

In a non-graded elementary school, a youngster might be studying sixth-grade arithmetic, fifth grade science and fourth-grade English.

In a non-graded high school a brilliant student might finish two years of mathematics in one year and be ready to go on to something else. A slower student might take a year and a half or even two years to cover a one-year course.

—:—

THE EDUCATORS who have tried the non-graded plan insist it is the only practical way of providing for the individual differences that each youngster brings to school.

The differences are usually most apparent in the primary grades, covering the first three years of school.

In any regular classroom of 30 first-graders, the teacher will find 30 rugged individualists. Some are bright, some slow. Some are ready and eager to learn, others are lost and forlorn. Some are mature for their age, others are still babies.

And always you have the in-betweens: the not-so-fast and the not-so-slow.

For more than a century, American schools traditionally have treated these 30 youngsters as a unit. They are given the same assignments and expected to cover the same material at the same speed.

—:—

THE RESULT is obvious and inevitable:

The slower pupils, and those not quite ready for school, fall behind, become frustrated and begin to hate school.

The fast pupils forced to slow down to the pace of the rest of the class, become bored and also begin to hate school.

The in-betweens struggle along, trying to learn their Three Rs at an artificial pace designed for a mythical "average" pupil.

But it's different with the non-graded plan.

Instead of formal first, second and third grades, there may be 21 different achievement levels. When a child masters one level he moves on to the next. He never fails, and there is no "grade skipping" as such.

The bright pupil isn't held back, the slow pupil doesn't fall behind. Each child progresses at his own rate.

THERE IS nothing really new about the non-graded primary. Milwaukee, for instance, started with one such school in 1942. Today, virtually all the Milwaukee elementary schools have a non-graded primary system.

Exact figures are not available, but there probably are hundreds of school systems across the country with some form of non-graded primary.

Some have extended the non-grading plan through the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

The non-graded plan was slow to catch on at the high school level, but it is spreading rapidly.

In 1961, Melbourne, Fla., had the nation's first and only non-graded high school. By this fall, between 50 and 60 high schools will have similar programs.

B. Frank Brown, principal at Melbourne, is a firm believer in the value of the non-graded program for both the bright and the slow students.

"We believe we can offer a tailor-made program for every youngster," Brown says. "We aren't going to hold back the good students, and we aren't going to throw the poor students in over their depth."

—:—

THE TRADITIONAL grade concept, Brown says, boils down to "a cage for every age."

"This is ridiculous," Brown says. "Some youngsters are whiz kids in math, and others have trouble with simple arithmetic. Why expect them to do the same work at the same time at the same pace, just because they are the same age?"

Myron L. Ashmore, superintendent of schools in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., puts it this way:

"In most schools, 70 is the cut-off point between passing a course and failing it.

"The pupil who gets a 70 is promoted to more advanced work in the next grade, even though he isn't really able to handle it. The pupil who gets a 69—just one point less—is doomed to take the entire course over again, even though he obviously knows quite a bit about it.

"It doesn't make sense."

Ft. Lauderdale this fall will open a six-year non-graded combination junior and senior high school. A non-graded elementary school will be added a year later.

The distinction of being the nation's first completely non-graded school, from first grade through 12th, goes to University School in Tallahassee, Fla., a department of the Florida State University school of education.

—:—

THE ONLY exception at University School is in the social studies, where elementary school children are grouped according to their age and normal grade level.

"There are things to be gained by having the children work with others of varying abilities," says Joe Hooten Jr., director of University School.

"This is the world of competition, the world they will live in when they leave school."

The non-graded system would seem to be made to order for grade-skipping, but most proponents of the plan want no part of such a speed-up.

Melbourne, for instance, is a three-year high school, and no matter how fast or how far a student goes he is kept in high school for the full three years.

"We need the academic leadership these students provide," Brown says.

"Besides, much of the work now being done by college freshmen ought to be done in the high school, and this way it's cheaper for the parents."

Hooten agrees.

"We aren't the least bit interested in turning out 13- and 14-year-old college students," he says. "And the parents have made it clear that isn't what they want, either."

VARIETY IN THE surfaces of fabrics is the coming look of fall coats for campus wear. This model highlights a soft brushed wool fabric to rival fur with its lushness. The demi-fitted coat has cuffed sleeves, a wing collar and large, brass

Tractors Fit Land

Students Dial To Aid Work

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — In education, too, it is getting so you dial almost anything. Now at a University of Michigan residence hall, students can dial for homework help in their language courses.

An experimental 10 - booth language lab set up in East Quadrangle Residence Hall has full access to all language programs playing in the central Language Laboratory several blocks away.

Using a device called Dial Selector, the student gets his program over earphones by dialing a number in the booth in much the same manner as placing a long distance telephone call. It is expected the dormitory lab will be able to handle from 200 to 300 students.

These relatively inexpensive auxiliary labs are a practical solution to the ever increasing number of students needing the lab.

Last year, for example, more than 4,000 students spent nearly 9,000 hours per week in the 145 listening booths at the central lab. Many language classes, particularly beginning courses, require lab drill sessions.

Instruction in 22 different languages is offered at the Language Laboratory, one of the oldest and largest in the country. It operates on a free-access, library - type basis and is open to students six days a week.

Thoughts On A Small Liberal Arts College

The following is by Katherine Lord of St. Petersburg, Fla., who will be a senior this fall at Mount Holyoke.

In my sophomore year in high school, when the full realization dawned that for me college would be the next step, I decided on a small private liberal arts college for women, preferably one of the "Seven Sisters". I was drawn to this type of college both by the excellent education it could offer and by the novelty and informality of a women's college after a co-educational high school.

I arrived for an interview at Mount Holyoke on a beautiful April day, and saw the country campus at its best. I was given a chance to visit a class, and found myself impressed by the combination of lecture and discussion and by the rapport between professor and student.

MY FIRST two years, I took the "liberal" part of liberal arts quite seriously, until I had taken a course in almost every department. I was at first reluctant to concentrate on one field, but finally decided on major in economics, make physics my minor, and take advanced courses in philosophy, English and art.

Classes at Mount Holyoke, although they range from one to 150, are generally small and allow a good deal of discussion. This semester I will be taking an advanced seminar in Comparative Economic Systems which has only four students and meets in a professor's office. We give seminar reports and then take them apart over coffee, cookies and cigarettes.

Both this type of informal class and the age - old custom of inviting faculty members to dinner for "gracious living" (candle light at the table, coffee after dinner, socks and loafers; promote a close student - faculty relation.

ALL FOUR classes live together in the dormitories and, except for a certain natural deference accorded to seniors, everyone enters into activities, which can be anything from discussion groups to spontaneous outbursts of folk-singing.

Here one has the chance to meet girls from all parts of the United States and from abroad. In a discussion of race problems, for instance, you may find yourself arguing with girls from Virginia, Iowa and Sierra Leone.

Boston is 100 miles away from the South Hadley, Mass., campus and New York 150, but every effort is made to bring the city to the country through lectures, concerts, dance performances and theater productions. To drop a few names: Robert Frost, the Cleveland Symphony, Andre Philip, Edward Albee, Arthur Kornberg, Marcel Marceau, the Thailand Dancers and the Circle in the Square Theater.

Within a two - hour drive of Harvard, Yale, Williams, Wesleyan and of course, Amherst, which is just over the hill, Mount Holyoke attracts her share of weekend visitors. The traffic is two way, however, and some weekends see a mass exodus.

In fact, with such a whirl of classroom, campus and social activities, it hardly seems four years since I was waiting on pins and needles for my acceptance.

'Interest' Test Eyed For Actors

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Did successful actors and actresses have interests in common even before they first donned greasepaint?

This is what the Student Counseling Service at St. Louis' Washington University hopes to find out. Counselors plan to test a number of theatrical performers to see whether similar interests drew them to their work.

Recently, two students who want to enter the professional theater sought advice from the counseling service. A counselor told the youths there is no known interest test for acting, but suggested they take the Strong Vocational Interest Blank test. This test usually shows that areas the testee is interested in.

By means of interpretation, the counselor can usually tell the testee what fields he might try for a successful and happy vocation.

Donald Zytowski, director of student counseling, and some of his staff decided it might be interesting to see how professional actors and actresses would respond to the Strong.

The most logical place to begin testing, they thought, would be the traveling company of "Pajama Tops". Zytowski contacted Lee Hewitt, manager of the company. Hewitt consulted with the cast and they agreed to work with the Washington University.

"I think this project is a grand idea," Hewitt said. "A lot of kids have no idea what acting is all about. Maybe this test comparison will help in some way to give the right direction."

Zytowski said it probably will be a year or more before any results are compiled. He said the counseling service plans to test all the traveling shows which come to St. Louis, and he plans to contact agents of Hollywood, Broadway and television performers to enlist their aid.

The counseling service intends to publish any results it considers valid.

'Non-Graded' Schools Gain Favor

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

Youngsters are like fingerprints —no two are alike.

Teachers have known this for years, and it has been their despair and frustration to have to keep children marching along together in lockstep from first grade through high school graduation.

More and more schools are turning to a system known, for lack of a better name, as "non-graded."

The name has nothing to do with student grades, or report cards.

It means simply that formal grade barriers have been eliminated. The youngsters are grouped according to ability and work at their own best pace.

In the non-graded primary, for instance, a child may be ready for fourth grade after only two years in school. Others don't complete normal third grade work for four years, or even four and a half.

In a non-graded elementary school, a youngster might be studying sixth-grade arithmetic, fifth grade science and fourth-grade English.

In a non-graded high school a brilliant student might finish two years of mathematics in one year and be ready to go on to something else. A slower student might take a year and a half or even two years to cover a one-year course.

—:—

THE EDUCATORS who have tried the non-graded plan insist it is the only practical way of providing for the individual differences that each youngster brings to school.

The differences are usually most apparent in the primary grades, covering the first three years of school.

In any regular classroom of 30 first-graders, the teacher will find 30 rugged individualists. Some are bright, some slow. Some are ready and eager to learn, others are lost and forlorn. Some are mature for their age, others are still babies.

And always you have the in-betweens: the not-so-fast and the not-so-slow.

For more than a century, American schools traditionally have treated these 30 youngsters as a unit. They are given the same assignments and expected to cover the same material at the same speed.

—:—

THE RESULT is obvious and inevitable:

The slower pupils, and those not quite ready for school, fall behind, become frustrated and begin to hate school.

The fast pupils forced to slow down to the pace of the rest of the class, become bored and also begin to hate school.

The in-betweens struggle along, trying to learn their Three Rs at an artificial pace designed for a mythical "average" pupil.

But it's different with the non-graded plan.

Instead of formal first, second and third grades, there may be 21 different achievement levels. When a child masters one level he moves on to the next. He never fails, and there is no "grade skipping" as such.

The bright pupil isn't held back, the slow pupil doesn't fall behind. Each child progresses at his own rate.

THERE IS nothing really new about the non-graded primary. Milwaukee, for instance, started with one such school in 1942. Today, virtually all the Milwaukee elementary schools have a non-graded primary system.

Exact figures are not available, but there probably are hundreds of school systems across the country with some form of non-graded primary.

Some have extended the non-grading plan through the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

The non-graded plan was slow to catch on at the high school level, but it is spreading rapidly.

In 1961, Melbourne, Fla., had the nation's first and only non-graded high school. By this fall, between 50 and 60 high schools will have similar programs.

B. Frank Brown, principal at Melbourne, is a firm believer in the value of the non-graded program for both the bright and the slow students.

"We believe we can offer a tailor-made program for every youngster," Brown says. "We aren't going to hold back the good students, and we aren't going to throw the poor students in over their depth."

—:—

THE TRADITIONAL grade concept, Brown says, boils down to "a cage for every age."

"This is ridiculous," Brown says. "Some youngsters are whiz kids in math, and others have trouble with simple arithmetic. Why expect them to do the same work at the same time at the same pace, just because they are the same age?"

Myron L. Ashmore, superintendent of schools in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., puts it this way:

"In most schools, 70 is the cut-off point between passing a course and failing it.

"The pupil who gets a 70 is promoted to more advanced work in the next grade, even though he isn't really able to handle it. The pupil who gets a 69—just one point less—is doomed to take the entire course over again, even though he obviously knows quite a bit about it.

"It doesn't make sense."

Ft. Lauderdale this fall will open a six-year non-graded combination junior and senior high school. A non-graded elementary school will be added a year later.

The distinction of being the nation's first completely non-graded school, from first grade through 12th, goes to University School in Tallahassee, Fla., a department of the Florida State University school of education.

—:—

THE ONLY exception at University School is in the social studies, where elementary school children are grouped according to their age and normal grade level.

"There are things to be gained by having the children work with others of varying abilities," says Joe Hooten Jr., director of University School.

"This is the world of competition, the world they will live in when they leave school."

The non-graded system would seem to be made to order for grade-skipping, but most proponents of the plan want no part of such a speed-up.

Melbourne, for instance, is a three-year high school, and no matter how fast or how far a student goes he is kept in high school for the full three years.

"We need the academic leadership these students provide," Brown says.

"Besides, much of the work now being done by college freshmen ought to be done in the high school, and this way it's cheaper for the parents."

Hooten agrees.

"We aren't the least bit interested in turning out 13- and 14-year-old college students," he says. "And the parents have made it clear that isn't what they want, either."

Tractors Fit Land

Students Dial To Aid Work

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — In education, too, it is getting so you dial almost anything. Now at a University of Michigan residence hall, students can dial for homework help in their language courses.

An experimental 10 - booth language lab set up in East Quadrangle Residence Hall has full access to all language programs playing in the central Language Laboratory several blocks away.

Using a device called Dial Selector, the student gets his program over earphones by dialing a number in the booth in much the same manner as placing a long distance telephone call. It is expected the dormitory lab will be able to handle from 200 to 300 students.

These relatively inexpensive auxiliary labs are a practical solution to the ever increasing number of students needing the lab.

'Why I Chose Big School'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

An Illinois Student Explains His Reasoning

The following is by Glenn F. Van Blaricum Jr. of Princeton, Ill., who attends the University of Illinois.

As graduation from Momence, Ill., High School in the spring of 1961 drew near, I was faced with the same important decision which graduates everywhere face if they intend to further their education after high school.

Planning to major in electrical engineering, I naturally looked for an institution which has a good engineering college, and the University of Illinois, I decided, has one of the best. I felt that since the College of Engineering at Illinois is large, it would be able to provide more adequate facilities for classroom and laboratory use.

FURTHERMORE, because of the vast research facilities available, including such things as the world's largest radio telescope, the university is able to attract a large, well - qualified faculty, many of whom are world authorities in their fields.

I was also attracted to the University of Illinois because of its Edmund J. James Scholars Program, a campus-wide honors program which recognizes scholastic achievement and ability.

This program offers special sections of most courses which proceed at an accelerated rate and allow the instructor and student to work together more closely. As I had hoped, this program has proved to be both extremely interesting and beneficial.

In addition to the James Scholar program, the College of Engineering maintains its own honors program, which offers engineering students special advisers and special courses in most departments. Honor students also have special privileges, such as early registration.

ALSO, BECAUSE education consists of far more than just classroom instruction, I felt that the diversity of interests represented in a university the size of Illinois would make it an interesting and valuable place to attend.

Students come from every state and 80 foreign countries to study in more than one hundred major fields. Activities of all kinds, from athletics to art exhibits, student government to hobby clubs, are available to all students. And the university library, with close to four million items, is largest of all state university libraries.

These are some of the outstanding reasons that led to my selection of the University of Illinois, together with the obvious advantage of its being my state university.

Because it is a state school, expenses are less than those of private schools in the area, yet academic excellence is maintained. After more than three semesters of work here at the University of Illinois, I am convinced my choice was a wise one.

CITY SLICKER doesn't have to worry about threatening skies. This vinyl raincoat, which comes in yellow, bright red or black, is a sleek choice for students.

USC Begins Streamlining Its Academic Curriculum

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Starting in 1964, college course credits and cutting classes may become obsolete.

Many colleges across the country are watching closely the University of Southern California's plan to streamline its academic curriculum.

Dr. Norman Topping, president, has announced plans to abolish course credits by 1964. He said the changes will affect the undergraduate College of Letters, Arts and Sciences and the Graduate School. By September 1964, the number of courses is expected to be reduced from the present 3,500 to 2,000.

The move, Dr. Topping said, has resulted from the increasing aptitude of entering freshmen.

The USC plan includes these proposals:

Requiring 32 courses, rather than 124 units, for graduation.

Limiting the student to taking four courses a semester.

Allowing class attendance on a more permissive basis; emphasizing greater tutorial help from the faculty and increasing outside reading.

Eliminating lesser courses of one to three units to credit or incorporating them into more comprehensive courses.

Other institutions said to be reexamining their curricula are Harvard, Yale, Wesleyan University and Amherst College.

Undergraduates in the new USC plan would be enrolled in broad courses, such as an American Studies course including history, economics, government, music and art, during which several instructors would each teach his specialty. Broad courses in sciences will be offered and elective courses in literature and for eign languages may be trimmed.

Dr. Neil D. Warren, dean of the College of Letters, Arts and Sciences, who heads the undergraduate school review, said, "What we are striving to do is to eliminate fragmented education. Too many students have been taking eight subjects in a semester, instead of a manageable four or five."

Dr. Topping said the decrease in number of courses would not cause a reduction in faculty. In fact more teachers may be needed in the Graduate School with its specialized departments, he said.

Rural Youth Reminded Of School Value

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Rural youth in the United States are entering colleges at less than half the rate of urban young people.

K. E. Gardner, associate dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois, urges rural citizens to become informed about our educational shortcoming and then pledge themselves to work for improvement.

"Education still remains the best single method for a man to lift himself by his own bootstraps," Gardner says.

"The home must be a library and a study hall, serving as a continuation of the school house or the local Carnegie library for evenings, weekends and vacations," in his view.

Gardner also points out that poor grammar may not seriously damage the economic success of an established farmer or businessman, but it can permanently handicap a young son or daughter whose ears are constantly bombarded by incorrect pronunciations, colloquialisms and inadequate vocabulary usage.

Today's farmers, as they participate in solving new rural-urban problems, are finding that they can best exert their proper influence when they have adequate speaking ability coupled with an aptitude for well-written exposition. Gardner says this will be even more true of the businessman-farmer of tomorrow.

Students Learn Language By Ear Instead Of Book

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. (AP) — Learning a language by ear rather than by the book has been intensified in the new language laboratory installed here at Mount Holyoke College.

Each student receives a cartridge of tape for use during her study of French. The instructor's voice is indelibly recorded on the tape, but the student's portion can be erased and re-recorded as often as she likes.

Other advances include a special switch in the language booth which will enable the individual student to talk privately with her instructor.

Another switch permits the instructor to monitor the student's work without her knowledge and then communicate with her to correct her mistakes.

Other adaptations can be made so that instructor and two or three students can talk together from different booths, or less able students can cut in on a more expert student's recitation.

According to Prof. Paul F. Saintonge, chairman of the French Department, these new techniques make it possible for the student to have nearly total individualized instruction.

Swedish Criminals Will Build Houses

TILLBERGA, Sweden (AP)—Next year a group of first - time convicted criminals in a new prison farm will start paying off their debt to society by building four-room houses.

Inmates will be paid a yearly wage of between $1,400 and $2,000. From this will be deducted taxes, board and room, allowances to families and court costs for their trials.

It is estimated that this form of criminal rehabilitation will cost some $400 more yearly per prisoner.

An Illinois Student Explains His Reasoning

The following is by Glenn F. Van Blaricum Jr. of Princeton, Ill., who attends the University of Illinois.

As graduation from Momence, Ill., High School in the spring of 1961 drew near, I was faced with the same important decision which graduates everywhere face if they intend to further their education after high school.

Planning to major in electrical engineering, I naturally looked for an institution which has a good engineering college, and the University of Illinois, I decided, has one of the best. I felt that since the College of Engineering at Illinois is large, it would be able to provide more adequate facilities for classroom and laboratory use.

FURTHERMORE, because of the vast research facilities available, including such things as the world's largest radio telescope, the university is able to attract a large, well - qualified faculty, many of whom are world authorities in their fields.

I was also attracted to the University of Illinois because of its Edmund J. James Scholars Program, a campus-wide honors program which recognizes scholastic achievement and ability.

This program offers special sections of most courses which proceed at an accelerated rate and allow the instructor and student to work together more closely. As I had hoped, this program has proved to be both extremely interesting and beneficial.

In addition to the James Scholar program, the College of Engineering maintains its own honors program, which offers engineering students special advisers and special courses in most departments. Honor students also have special privileges, such as early registration.

ALSO, BECAUSE education consists of far more than just classroom instruction, I felt that the diversity of interests represented in a university the size of Illinois would make it an interesting and valuable place to attend.

Students come from every state and 80 foreign countries to study in more than one hundred major fields. Activities of all kinds, from athletics to art exhibits, student government to hobby clubs, are available to all students. And the university library, with close to four million items, is largest of all state university libraries.

These are some of the outstanding reasons that led to my selection of the University of Illinois, together with the obvious advantage of its being my state university.

Because it is a state school, expenses are less than those of private schools in the area, yet academic excellence is maintained. After more than three semesters of work here at the University of Illinois, I am convinced my choice was a wise one.

CITY SLICKER doesn't have to worry about threatening skies. This vinyl raincoat, which comes in yellow, bright red or black, is a sleek choice for students.

USC Begins Streamlining Its Academic Curriculum

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Starting in 1964, college course credits and cutting classes may become obsolete.

Many colleges across the country are watching closely the University of Southern California's plan to streamline its academic curriculum.

Dr. Norman Topping, president, has announced plans to abolish course credits by 1964. He said the changes will affect the undergraduate College of Letters, Arts and Sciences and the Graduate School. By September 1964, the number of courses is expected to be reduced from the present 3,500 to 2,000.

The move, Dr. Topping said, has resulted from the increasing aptitude of entering freshmen.

The USC plan includes these proposals:

Requiring 32 courses, rather than 124 units, for graduation.

Limiting the student to taking four courses a semester.

Allowing class attendance on a more permissive basis; emphasizing greater tutorial help from the faculty and increasing outside reading.

Eliminating lesser courses of one to three units to credit or incorporating them into more comprehensive courses.

Other institutions said to be reexamining their curricula are Harvard, Yale, Wesleyan University and Amherst College.

Undergraduates in the new USC plan would be enrolled in broad courses, such as an American Studies course including history, economics, government, music and art, during which several instructors would each teach his specialty. Broad courses in sciences will be offered and elective courses in literature and for eign languages may be trimmed.

Dr. Neil D. Warren, dean of the College of Letters, Arts and Sciences, who heads the undergraduate school review, said, "What we are striving to do is to eliminate fragmented education. Too many students have been taking eight subjects in a semester, instead of a manageable four or five."

Dr. Topping said the decrease in number of courses would not cause a reduction in faculty. In fact more teachers may be needed in the Graduate School with its specialized departments, he said.

Students Learn Language By Ear Instead Of Book

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. (AP) — Learning a language by ear rather than by the book has been intensified in the new language laboratory installed here at Mount Holyoke College.

Each student receives a cartridge of tape for use during her study of French. The instructor's voice is indelibly recorded on the tape, but the student's portion can be erased and re-recorded as often as she likes.

Other advances include a special switch in the language booth which will enable the individual student to talk privately with her instructor.

Another switch permits the instructor to monitor the student's work without her knowledge and then communicate with her to correct her mistakes.

Other adaptations can be made so that instructor and two or three students can talk together from different booths, or less able students can cut in on a more expert student's recitation.

According to Prof. Paul F. Saintonge, chairman of the French Department, these new techniques make it possible for the student to have nearly total individualized instruction.

Rural Youth Reminded Of School Value

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Rural youth in the United States are entering colleges at less than half the rate of urban young people.

K. E. Gardner, associate dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois, urges rural citizens to become informed about our educational shortcoming and then pledge themselves to work for improvement.

"Education still remains the best single method for a man to lift himself by his own bootstraps," Gardner says.

"The home must be a library and a study hall, serving as a continuation of the school house or the local Carnegie library for evenings, weekends and vacations," in his view.

Gardner also points out that poor grammar may not seriously damage the economic success of an established farmer or businessman, but it can permanently handicap a young son or daughter whose ears are constantly bombarded by incorrect pronunciations, colloquialisms and inadequate vocabulary usage.

Today's farmers, as they participate in solving new rural-urban problems, are finding that they can best exert their proper influence when they have adequate speaking ability coupled with an aptitude for well-written exposition. Gardner says this will be even more true of the businessman-farmer of tomorrow.

Swedish Criminals Will Build Houses

TILLBERGA, Sweden (AP)—Next year a group of first - time convicted criminals in a new prison farm will start paying off their debt to society by building four-room houses.

Inmates will be paid a yearly wage of between $1,400 and $2,000. From this will be deducted taxes, board and room, allowances to families and court costs for their trials.

It is estimated that this form of criminal rehabilitation will cost some $400 more yearly per prisoner.

Rhymes Set To Music Aid In Teaching

Anyone who has ever said, "Thirty days hath September" to determine the length of a month knows that it's easier to remember poetry than prose.

And if the poetry is set to music, it's even easier to remember.

Therefore, two teachers at Walteria School, Torrance, Calif., are teaching beginning readers simple rules and phonic sounds by setting their lessons to song.

Mrs. Marilyn Hickson, Mrs. Dorothea Hodgkinson and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Foster worked out the teaching method five years ago.

"We talked with each other about the best way to interest the children and to help them remember the sounds," Mrs. Hodgkinson said, "and we began making rhymes.

"Mr. Foster, who is a music teacher, set them to melodies. Later Mrs. Hickson drew illustrations."

The Fosters are no longer in Torrance, but before they left, two books resulted, "Singing Sounds", released by the Bowmar Educational Record Co. of Los Angeles.

The "Singing Sounds" books are reminiscent of the old alphabet books, often printed on linen, that once were standard nursery equipment.

However, records come with the new volumes, so children can hear and learn to sing the phonic songs.

And "Singing Sounds" books don't present the letters in alphabetical order.

The first volume, Mrs. Hodgkinson said, presents consonants at the beginning of words — in situations where each consonant's sound is always the same.

The second volume teaches the sounds of letter combinations, such as "ch," of vowels and of consonants with more than one sound (the soft and hard "g" for example).

One simple rhyme from "Singing Sounds" suggests how youngsters learn their musical reading lessons:

"The vowels have many sounds, you see.

"Come and sing them now with me.

"A, E, I, O and U.

"Sometimes Y and W too."

"However," Mrs. Hodgkinson said, "this should be used only as one tool in teaching reading. A reading teacher uses many methods."

Some Dog Catcher

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — James Roberts took a lot of kidding from his friends after he made an unsuccessful search for his dog. Roberts is Kenton County dog warden.

CLOTHES-CONSCIOUS COED IS SEEN AROUND CAMPUS (left) on an informal date in a long-sleeved polyester and cotton shift with panel of pleats front and back. Color is probably deep—cranberry, burgundy, deep teal blue—and a matching spaghetti belt most of the time won't be worn. Corduroy appears in varied widths and colors and in an important back-to-school style—the jumper worn over a long-sleeved shirt. (center) This fall also brings a tendency to wools; coarse and nubby weaves; solids, checks and plaids; and the A-line with a slimmed down skirt. Jumpers like the wool hounds tooth check with high boat neckline will be a most popular fall silhouette. Another important look (right) is covered - up, long sleeved, full and wool. In this one, large blocks are in subtle colorings.

More High Schools Offer Russian

SEATTLE (AP) — Gol, Gol, Daitye Nam Gol. Mui Hotim, Mui Hotim, Gol, Gol, Gol!

Loosely translated, that's Russian for "Give us a touchdown; we want a touchdown."

If it sounds ominous think what the Garfield team felt when the Sealth cheering section threw out that chant in a high school football game here last year.

Causing consternation on a gridiron may be a reason for learning Russian, but more than 500 students studying the language in 16 Washington state high schools have better ones.

—:—

SOME WANT to be chemists, others diplomats, teachers or engineers. All agree on one thing—like it or not, Russians play an important part in our lives and we'd better be able to communicate with them.

In the past half - dozen years ambitious students and teachers have given Washington one of the nation's most promising Russian language programs.

The national magazine The Saturday Review has said 9,607 American high school students studied Russian last year. Some 504 were in Washington.

Six Seattle high schools offer Russian courses, but it's not a big city monopoly. The language also is taught in Tacoma, Richland, Ione, Kent, Metaline Falls, Moses Lake, Mountlake Terrace, Olympia and Bellevue schools.

The students taking Russian represent a wide scholastic cross section but have one thing in common — ambition.

One is Carol Jaensen, a senior at Roosevelt High School here who will be studying second - year Russian. Her goal is a career in foreign service with the State Department. Like most others in the class she feels mastery of the Russian language will be an essential skill in her profession.

—:—

MORE YEARS of Russian in college are still ahead. But she's gotten over the biggest hurdles—she likes the language and isn't afraid of it.

Fear is one of the worst problems the Russian instructor has to face.

Some promising students look at the Cyrillic alphabet and run for cover. The Russian teacher, therefore, has to be a salesman. He also has to grope his way in the course because Russian is new to American schools.

Two of the pathfinders are Igor Gladstone, teacher at Roosevelt, and Solomon Birulin, teacher at Sealth. Both are of Russian parentage and are working on a textbook for teaching Russian.

Their aims are to make students feel at home with the language and be able to converse about everyday things. They avoid getting bogged down with complex Russian grammatical forms and stress conversation, experimentation and imagination.

Birulin has put Russian verses to Christmas carols, but his biggest hit was leading the Sealth cheer that bewildered the Garfield gridders.

Like most foreign languages, the study of Russian is repetition and hard work.

But students and teachers alike think it's worth the trouble.

Entrance Exams Are Tough In Japanese Kindergartens

TOKYO (AP) — Little Junior of Sister Jane may be old enough, ready and willing to march off to kindergarten. But in Japan today there is more to it than that. They may flunk out before ever being enrolled.

Education has become so competitive in this country that even kindergartens have entrance examinations — tough ones for the age level.

Some of the questions known to have been asked to children 3 or 4 years old include counting backwards from 20, counting money, drawing and telling the difference between circles, squares and triangles and indicating the correct color signal for crossing the street.

Unless the tot knows the answers, the chances are he or she will be turned down.

The better kindergartens have anywhere up to 10 times the number of applicants they can take.

One newspaper columnist recently wrote:

"The grimness of it struck me the other morning when I met a lady from my neighborhood and her son. As they looked so depressed and crestfallen, I had to ask what had happened.

"The lady, almost in tears, took a mournful look at her son and mumbled: 'He failed in his kindergarten entrance examination.' And the normally cheerful boy, born only 40-odd months ago, burst into tears."

The whole problem is part of a vicious cycle having its origins in the traditional Japanese belief that in order to succeed in life one must graduate from the "right" universities. A degree from a top-rated university opens the door to the best jobs; it is virtually a lifetime pass to success.

The chances of passing entrance exams to the "right" university are better if one graduates from the "right high school, the high school with which that particular university "has connections."

One such high school reported that in entrance exams it held last January the number of applicants outnumbered enrollment capacity 34 to one.

The same relationship exists between high school and primary school and between primary school and kindergarten, which means that for some Japanese, success or failure in life is often determined barely after the diaper stage.

Kentucky Students Tune In To Library

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — When University of Louisville students have a theme to do they can enjoy personal lectures to bone up.

There are listening booths in the school library with connections to the main public library downtown. The tape-recorded lectures by wire cover subjects from philosophy to Indian's foreign policy. Whole novels and works of poetry also have been recorded.

Most of Basutoland's 11,716 square miles cling to the steep sides of the Darkensberg Range, largest in South Africa.

'Can't Do Anything,' Young Student Sobs

SALEM, N. H. (AP) — Teachers were unable to quiet one little boy entering school for the first time in his life.

He sobbed uncontrollably until the principal, Miss Mary Valeska, took him in tow. She asked:

"Why are you crying, dear — don't you like school?"

"I like it but I'm afraid," he sobbed. "I don't know how to read or write or anything."

CINCINNATI (AP) — Frank Quam, a 23-year-old Zuni Indian and the first Indian graduate of the University of Cincinnati pharmacy school, will return to the reservation.

"I wanted to work with my people and this was the best way to do it," Quam said. "There are many older Indians who don't want to have anything to do with new medicine or new methods.

"Maybe I will be a good example to them. I hope so."

The program was arranged by Cornell alumni in Washington for the visitors, many of whom will assume positions of responsibility on their return to their native countries.

The 40 students represented 22 countries. Cornell's foreign student population numbers approximately 850 and represents 85 lands.

The 40 students met and talked with several congressmen and senators and with men prominent in our space program and in foreign relations at the State Department. They were given special tours of the White House and State Department and also toured the National Gallery of Art, Supreme Court Building, Smithsonian Institution, Lincoln Memorial and Jefferson Memorial.

They were entertained in the homes of Cornell alumni in the Washington area and were able to observe American family life at close hand.

They Quarrel In English Under Kenya's New Plan

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — "You'll be sorry!" the small boy shouted angrily.

The other boy, who had taken his book and sprinted off across the school yard, shouted back, "I don't care!"

Their schoolteacher watched indulgently and commented: "When they start to quarrel in English we know we're really getting somewhere."

The boys were Kikuyu, attending an African primary school on the outskirts of Nairobi.

The system by which African and Asian children in Kenya are taught English has caught the attention of educationists in other African countries, the United States and Scandinavia.

Described as the PEAK system (Preliminary Education East Africa, Kenya), it requires all teaching to be done in English, instead of in the children's mother tongue.

In the past, primary education for African and Asian children was conducted in their mother tongues — a variety of 16 major African vernaculars and four major Asian vernaculars.

When they reached secondary schools, where instruction was mainly in English, most of them tended to think in their mother tongues and translate, often inadequately, into English.

A five - man team, headed by G. E. Perren, now linguistics adviser to the British Council in London, started in 1957 to devise books to allow the teaching of English from scratch. It was a long job.

It meant breaking down the English language and reassembling it to meet the needs of young children.

Language was organized around objects and experiences familiar to them so that at no stage would meaning be lost. Vocabulary and sentence patterns were gradually extended to keep pace with the children's mental development.

Finally the plan was ready and in 1958 a pilot scheme began, after 25 Asian teachers had been trained in the new technique in eight government schools in Nairobi. The system has proved so successful that it is now being used in almost all Asian primary schools and in many African primary schools.

Althogether, about 15,000 primary school children throughout Kenya are learning English as soon as they go to school and are learning all their subjects in English.

One of the architects of the system, Charles O'Hagen, who left his home at Ashford, near London, 30 years ago to teach in India and later joined the Kenya Education Department, described the system as "a freeing of the mind.

"The rewards from this system in our schools can be very great," O'Hagan explained.

"It can produce a generation of farmers and artisans who, even if they never go further than primary school, will still be fully literate in English; technicians who can understand a textbook or manual without difficulty; and an intelligentsia who can be on terms with the educated Western world."

The Ford Foundation was interested enough in the project at the beginning to make a grant of $20,000 to finance production of the first set of books and last year it granted another $22,000 to help extend application of the system.

Legislator Expresses Views On Education

VANCOUVER (AP) — Legislator Dave Barnett says persons over 30 should not have to complete high school courses before applying for a university.

Urgig that an aptitude and ability test should be sufficient, Barnett says, "Most people at the age of 35 with average intelligence have garnered enough life experience and maturity to handle a university education."

Barnett adds, "Holland has used the program for a number of years."

Technical High Students Spur Learning By Doing

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — There's more than a diploma to show for the work done by about 100 high school-age students at the Williamsport Technical Institute in the past year.

They've built a whole house, and, at auction, expected to return over $16,000 to the Williamsport Area Joint School District.

However, the principal idea was to give practical experience in the building trades to as many students as possible.

"Every student in the courses had a hand in doing the work on the house," says Clyde C. Cotner, head of the institute's building trades department.

As many as 30 to 40 students worked on the house at one time, and every bit of work was done by students under teacher supervision.

The planning was done by WTI student draftsmen in 1961. Excavation — on land already owned by the schools — was done by Tech's heavy equipment department and students in masonry worked on the foundations and cellar walls.

When it was nearly completed, they even called in the girls from the Williamsport High School's home economics department to help select colors and decorations.

Theory was taught in the classrooms—carpentry, plumbing, electrical work and sheet metal trades — and put to work on the job.

Where possible without disturbing the design, different types of construction methods were used for a variety of training for the students. The roof, as an example, was built with every type of rafter in common use.

Local builders, according to Cotner, were high in praise for the project, as were union officials in the community.

Although participation in the project did not automatically qualify the student workmen for jobs, the experience gained is going a long way toward helping them to obtain employment when their courses are completed.

Other technical schools throughout the state have expressed interest in similar activity. A number sent students on tour to visit the work in progress.

Chinese Lessons Begin On The Spoken Word

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The newest techniques of foreign language instruction are being applied at Michigan State University in teaching one of the world's oldest and most difficult languages.

Some 18 students toiled through 10 weeks of first-year and second-year courses at MSU this summer and when they finished their brains were crammed with what MSU officials term the equivalent of two years of Chinese.

The MSU course was planned by Dr. James Wang, a former director of instruction at the U. S. Army Language School in Monterey, Calif.

It begins with simple oral instruction, using language laboratories in which students recite on tape recordings what are known as "pattern drills," or logical progressions of words, in phrases and sentences.

From there, the course moves on to reading and eventually to writing Chinese. At the end of the course, the accomplished student is able to use Chinese for pursuit of other studies.

In pre-World War II days, most foreign language instruction was based on the theory of grammatical analysis, a legacy of Latin teaching.

"Today, the generally accepted doctrine of language teaching is to begin with the spoken word and then the student learns, at this own rate, to read only what he understands and later to write only what he can read," said Wang.

"This is a practical method of teaching language. The student knows what he is saying or reading at all times."

Studying nothing but Chinese during the 10-week summer session, the first-year Chinese students spent 250 contact-hours in prescribed drills plus a minimum of three hours a week, or 30 hours, in the laboratories. In the second-year course, they spent 180 contact-hours plus 30 in lab study.

The second - year students emerge from the course with ability to read, and in many cases write, 1,800 to 2,000 Chinese characters — a little less than half what is required for reading Chinese papers and periodicals—but nevertheless, a working knowledge.

Yacht Of Late FDR On Display

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP)— The 165-Potomac, formerly the presidential yacht of Franklin D. Roosevelt, is on display as a museum in King Harbor. It is filled with momentoes of the Roosevelt era.

The Potomac was built in 1934 as the U.S. Coast Guard patrol boat Electra. It was converted and renamed in 1935.

The ship was host to kings, queens, prime ministers and many other international figures and it was on board that President Roosevelt drafted the Four Freedoms.

During the Truman administration, the Potomac was transferred to the state of Maryland. It later was purchased by private interests and most recently has been used as a cargo carrier.

Present owners are seeking to take the Potomac to the New York World's Fair in 1964.

Ghosts are still considered to roam many historic castles, churches and homes in Britain.

Glass Blowing Can Be Learned In U.S. School

TRENTON, N. J. (AP) — The acute shortage of glassblowers needed to make scientific apparatus led to the establishment of a two-year course in glass blowing technology at Salem County Vocational - Technical Institute.

This is the only such program offered this side of the Iron Curtain. The only other school in the world giving a course in glass blowing, which traditionally is a family trade, is located in Bavaria, East Germany.

There are only about 1,000 glass blowers in this country. Salem Tech school officials say trained glass blowers are so badly needed that industries have pirated students before they have finished the course. Southern New Jersey is a glass industry center and home of several industrial research laboratories.

Only high school graduates are accepted for the program. Students spend three hours each morning in the glass-blowing laboratory where they learn to design and make glass equipment.

They also take, during the first year, four hours a week of industrial chemistry, four of measurement mathematics, three of blueprint reading and drawing and four of technical English.

In the second year students take six hours a week of physics, four of mathematics, three of machine shop and two of English report writing.

First graduates of the glass - blowing course went into industry in June 1962.

'College Crush' Becomes Rougher

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

This is what the "college crush" is, and what it means:

Almost 1,600 high school graduates sought admission to Amherst College as freshmen this fall. Only 300 will be enrolled.

Almost 10,000 applied for admission as freshmen to the University of Maryland. About 5,000 will be enrolled.

Amherst is a private institution. Maryland is a tax-supported state university. Both are feeling the squeeze.

The college crush has been sneaking up on this country for the past 10 years. Now it's here. And it is expected to be even worse next year.

COLLEGE enrollments are expected to double during the decade of the 1960s. The College Entrance Examination Board says that half the 10-year increase will be concentrated in the 1963-64 and 1964-65 academic years.

Ironically, and despite the fearful figures quoted above, it still is possible for the average high school graduate (and some below-average, too) to get into college.

It may not be the college he wants, but this shouldn't prevent him getting a good education.

The hard fact is that more than 50 per cent of the applications for admission go to fewer than 10 per cent of the 2,000 colleges and universities in this country.

Many excellent small colleges, both public and private, have room for more students than they enroll each fall.

And it is sometimes possible to get into even the most selective colleges by applying for admission at midyear, when the inevitable dropouts and flunk-outs leave openings.

Junior colleges, the long-scorned step-sisters of higher education, are playing an increasingly important role in easing the college crush. Generally speaking, it is much easier to transfer to a four-year college or university as a junior after two years in a good junior college than it is to start out in a four-year institution right after high school graduation.

To repeat: it still is possible for the average high school graduate to get into college.

THIS IS THE WAY it has been going:

In 1953, total enrollment in college and professional schools was 2.4 million. In 1957 it was 3.1 million. Last fall it was 4.2 million, an increase of 77 per cent since 1953.

And this is the way it is expected to go:

In the fall of 1963, 4.4 million; in 1964, 4.8 million; in 1965, 5.2 million; in 1970, 7 million; in 1975 8.6 million.

Part of the sharp increase is due to the population explosion, the big crop of babies born soon after World War II. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, 36 per cent of the total U. S. population is age 17 or under.

But that is only part of the story.

Not only are there more youngsters, but more of these youngsters want to go on to college.

In 1900, only 4 per cent of all high school graduates continued their formal education. By 1940, it was 16 per cent. By 1959 it had jumped to 39 per cent, and by 1962 to a fantastic 58 per cent.

The percentage is almost certain to keep climbing. No one can even guess where it will stop.

Part of the reason is that in today's technological world, the best jobs usually demand more than a high school education. Muscles alone are going out of style in the labor market.

Status is involved, too.

COLLEGE admissions officers, probably the most maligned people in America today, complain that too many parents insist their children go on to college, to a "prestige" institution if possible.

This is a laudable and natural ambition, the admissions people say, but not always realistic.

Some youngsters lack the ability to do college work, and-or would much happier doing work that does not require a four-year college education. For many of these, the solution might be a two-year technical course in a community or junior college.

In many ways, then, the college crush becomes a statistical phenomenon clouded by figures which often are meaningless.

A typical high school graduate applies for admission to four, five, six or even more colleges, in hopes of getting into at least one. He then becomes a part of the college crush at each institution.

Some students apply without any real hope of getting in, or real interest in attending if they do.

For instance:

Each year the University of Maryland informs some of its applicants for the freshmen class that they are borderline cases. To qualify for fall admission, they are told, they must attend a six-week summer school.

The summer school consists of two courses, one of which must be English. The applicant is told he must pass both courses, and get at least a "C" in one of them —hardly a rigorous admission standard.

According to Maryland officials, anywhere from 1,000 to 2,000 applicants don't bother to show up. About 500 applicants usually take the summer course, and only half of them qualify for fall admission.

—:—

MOST EDUCATORS agree that the solution to the college crush, if indeed there is a solution, lies with the state colleges and universities and the junior colleges.

Private institutions, although growing slowly, generally try to limit their enrollments, and are becoming more and more selective.

When a private college talks of expansion, it usually is in terms of several hundred more students.

The state institutions, on the other hand, are expanding as fast as funds become available. Michigan State University, for instance, has jumped from 6,000 to 25,000 students in just over 20 years.

Who are the victims of the closing college doors?

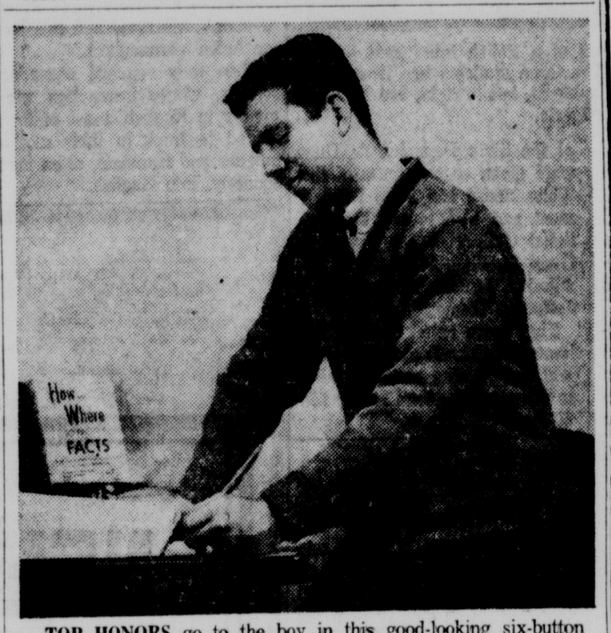
Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State, told U.S. News & World Report in an interview, "it is the great middle of our school population.

"The top quarters of the high school classes are going to get into a university," he said. "The bottom quarters — well, maybe they shouldn't, maybe they should. There are other useful things they can do besides the things for which a university can train them.

"But there is that great group in the middle that needs an education, too, from the point of view of what's good for society. If society doesn't provide enough facilities in the colleges and universities for this group that should be educated, then the universities have only one recourse —to become more and more selective.

"This can be very bad indeed," Dr. Hannah said.". . .I think all Americans should recognize that, in dealing with the problem facing colleges, we are dealing with the future of our society."

BOARDING SCHOOL NEATNESS. The boy in school away from home can't lose the brush for his jacket when it's part of the coathanger. Hanger also folds, for transporting by suitcase.



TOP HONORS go to the boy in this good-looking six-button cardigan with V-neck and color-coordinated trim. The wool and polyester sweater has two pockets and simulated suede elbow patches and is completely machine washable and dryable.

WELL GROOMED whatever the weather, this student wears a water-repellent cotton gabardine coat styled in multicolor shadow check.

LIGHT BUT WARM. This coat, its fabric a blend of wool and acrylic fibers, is wonderfully lightweight yet warm and dependably water repellent.

Old Ironsides hasn't been outside of Boston Harbor since 1934.

New Group Helps Foreign Students Looking For Jobs

CHICAGO (AP) — Foreign students who need employment and contact with Americans are finding help from the Foundation for International Cooperation here.

Many foreign students in the United States are in this country without government sponsorship.

Ann Marten, executive secretary of the FIC office for aid, says, "Many students who come on their own get here one way or another, assuming the money they have to start with will last."

Often they find they need additional money to finish their study.

An advisory council comprised of men from industry, finance, labor and professional organizations now is active in the FIC. It helps find jobs, especially summer jobs, for these students who are unfamiliar with employment approaches in the United States.

This summer some 300 foreign students were placed in jobs in and near Chicago.

The Foundation for International Cooperation was founded two years ago as an outgrowth of home activity in the Christian Family Movement of the Catholic Church.

Its offerings of home hospitality to foreign students sparked the movement.

The work now is directed by the International Institute of Education in New York.

Lots Of Advertising

PARIS, Ky. (AP) — There's no tobacco industry in Greenland, yet there's plenty of advertising on the island for the Paris, Ky., burley market.

When Jim Blake of the Coast Guard was home on leave, he picked up a handful of bumper stickers reading "Sell your tobacco in Paris, Ky."

Now they're decorating dog sleds, tractors and a few small ships in Greenland.

'College Crush' Becomes Rougher

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

This is what the "college crush" is, and what it means:

Almost 1,600 high school graduates sought admission to Amherst College as freshmen this fall. Only 300 will be enrolled.

Almost 10,000 applied for admission as freshmen to the University of Maryland. About 5,000 will be enrolled.

Amherst is a private institution, Maryland is a tax-supported state university. Both are feeling the squeeze.

The college crush has been sneaking up on this country for the past 10 years. Now it's here. And it is expected to be even worse next year.

COLLEGE enrollments are expected to double during the decade of the 1960s. The College Entrance Examination Board says that half the 10-year increase will be concentrated in the 1963-64 and 1964-65 academic years.

Ironically, and despite the fearful figures quoted above, it still is possible for the average high school graduate (and some below-average, too) to get into college.

It may not be the college he wants, but this shouldn't prevent him getting a good education.

The hard fact is that more than 50 per cent of the applications for admission go to fewer than 10 per cent of the 2,000 colleges and universities in this country.

Many excellent small colleges, both public and private, have room for more students than they enroll each fall.

And it is sometimes possible to get into even the most selective colleges by applying for admission at midyear, when the inevitable dropouts and flunk-outs leave openings.

Junior colleges, the long-scorned step-sisters of higher education, are playing an increasingly important role in easing the college crush. Generally speaking, it is much easier to transfer to a four-year college or university as a junior after two years in a good junior college than it is to start out in a four-year institution right after high schooi graduation.

To repeat: it still is possible for the average high school graduate to get into college.

But this situation probably won't last.

—:—

THIS IS THE WAY it has been going:

In 1953, total enrollment in college and professional schools was 2.4 million. In 1957 it was 3.1 million. Last fall it was 4.2 million, an increase of 77 per cent since 1953.

And this is the way it is expected to go:

In the fall of 1963, 4.4 million; in 1964, 4.8 million; in 1965, 5.2 million; in 1970, 7 million; in 1975 8.6 million.

Part of the sharp increase is due to the population explosion, the big crop of babies born soon after World War II. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, 36 per cent of the total U. S. population is age 17 or under.

But that is only part of the story.

Not only are there more youngsters, but more of these youngsters want to go on to college.

In 1900, only 4 per cent of all high school graduates continued their formal education. By 1940, it was 16 per cent. By 1959 it had jumped to 39 per cent, and by 1962 to a fantastic 58 per cent.

The percentage is almost certain to keep climbing. No one can even guess where it will stop.

Part of the reason is that in today's technological world, the best jobs usually demand more than a high school education. Muscles alone are going out of style in the labor market.

Status is involved, too.

—:—

COLLEGE admissions officers, probably the most maligned people in America today, complain that too many parents insist their children go on to college, to a "prestige" institution if possible.

This is a laudable and natural ambition, the admissions people say, but not always realistic.

Some youngsters lack the ability to do college work, and-or would much happier doing work that does not require a four-year college education. For many of these, the solution might be a two-year technical course in a community or junior college.

In many ways, then, the college crush becomes a statistical phenomenon clouded by figures which often are meaningless.

A typical high school graduate applies for admission to four, five, six or even more colleges, in hopes of getting into at least one. He then becomes a part of the college crush at each institution.

Some students apply without any real hope of getting in, or real interest in attending if they do.

For instance:

Each year the University of Maryland informs some of its applicants for the freshmen class that they are borderline cases. To qualify for fall admission, they are told, they must attend a six-week summer school.

The summer school consists of two courses, one of which must be English. The applicant is told he must pass both courses, and get at least a "C" in one of them —hardly a rigorous admission standard.

According to Maryland officials, anywhere from 1,000 to 2,000 applicants don't bother to show up. About 500 applicants usually take the summer course, and only half of them qualify for fall admission.

—:—

MOST EDUCATORS agree that the solution to the college crush, if indeed there is a solution, lies with the state colleges and universities and the junior colleges.

Private institutions, although growing slowly, generally try to limit their enrollments, and are becoming more and more selective.

When a private college talks of expansion, it usually is in terms of several hundred more students.

The state institutions, on the other hand, are expanding as fast as funds become available. Michigan State University, for instance, has jumped from 6,000 to 25,000 students in just over 20 years.

Who are the victims of the closing college doors?

Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State, told U.S. News & World Report in an interview, "it is the great middle of our school population.

"The top quarters of the high school classes are going to get into a university," he said. "The bottom quarters — well, maybe they shouldn't, maybe they should. There are other useful things they can do besides the things for which a university can train them.

"But there is that great group in the middle that needs an education, too, from the point of view of what's good for society. If society doesn't provide enough facilities in the colleges and universities for this group that should be educated, then the universities have only one recourse —to become more and more selective.

"This can be very bad indeed," Dr. Hannah said. . .I think all Americans should recognize that, in dealing with the problem facing colleges, we are dealing with the future of our society."

Communication Was Hollering Proposition

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Communication was a hollering proposition around the turn of the century.

R. F. Anderson recalls that two women, the Beck sisters, would stand on a high point of rock jutting over Barren River. He says both easily could be heard across the water.

"Boats were slowed down, or even stopped, abreast of Sally's Rock for the exchange of news and questions. 'Tell Jett Hines to find out what feathers are bringing in Bowling Green' or 'Aunt Trudy Jones is sick and wants somebody to tell her folks in Calhoun.'

"In a phoneless and almost roadless day," Anderson says, "the zeal of the Beck sisters did much to make life brighter by simply passing the word."

BOARDING SCHOOL NEATNESS. The boy in school away from home can't lose the brush for his jacket when it's part of the coathanger. Hanger also folds, for transporting by suitcase.

TOP HONORS go to the boy in this good-looking six-button cardigan with V-neck and color-coordinated trim. The wool and polyester sweater has two pockets and simulated suede elbow patches and is completely machine washable and dryable.

WELL GROOMED whatever the weather, this student wears a water-repellent cotton gabardine coat styled in multicolor shadow check.

LIGHT BUT WARM. This coat, its fabric a blend of wool and acrylic fibers, is wonderfully lightweight yet warm and dependably water repellent.

Old Ironsides hasn't been outside of Boston Harbor since 1934.

Lots Of Advertising

PARIS, Ky. (AP) — There's no tobacco industry in Greenland, yet there's plenty of advertising on the island for the Paris, Ky., burley market.

When Jim Blake of the Coast Guard was home on leave, he picked up a handful of bumper stickers reading "Sell your tobacco in Paris, Ky."

Now they're decorating dog sleds, tractors and a few small ships in Greenland.

New Group Helps Foreign Students Looking For Jobs

CHICAGO (AP) — Foreign students who need employment and contact with Americans are finding help from the Foundation for International Cooperation here.

Many foreign students in the United States are in this country without government sponsorship.

Ann Marten, executive secretary of the FIC office for aid, says, "Many students who come on their own get here one way or another, assuming the money they have to start with will last."

Often they find they need additional money to finish their study.

An advisory council comprised of men from industry, finance, labor and professional organizations now is active in the FIC. It helps find jobs, especially summer jobs, for these students who are unfamiliar with employment approaches in the United States.

This summer some 300 foreign students were placed in jobs in and near Chicago.

The Foundation for International Cooperation was founded two years ago as an outgrowth of home activity in the Christian Family Movement of the Catholic Church.

Its offerings of home hospitality to foreign students sparked the movement.

The work now is directed by the International Institute of Education in New York.

PTA Still Grows Despite Critics

CHICAGO (AP) — Although Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover has suggested that units of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers are an "infernal nuisance", PTA membership continues to grow at an all-time rate.

The PTA now has more than 12 million members of some 47,000 PTAs.

Rickover, father of the atomic submarine, exploded his academic shot at the PTA during an appearance at a Fund for the Republic Convention in New York City. He said:

"The object of education is not salable skills — it's to develop the intellect. We must turn education back to the teachers and take it out of the hand of promoters and administrators."

The national PTA headquarters in Chicago discretely refrained from commenting, but Mrs. Newton Grobe, president of the Chicago PTA, replied, "If he would take time to look into the matter he would see how wrong he is."

Rickover likely isn't the first or the last to level a blast at the PTA. Even among its own councils there are voices of disproval, and some units occasionally withdraw from its activity.

It is possible that it was considered a "busybody" organization when the National Congress of Mothers first met in Washington D. C., in February 1897. A lone man was present among 2,000 women.

In 1904, it passed a resolution in its Chicago meeting that no one under 16 who was illiterate could work. It also advocated the prevention of children under 16 from working at night.

The PTA introduced a hot lunch program in 1910.

In 1958, the National Congress of PTA established a committee to create interest in foreign languages in elementary and secondary schools.

When the nation's schools began teaching more foreign languages, the committee was disbanded in 1961.

Currently the PTA's revised statement of policy and its first completely revised legislative program in 20 years is being approved by its state PTA councils.

The new policies include PTA support for federal aid to education within the provision that such aid be administered through the states with a maximum of local control and go only to public tax-supported schools.

Some 40 state congresses last year supported that principle.

Now 31 of the state PTA Congresses are being asked to go on record again in its support. Approval is expected during state conventions scheduled from spring to fall, 1963.

The amount of such aid is at the discretion of Congress, but the PTA will view any proposed bills with a critical eye.

"When we enroll a new member in the PTA, we do more than add a name to a list," said Mrs. Clifford N. Jenkins, national president of the PTA.

"We try to enroll more parents to belong so we will be able to help more children."

PTA's objectives seek to provide children with homes that build moral and spiritual stamina, schools that inspire children with a zest for learning and communities that are safe and gracious places to live.

However worthy its goals, the PTA does not always please the members. Many chapters disassociate themselves from the parent organization and set up their own units.

Units in Centralia, Ill., and Aspen, Colo., for example, withdrew their memberships from the PTA in 1962.

Howard Bundy, school principal of Centralia's Elementary School, said the Franklin Chapter was spending more than $300 annually in dues, scholarship funds, publicity and district meetings to satisfy standards set up by the National Congresses of PTA.

In Aspen, Colo., Mrs. James Adams, former president of the local PTA, said the withdrawals had nothing to do with the state PTA policies.

"We just felt we could do more for our school and our children on our own," she said.

The National Congress headquarters in Chicago takes a tolerant view of the withdrawals. A spokesman said it has experienced returns to the fold after a two-year absence because the independent units begin to miss the help a national organization can give.

Indians Stored Food

RICH HILL, Mo. (AP) — Food storage pits dug by the little-known Missouri Indians for which this state was named have been unearthed near this southwest Missouri town by University of Missouri archaeologists. The Missouri Indians were almost wiped out by the Sac and Fox tribes late in the 18th Century.

'CHANEL' INFLUENCE is seen in these three-piece back-to school dresses of little or no-iron cotton. Jackets and skirts come in solid colors and checks; skirt are made with easy unpressed pleats. Blouses are crisp white pique.

TOPPING THIS wool jersey sheath skirt is a cashmere sweater styled like an overblouse, trimmed in black along the deep V-neckline and at the hip.

BUSY MEN around campus go for sports jackets like this one, box plaid, woven of 100 per cent imported wool. It's a natural shoulder model with two-button closing, convertible flap pockets and a breast pocket.

Sea water is a source of chemicals such as magnesium, bromine and salt — and a pennyworth of gold in every million gallons.

KOPRIVNICA, Yugoslavia (AP) —Martin Korosec is proud of his jumping cat. He taught the cat to jump at his command. "Jump," he orders, and the cat leaps five feet straight up.

U.S. Students Abroad Become More Serious

CHICAGO (AP) — There's a new look — and a new purpose — to the American college student who's bound for study abroad.

He's hunting for serious classroom study and wants a program of high academic quality when he takes his year abroad.

And more than likely he's going to Europe at the sophomore level, before he selects a major, rather than waiting till the customary junior year.

Officials at the Institute of European Studies here note these changes with interest, as well as the mushrooming of applicants for a year's work abroad.

About 2,400 students are now enrolled for all or part of the current year in European programs sponsored by American institutions.

And more are on the way. Says an institute spokesman. "Undergraduates make up an increasing portion of overseas students each year. Just recently, when the institute announced it would provide guidance to American colleges searching for a European full-year or one-semester program, it was staggered by the results. Officials of 85 colleges and universities asked for help. As a result, 71 new programs are being planned by the institute, of which at least one-third will be academic-year programs."

This burgeoning of enthusiasm for European studies pleases the institute's officials, who long have decried watered-down programs, which offer vague intercultural experiences, or travel-with-college-credit programs that may not stand up to intellectual scrutiny.

They also give their blessing to the sophomore year of study, because the European experience can broaden the student's general education in the liberal arts field.

At the junior level, it is very possible, they say, that the student's major will be taken in a field other than the humanities, so humanities work in a foreign university, while enriching, may sidetrack him from his specialty.

It's Chore Time

IRVINE, Ky. (AP) — After Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McGee were sworn in as jurors for a murder trial, they realized no one was left at home to do the farm chores. They explained the situation to the judge at the end of the first day's session and he sent the entire panel, under guard, to the McGee home for a few hours.

And more than likely he's going to Europe at the sophomore level, before he selects a major, rather than waiting till the customary junior year.

Officials at the Institute of European Studies here note these changes with interest, as well as the mushrooming of applicants for a year's work abroad.

About 2,400 students are now enrolled for all or part of the current year in European programs sponsored by American institutions.

And more are on the way. Says an institute spokesman. "Undergraduates make up an increasing portion of overseas students each year. Just recently, when the institute announced it would provide guidance to American colleges searching for a European full-year or one-semester program, it was staggered by the results. Officials of 85 colleges and universities asked for help. As a result, 71 new programs are being planned by the institute, of which at least one-third will be academic-year programs."

This burgeoning of enthusiasm for European studies pleases the institute's officials, who long have decried watered-down programs, which offer vague intercultural experiences, or travel-with-college-credit programs that may not stand up to intellectual scrutiny.

They also give their blessing to the sophomore year of study, because the European experience can broaden the student's general education in the liberal arts field.

At the junior level, it is very possible, they say, that the student's major will be taken in a field other than the humanities, so humanities work in a foreign university, while enriching, may sidetrack him from his specialty.

IRVINE, Ky. (AP) — After Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McGee were sworn in as jurors for a murder trial, they realized no one was left at home to do the farm chores. They explained the situation to the judge at the end of the first day's session and he sent the entire panel, under guard, to the McGee home for a few hours.

Many New Schools Go Straight Up

CHICAGO (AP) — The scarcity of land now is causing architects to consider building schools that go straight up.

A Chicago architectural firm, one of the country's leading designers of educational buildings, has designed a school of 24 stories, plus a low-rise building for administration and assemblies.

It is a new trend of thought in school buildings, particularly in cities where space is in short supply.

Six compact school units are spaced on four-floor segments, with each unit having a capacity for 480 students.

As in skyscraper office buildings, services for the school tower are concentrated in a central core. Surrounding space is open and flexible to accommodate the varied needs of education in the future.

Charles W. Brubaker, architect, suggests that the design will prove thought-provoking to school space concepts which are based on today's sprawling suburban tracts of land.

—:—

HE SUGGESTS this offers a solution to a new high school, new community college and-or urban revitalization programs.

If a new trend in school building takes hold with boards of education, a lot of favored architectural concepts will be tossed aside.

School designs which string classrooms down long corridors, and longer wings, will be old hat.

Glass will nearly disappear in the schoolroom.

And with controlled lighting and air-conditioning, the climate in each classroom will be equable.

Such compact schools built in square or rectangular masses are now in operation in places as divergent as Kimberly, Wis., Montgomery County, Md., and Beaumont, Tex.

And here's why school boards like them:

Their compactness slashes heating costs and more than pays for air-conditioning.

The square block design means the school is designed from the inside out, with due consideration to today's teaching methods, which feature small conference rooms, multiple purpose classrooms and individual study cubicles.

In the South Park School in Beaumont, Tex., the core of the building includes 24 teaching units which may be subdivided for smaller discussion groups. Around the outside of the square are permanent classrooms.

—:—

IN SCHOOLS of similar design, teaching stations and desks are arranged for the maximum effectiveness of the subject being taught, without regard for the need for natural lighting.

Walls come into their own for all kinds of uses not only with chalk boards, but peg boards and tack board space.

Since rooms - without - windows can be darkened at the flip of a switch, teachers can take far greater advantage of visual aides which will be immediately available in the classroom.

The new, curriculum-oriented school plays up the increasing prominence of the library, which now stores not only books, but tapes, slides and micro-film. Students may take library materials to their own study carrels for quiet perusal.

The compact school is made of brick cavity wall construction and may have glazed openings at the ends of corridors. Glass, if used at all in the classrooms, is stripped near the ceiling.

There's No Use Trying, Designer Says Of Coeds

A designer who's tops in the American sportswear field enjoys dreaming up waterproof wardrobes for female sailors and arresting lounging clothes for the chic woman of the world.

But when it comes to conceiving a wardrobe for the college girl, he figuratively throws up his hands in horror.

"College clothes don't have a style of their own," says John Weitz, who is known for his blasts against fashion atrocities.

"They're sheltered from high fashion. They dress to identify with the group on a particular campus. Like Army units, they fall completely within the framework of their own world.

"Maybe on one campus, it's sneakers worn with everything. Or men's sweaters. Or it's the Ivy League look at chic women's schools. So all attempts at designing for the college girl are foolish.

If there's a fad on the campus like wearing men's bathrobes, the girl goes out and gets one. Why design for her? She won't wear it anyway."

Weitz, who has evidently scrutinized the college scene minus sketch pad, notes too that girls dress to match the style of their dates. "There's a continental look on some campuses. There's a deliberately sloppy look elsewhere. What's terribly hip one place isn't another."

Lest this plunge the potential freshman into total gloom, Weitz suggests the pre-college student view with her own eyes what's really being worn on the campus of her choice, and buy accordingly. "The clever girl can see immediately what's in style at that college," he notes.

Where the college girl will need fashion help, he comments, is when she's ready to graduate. "The girl who cloisters herself too much away from the world doesn't know how people outside really do dress. She'll be the kind of girl who'll wear a hat when one isn't needed.

"If she wants to get a job, if she wishes to have an interesting social life, she'll be wise to study the fashion world before she emerges into it."

Smaller Girls Have Eyes On 'Fur' Coats

NEW YORK (AP) — If you think you see a little zebra or leopard running around your yard this winter, look again. It probably will be a small girl dressed in the orlon pile print coat expected to be the season's hit with the back-to-school set.

These print coats reproduce various animal skins—pony, seal and dalmatian, as well as the zebra and leopard. With them come matching Cossack style hats or berets.

Other pacesetters will be full-length quilted coats and miniature Alpine loden coats, trimmed in imported braid, which look as if they just schussed in off the ski slopes.

"There is an ever - growing fashion consciousness in girls at an ever lowering age," says Joseph L. Rubin, executive director of the Infants and Children's Coat Association Inc. In describing what manufacturers are offering this year, Rubin notes the trends for young girls often reflect what their older sisters are wearing.

Textures of fabrics set the style in all the "looks"—country, ski, dress and school. Imported leather suedes, chinchillas, reindeer hair and mohar curl, plus the pile fabrics and ever popular all-wools and poplins, will abound.

Suede patches for elbows and knees, dyed to match the fabrics, are practical as well as fashionable touches.

Bright reds, ranging from scarlet to wine, and blues, from teal to royal, are the high style colors. Many of the coats come with dyed to match scarves.

Fur collars, buttons, cuffs and scarves remain as favored accents.

Styles in dress coats feature semi-fitted tailoring. Here all wool materials are favored, with emphasis on fine needle detailing. A few of the dress coats are coming out in pastel colors.

Latest word in leggings for young girls' snow suits are stretch pants dyed to match the main color of the coat. Here again is an adaptation from the ski pants of grown-up girls.

Most of the 1963 model coats are servicable and practical, an ever - present consideration in mother's minds. The majority of fabrics are wash-and-wear materials, and these heavy pile fabrics can take the beatings dished out in children's play.

Experienced Doctors Have Replaced Interns

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Four experienced doctors have taken over the emergency room of Richmond Memorial Hospital, replacing interns.

The doctors, all in practice 10 to 12 years, gave up their private practices to form a partnership to staff the emergency room. One doctor will be on duty at all times and another will be on standby.

Dr. Aubrey A. Houser Jr. said it is to a patient's advantage to have an experienced physician immediately available to treat heart attacks, poisonings, automobile injuries and other emergencies.

The hospital discontinued its intern program because of deficiencies in meeting American Medical Association accreditation requirements.

Engineers Devise Simulated Blast

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Engineers at North American Aviation's Columbus Division have devised a method of producing a stimulated nuclear explosion with harmless light waves in order to study the effects of deadly thermal radiation on aircraft.

The nuclear burst simulator is based on the principle of optics. A large globe made of milk glass is used to simulate the balst. A specially designed incandescent lamp is placed inside the globe and a long glass tube-like probe is used to represent the aircraft in the tests.

By raising or lowering the globe, engineers can simulate explosions at any altitude. The glass probe can be moved to positions representing various altitudes and distances from the core of the blast.

The probe is attached to a recorder which registers the amount of light collected by the probe. Engineers then can determine mathematically the amount of radiation experienced.

Police Quiz Fake Detective Linked To Girl's Slaying

CINCINNATI (AP) — Investigators into the Aug. 8 slaying of high school cheerleader Patricia Rebholtz, 15, prepared today to question a Cincinnati man who allegedly posed as a detective to ask questions at the scene of the crime in suburban Greenhills.

The suspect, Calvin Porter Lowe, 51, also was to answer questions of U. S. Secret Service men, who want to know what counterfeit plates for $5, $10, $20 and $100 bills were doing in his car when he was arrested.

Lowe, who said he is a guard at a downtown Cincinnati office building, told arresting officers Sunday night that "I was just shooting off my big mouth" when he posed as an officer.

Police emphasized that he was not considered a prime suspect in the teen-ager's slaying. She was bludgeoned to death in a dark lot as she walked to her boy friend's home from a neighborhood dance.

The boy friend, Michael Wehrung, 15, has been questioned exhaustively but has denied any knowledge of the slaying.

Astronomer Charts An Island Universe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio State University radio astronomer has produced a new radio map of the Andromeda Nebula, an island universe system located nearly two million light years from the earth.

Using the university's huge new radio telescope at Delaware, Ohio, Dr. John D. Kraus, professor of electrical engineering and astronomy, has developed a map containing the highest resolution observations made to date of the Andromeda Nebula. The new map shows five times the detail of any previous maps.

The Andromeda Nebula is visible to the naked eye and is the nearest island universe system, similar to the earth's universe.

Police Quiz Fake Detective Linked To Girl's Slaying

CINCINNATI (AP) — Investigators into the Aug. 8 slaying of high school cheerleader Patricia Rebholtz, 15, prepared today to question a Cincinnati man who allegedly posed as a detective to ask questions at the scene of the crime in suburban Greenhills.

The suspect, Calvin Porter Lowe, 51, also was to answer questions of U. S. Secret Service men, who want to know what counterfeit plates for $5, $10, $20 and $100 bills were doing in his car when he was arrested.

Lowe, who said he is a guard at a downtown Cincinnati office building, told arresting officers Sunday night that "I was just shooting off my big mouth" when he posed as an officer.

Police emphasized that he was not considered a prime suspect in the teen-ager's slaying. She was bludgeoned to death in a dark lot as she walked to her boy friend's home from a neighborhood dance.

The boy friend, Michael Wehrung, 15, has been questioned exhaustively but has denied any knowledge of the slaying.

Astronomer Charts An Island Universe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio State University radio astronomer has produced a new radio map of the Andromeda Nebula, an island universe system located nearly two million light years from the earth.

Using the university's huge new radio telescope at Delaware, Ohio, Dr. John D. Kraus, professor of electrical engineering and astronomy, has developed a map containing the highest resolution observations made to date of the Andromeda Nebula. The new map shows five times the detail of any previous maps.

The Andromeda Nebula is visible to the naked eye and is the nearest island universe system, similar to the earth's universe.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I remove crayon stains from fabrics?

A. Sponge out the stained area with carbon tetrachloride, flushing the stain out onto a towel placed under it. If necessary to lubricate the stain, use petroleum jelly or white mineral oil. Then flush the area again. In washables, if traces of the stain remain, try removing with soap and ammonia, color permitting.

Q. The seal between our bathtub and the wall has broken and crumbled away. How can I repair this?

A. You can make your own resealer out of white tile cement and water. Mix this until it has the consistency of paste, then apply.

Q. Is there any way I can make my own, powerful glue at home?

A. If you've been experiencing trouble finding a glue that will stick glass to glass, leather to metal, or other unusual combinations, burn some shellac in a dish to get rid of the alcohol. The remainder will be one of the strongest and best all - purpose glues you've ever used.

Q. Please suggest a quick and easy way to clean my silverware.

A. Lay a piece of aluminum foil in the bottom of a dishpan, add about two quarts of warm water and two tablespoons each of salt and baking soda. Place your silverware in the dishpan, touching each piece to the foil. The tarnish will disappear.

Q. How can I prolong the life of a typewriter ribbon?

A. If the letters are beginning to show up faint, fill a small oil can with olive oil and lubricate your ribbon with this while running it from spool to spool. Allow to stand for a day, and you'll be surprised at the heavy black letters produced the next day.

Q. How can I renew the usefulness of some hardened shoe polish?

A. A little turpentine will restore the polish.

Junior Editors Quiz on CHEMISTRY

QUESTION: What is liquid air and what is it used for?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: We all know how water (left hand picture) when heated enough, boils and turns into invisible water vapor which condenses, when cooled, into steam and clouds. Air (next right) like water vapor, is invisible, but it is nevertheless the gaseous form of certain substances, mostly oxygen and nitrogen. The reason we find little liquid air around is that liquid air's boiling point, the point where a liquid turns into a gas, is extremely low. This means that liquid air is extremely cold — about 312 degrees below zero.

Oxygen and nitrogen are valuable substances, and one of the ways manufacturers can obtain them in usable form is to cool air down so far that it turns into liquid and the oxygen and nitrogen can be recovered in liquid form. By putting the air under high pressure it will change to liquid more quickly.

Liquid air is strange stuff. If poured out in a pan it will start to simmer and boil, because the surrounding air is so much warmer. If you dipped your finger in it for only two seconds, the extreme cold would mean you'd lose that finger.

★ ★ ★

FOR YOU TO DO: There are strange experiments, like the one involving the soap bubble, which scientists make with liquid air. Read about them in an encyclopedia.

MONEY TALK. Dr. Hubert H. Frisinger and business administration student Betty Smythe look with pride at a graph showing how investment classes which Dr. Frisinger teaches at the University of Toledo have increased a $10,000 investment fund to $23,000 in 13 years.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Toledo Students Invest In Market

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — After 13 years of playing the stock market, business administration students at the University of Toledo have more than doubled their money. Current assets: $23,000.

The students started with $10,000 contributed by the Ohio Citizens Trust Co. Careful study of the stock market and astute investment by a series of classes built the fund to its present level.

Durwood C. DuBois, Ohio Citizens vice president and one of the originators of the idea that students could learn by investing real money, says none of the classes ever has lost money.

He notes, however, that one class made a profit of less than $2. The profit occurred at a time when the stock market was declining, he added, which indicates the care with which the students invest.

As one student commented:

"When you see real money you don't take shots in the dark. You stick with educated guesses."

Dr. Hubert H. Frisinger, course instructor, says student investors are extremely conservative. Half of their fund is invested in government bonds and savings accounts.

Frisinger recalled one student who prepared a report on a small, local industry. The student planned to suggest an investment in the firm. Unfortunately, the student changed his mind and did not make his report.

The stock he planned to recommend was selling at $7 a share. Frisinger added it soon soared to $80 a share.

Students in the class — it usually numbers between eight and 10 — vote on what stocks to buy and sell and how the money is to be invested. They have complete control of the fund.

At the beginning of each semester, students are assigned an industry to study. In addition, each is required to keep track of a stock in the class portfolio. Participation is limited to seniors and graduate students in the College Business Administration.

A notable success was purchase of 50 shares of Carolina Power & Light Co. The class bought the stock at a cost of $1,832 in 1956. It was sold in January 1963 for $3,050, a profit of $1,218.

At the end of each semester, DuBois and other Ohio Citizens executives question students on their knowledge of stocks and other investments in the portfolio.

Commented DuBois: "In addition to learning terminology, students learn the serious approach to investment."

The University of Toledo claims to be the first school to use this plan, but at least three others have followed, the University of North Carolina, Lehigh and Gannon College of Erie, Pa.

'Self-Care' Idea Advised In Buying College Clothes

When college freshmen and their helpful advisers talk about adjustment, maturity and the need for independent action that first year away from home, they're sure to skip over the practical matter of keeping possessions in order.

There's no mother handy to pick dirty socks up off the floor, to sew on a missing button five minutes before classtime, to have the shirts sparkling clean every Monday morning.

Boys are definitely on their own, in the laundry as well as in the classroom. Whether they're on scholarship or were born with silver spoons in their mouths, they regularly descend to the dormitory's laundry, dump in their eight pounds of clothing, plop in a quarter and wait their turn for the dryer.

Boys who in the past had done nothing more strenuous around the home than prying open a coke bottle rapidly become competent with needle and thread, learn how to patch with iron-on strips and can even cope with an iron when needed.

With this do-it-yourself program looming ahead of them, the college-bound shopper does well to buy his college wardrobe with self-care in mind.

Identifying tags on slacks and shirts should be read with care and, if at all possible in the college climate that lies ahead, emphasis should be on wash-and-wear purchases.

Fortunately, there are plenty of such sudsable fabrics available: washable knitwear, stretchwear, corduroy, foam laminates and synthetics.

When laundry day — or night — comes around, it's best to mend rips and replace buttons before washing. Also, separate the really filthy garments like sneakers, sweat shirts, track suits and dungarees, because they'll need a second suds sycle.

White garments and fast colors require hot suds, while warm water is better for dark and bright colors, wools and synthetics.

To put those razor - sharp creases back into pants, take them from the dryer slightly damp and hang them by the cuffs from a clamp-type hanger.

Then grasp a crease edge with one hand, and run the thumb and forefinger of the other hand down the fold to pleat.

Machine -washable synthetics and treated wool sweaters too should be removed from a dryer while slightly damp.

Since they may pull out of shape if they are hung up, it's better to spread them flat and pull gently into shape over a towel or a sheet of plastic. This can be placed over a bed — or even under it — until the sweater is dry.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

What Causes Baby To Cry?

Some infants and young children rarely cry while others do so often. A few not only cry but also whine for extended periods.

Dr. Garry Meyers

I know of no published studies of the relationship between the amount of crying in a person's childhood and the moods and temperament in the same person when an adult. Yet one might suppose a cheerful baby would become a cheerful adult.

I have been able to observe many babies grow up. Those I remember as having cried a good deal in infancy seem now to be as cheerful as most other adults are. Yet one's memory of such things is hardly very reliable.

BABIES and young children often cry when they are hungry or have pain or other physical discomforts.

When a baby cries often and for long periods by day or night his mother should consult her pediatrician. Sometimes the doctor may find local infections, oncoming illness or digestive disturbance.

But what the pediatrician may not easily ascertain is the emotional atmosphere created by the mother or the whole family; how much tenderness, understanding, love, calmness and security the youngster feels.

The young child in a family where there are several adults may get so much cuddling and loving as to make him feel happy nearly all the time. Some little ones, however, are so spoiled by the pampering of adults in the family that they cry often for what they want. Or, adults in a family may treat the child so differently, or be so incompatible with one another, as to create conditions that prompt the baby to cry.

One rule seems to prevail, a home atmosphere that is centered around love, tenderness, gentleness and calmness tends to further a comfortable and happy mood in any child. The father - mother relationships are always significant. So is the individual temperament of each parent — his or her poise and peace of mind.

USUALLY, calm ways and quiet, soft voices in parents are associated with non-crying babies and little children. Whatever the degree of strictness or leniency in the parents is important. The youngster feels more comfortable and cries less, as a rule, when he has learned from experience what he can expect to happen to him next.

In early infancy there are few occasions when the mother must say "No" to the child. But she often must say "No" to herself and command herself to do certain things. The less consistent she is in such matters the more uncomfortable the youngster becomes and the more he is disposed to cry.

At first denied what he expects or has cried for, but finally given what he wants, he may come to cry more often and more violently and may even fly into a rage. But if the denial always is final and decisive and he's never rewarded for his crying, he tends to accept the inevitable silently.

Crying at bedtime or during the night may have a variety of causes, feelings of excitement, loneliness, fear, night terror, pain, desire for attention. Hunger at night is usually related to inadequate nourishment by day.

Help of the physician may be needed in relation to possible local infection, but the mother alone may be able to ascertain the daytime reasons behind excitement, fear, night terror. Also, she must know when the youngster is trying to command her by crying. Once she arrives at this information she can correct the matter if she has the intestinal fortitude to do so.

MANILA (AP) — For five years Richardo Sandan had been signing papers in the Customs Bureau. Finally someone discovered that Sandan had no appointment papers and no personnel record — in other words, that he was never hired by the bureau.

The modern bishop of chess was an elephant in the East. In France it became a jester; in Germany, a runner.

Toledo Students Invest In Market

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — After 13 years of playing the stock market, business administration students at the University of Toledo have more than doubled their money. Current assets: $23,000.

The students started with $10,000 contributed by the Ohio Citizens Trust Co. Careful study of the stock market and astute investment by a series of classes built the fund to its present level.

Durwood C. DuBois, Ohio Citizens vice president and one of the originators of the idea that students could learn by investing real money, says none of the classes ever has lost money.

He notes, however, that one class made a profit of less than $2. The profit occurred at a time when the stock market was declining, he added, which indicates the care with which the students invest.

As one student commented:

"When you see real money you don't take shots in the dark. You stick with educated guesses."

Dr. Hubert H. Frisinger, course instructor, says student investors are extremely conservative. Half of their fund is invested in government bonds and savings accounts.

Frisinger recalled one student who prepared a report on a small, local industry. The student planned to suggest an investment in the firm. Unfortunately, the student changed his mind and did not make his report.

The stock he planned to recommend was selling at $7 a share. Frisinger added it soon soared to $80 a share.

Students in the class — it usually numbers between eight and 10 — vote on what stocks to buy and sell and how the money is to be invested. They have complete control of the fund.

At the beginning of each semester, students are assigned an industry to study. In addition, each is required to keep track of a stock in the class portfolio. Participation is limited to seniors and graduate students in the College Business Administration.

A notable success was purchase of 50 shares of Carolina Power & Light Co. The class bought the stock at a cost of $1,832 in 1956. It was sold in January 1963 for $3,050, a profit of $1,218.

At the end of each semester, DuBois and other Ohio Citizens executives question students on their knowledge of stocks and other investments in the portfolio.

Commented DuBois: "In addition to learning terminology, students learn the serious approach to investment."

The University of Toledo claims to be the first school to use this plan, but at least three others have followed, the University of North Carolina, Lehigh and Gannon College of Erie, Pa.

'Self-Care' Idea Advised In Buying College Clothes

When college freshmen and their helpful advisers talk about adjustment, maturity and the need for independent action that first year away from home, they're sure to skip over the practical matter of keeping possessions in order.

There's no mother handy to pick dirty socks up off the floor, to sew on a missing button five minutes before classtime, to have the shirts sparkling clean every Monday morning.

Boys are definitely on their own, in the laundry as well as in the classroom. Whether they're on scholarship or were born with silver spoons in their mouths, they regularly descend to the dormitory's laundry, dump in their eight pounds of clothing, plop in a quarter and wait their turn for the dryer.

Boys who in the past had done nothing more strenuous around the home than prying open a coke bottle rapidly become competent with needle and thread, learn how to patch with iron-on strips and can even cope with an iron when needed.

With this do-it-yourself program looming ahead of them, the college-bound shopper does well to buy his college wardrobe with self-care in mind.

Identifying tags on slacks and shirts should be read with care and, if at all possible in the college climate that lies ahead, emphasis should be on wash-and-wear purchases.

Fortunately, there are plenty of such sudsable fabrics available: washable knitwear, stretchwear, corduroy, foam laminates and synthetics.

When laundry day — or night — comes around, it's best to mend rips and replace buttons before washing. Also, separate the really filthy garments like sneakers, sweat shirts, track suits and dungarees, because they'll need a second suds sycle.

White garments and fast colors require hot suds, while warm water is better for dark and bright colors, wools and synthetics.

To put those razor - sharp creases back into pants, take them from the dryer slightly damp and hang them by the cuffs from a clamp-type hanger.

Then grasp a crease edge with one hand, and run the thumb and forefinger of the other hand down the fold to pleat.

Machine -washable synthetics and treated wool sweaters too should be removed from a dryer while slightly damp.

Since they may pull out of shape if they are hung up, it's better to spread them flat and pull gently into shape over a towel or a sheet of plastic. This can be placed over a bed — or even under it — until the sweater is dry.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

What Causes Baby To Cry?

Some infants and young children rarely cry while others do so often. A few not only cry but also whine for extended periods.

Dr. Garry Meyers

I know of no published studies of the relationship between the amount of crying in a person's childhood and the moods and temperament in the same person when an adult. Yet one might suppose a cheerful baby would become a cheerful adult.

I have been able to observe many babies grow up. Those I remember as having cried a good deal in infancy seem now to be as cheerful as most other adults are. Yet one's memory of such things is hardly very reliable.

BABIES and young children often cry when they are hungry or have pain or other physical discomforts.

When a baby cries often and for long periods by day or night his mother should consult her pediatrician. Sometimes the doctor may find local infections, oncoming illness or digestive disturbance.

But what the pediatrican may not easily ascertain is the emotional atmosphere created by the mother or the whole family; how much tenderness, understanding, love, calmness and security the youngster feels.

The young child in a family where there are several adults may get so much cuddling and loving as to make him feel happy nearly all the time. Some little ones, however, are so spoiled by the pampering of adults in the family that they cry often for what they want. Or, adults in a family may treat the child so differently, or be so incompatible with one another, as to create conditions that prompt the baby to cry.

One rule seems to prevail, a home atmosphere that is centered around love, tenderness, gentleness and calmness tends to further a comfortable and happy mood in any child. The father - mother relationships are always significant. So is the individual temperament of each parent — his or her poise and peace of mind.

USUALLY, calm ways and quiet, soft voices in parents are associated with non-crying babies and little children. Whatever the degree of strictness or leniency in the parents is important. The youngster feels more comfortable and cries less, as a rule, when he has learned from experience what he can expect to happen to him next.

In early infancy there are few occasions when the mother must say "No" to the child. But she often must say "No" to herself and command .herself to do certain things. The less consistent she is in such matters the more uncomfortable the youngster becomes and the more he is disposed to cry.

At first denied what he expects or has cried for, but finally given what he wants, he may come to cry more often and more violently and may even fly into a rage. But if the denial always is final and decisive and he's never rewarded for his crying, he tends to accept the inevitable silently.
